Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) resignations and (b) retirements of police officers from the Suffolk constabulary there have been in each year since 1997. [82111]

Mr. McNulty: The available information is provided in the following table:

Full-time equivalent[1] police officer resignations and retirements in Suffolk, 1997-2005

As at 31 March each year	Voluntary resignations[2]	Retirements[3]
1998	10	51
1999	8	44
2000	11	37
2001	12	52
2002	19	36
2003	14	32

[1] Prior to 2003, FTE figures excluded those on career breaks or maternity/paternity leave.
[2] Voluntary resignations does not include those who are dismissed and required to resign.
[3] Retirements includes normal retirements and medical retirements.

Pornography

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress is being made on preventing children from gaining access to hardcore pornography. [56007]

Mr. Coaker: Strong controls already exist to protect children from hardcore pornography in the UK. I refer my hon. Friend to the answers that my hon. Friend the Member for Wythenshawe and Sale, East (Paul Goggins), then Under-Secretary of State at the Home Department, gave on 23 March 2006, Official Report, column 607W, and 28 March 2006, Official Report, column 909W, and the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on 27 March 2006, Official Report, column 651W. In addition, DCMS Ministers have agreed a code of practice with the British Hospitality Association to prevent children under the age of 18 from exposure to video works classified at 18/R18 provided through pay to view systems in hotels.

Port Security

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which UK ports have 24-hour security; and what plans the Government have to introduce 24-hour security at further ports. [82029]

Mr. Byrne: There are currently 19 ports in the UK and in juxtaposed locations which are staffed 24 hours a day. A further 16 have staff based there during operating hours. Other ports are covered on a regular basis to cover scheduled services with all remaining points of entry attended on a risk assessed basis or in response to specific intelligence.

Post Office Services

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for which services (a) his Department and (b) its associated public bodies hold contracts with the Post Office; and what the (i) start and (ii) termination date is of each contract. [81539]

Mr. Byrne: Two services are made available by Post Office Ltd. on behalf of the Department. The cash payment facility for asylum seekers is provided by National Asylum Support Services (NASS) through the Sodexho Pass contract which subcontracts to the Post Office the distribution of cash to asylum seekers. The contract commenced on 7 January 2000, and has been extended in accordance with the contract, it expires on 31 December 2006. A new cash payment contract however is due to be let in July 2006 with a view to going live no later than 31 December 2006. Post Office Ltd. provides a passport application Check and Send service and holds passport applications packs at post office branches on behalf of the Identity and Passport Service (IPS). This service has operated since 1996. The current agreement for the Check & Send service runs until 30 September 2007. Before the expiry of the current agreement IPS expect to run a procurement exercise for a continuation of this provision.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what services (a) his Department and (b) its associated public bodies (i) make available and (ii) have made available in the last five years through the Post Office network; through how many outlets the service is or was made available; and how many relevant transactions were undertaken in each case in the most recent year for which figures are available. [79198]

Mr. Byrne: Two services are made available by Post Office Ltd. on behalf of the Department. The cash payment facility for asylum seekers is provided by National Asylum Support Services (NASS) through the Sodexho Pass contract which subcontracts to the Post Office, the distribution of cash to asylum seekers, using a total of 530 outlets throughout the UK (although only about 420 outlets are currently used). The contract commenced on 7 January 2000 and has been extended in accordance with the contract. It expires on 31 December 2006. A new cash payment contract however is due to be let in July 2006 with a view to going live no later than 31 December 2006. Post Office Ltd. provides a passport application Check and Send service and hold passport applications packs at 2,513 branches on behalf of the Identity and Passport Service. This service has operated since 1996 and from June 2005 to May 2006 POL processed 2,721,334 passport applications through this service.

Prisoner Information Points

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the (a) deployment, (b) availability and (c) use of prisoner information points; which prison establishments have such facilities; what plans he has to extend availability in each prison; how much has been spent in each prison establishment on prisoner information points; and what mechanisms are in place to ensure public protection through these facilities. [73747]

Mr. Sutcliffe: In 2004, British Telecommunications plc was awarded a contract to construct and install prisoner information points. HM Prison Service has assisted BT in developing the product, but has no obligation to purchase any terminals. It is therefore left to individual establishments to decide whether they wish to purchase the PIPs. The eastern region of the Legal Services Commission has purchased 14 terminals to serve prisons in the east midlands area, as part of their resettlement agenda. In exchange, HMPS has provided facilities for LSC to present local information on the PIPs in these prisons, which are based on the seven resettlement pathways. Currently there are orders for a total of 22 PIPs based in 17 establishments. The information on the terminals is based on the 21 Prison Service Standards which directly affect prisoners' day-to-day life. The terminals are a stand-alone system and do not permit prisoner access to the internet.

Prisoners

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Shipley (Philip Davies) of 7 November 2005, Official Report, column 57W, on prisoners, how many crimes were committed by people released from prison before the end of their sentence in 2005-06. [76915]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information on the number of prisoners released on parole licence who were recalled to prison in 2005-06 because of being charged with a further offence will be published in the Parole Board annual report for 2005-06 available towards the end of 2006. In the year 1 April 2005 to 31 March 2006, around 16,600 prisoners were released on home detention curfew, according to the prison IT system. By the end of May 2006 the Home Office had been notified of 965 offences, reported as committed during the period 1 April 2005 to 31 March 2006, for which a prisoner on HDC had been cautioned, convicted or was awaiting prosecution (which may not result in a conviction). This figure will change in future as further reports are received of acquittals, charges dropped, further offences identified, or convictions.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the breakdown of the prison population was in terms of (a) ethnic background, (b) religion, (c) age and (d) sex in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [82935]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information on the breakdowns requested of the prison population is to be found in tables 8.4, 8.4a, 8.5, and 8.6 in the Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2004, a copy of which can be found in the House of Commons Library. The internet tables for Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2004 are available at the following internet address:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/omcs.html.

Prisons

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what spending on the prison service is (a) identifiable and (b) non-identifiable for the purposes of the public expenditure statistical analysis. [48788]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The departmental expenditure limit for HM Prison Service during 2004-05 was £2,446,412,000 of which: £167,791,000 is regarded as identifiable expenditure and £2,278,621,000 is regarded as non-identifiable expenditure.

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what proportion of the total prison population released in each year since 1990 completed (a) 100 per cent., (b) 90 to 99 per cent., (c) 80 to 89 per cent., (d) 70 to 79 per cent., (e) 60 to 69 per cent., (f) 50 to 59 per cent. and (g) less than 50 per cent. of their total prison sentence. [77189]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information on average time served for prisoners discharged under sentence is published in tables 10.1 and 10.2 of Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2004, a copy of which is available in the House of Commons Library. Comprehensive information on time served for the different bands specified could be produced only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many inmates have had added days awarded to them by the independent adjudicator and subsequently also had days restored to them by prison governors in each prison in each of the last 12 months; how many days were (i) awarded by the independent adjudicator and (ii) restored by the governor in each case; what the reasons were for the restoration in each case; and if he will make a statement. [78104]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The numbers of added days imposed or remitted in each prison will vary according to the size of the establishment and the nature of the population. Detailed information is not collated centrally. The reasons for restoration of added days in individual cases are not recorded centrally, but in each case the governor (or controller in contracted prisons) considers applications for remission according to criteria set out in Prison Service guidance.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many independent adjudications were carried out in each prison establishment in each of the last 15 months. [78128]

Mr. Sutcliffe: A monthly breakdown of independent adjudications is not available but according to returns from prisons. Independent adjudicators only attend to hear the more serious disciplinary charges for which added days are a likely punishment.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost of independent adjudications was in each prison establishment for each of the last 12 months. [78129]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The cost of each visit by an independent adjudicator (district judge) to an establishment is estimated at £700, including an estimated average for expenses of £100 per visit.

A monthly breakdown of independent adjudicators' visits to each prison is not available.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many civilian staff are employed at HM Prison Wandsworth. [78167]

Mr. Sutcliffe: As at 15 June 2006, Wandsworth prison employed 191 civilian staff out of a total of 735 staff.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Irish nationals are being held in each prison establishment. [78187]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information on the numbers of Irish national prisoners held in prison establishments within England and Wales, as recorded on the prison IT system, is contained within the following table;

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what mechanisms exist to monitor inmates' cars parked at prison establishments to ensure that the vehicles are (a) legally registered as owned by the inmate claiming ownership and (b) displaying valid tax discs; and if he will make a statement; [78210]

(2) what proportion of inmates at HM Prison Latchmere House are currently allowed to park their cars in the establishment's car park; and if he will make a statement. [78211]

Mr. Sutcliffe: There are no mandatory instructions on how to monitor cars belonging to prisoners. Each establishment requires prisoners to comply with the law. For example, at Latchmere House, vehicle registration documents must be in the prisoner's own name and have the address as Latchmere House. Documents are kept in prisoners' valuables and an application must be made, with a reason, for any withdrawals. The tax disc is photocopied and a renewal date entered on the car document log which is checked monthly by the Job Club to ensure tax is still current. Thirty prisoners, as at 16 June 2006, use the establishment's car park, out of a population of 169.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which prisons have been re-roled since 1997; how many prison places there are in each establishment; when the re-roling took place; and what the cost of re-roling was. [79709]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 22 June 2006]: The following table provides details of prisons that have changed function since 1997, including number of places at the time of the change. It does not include individual wings or prisons that have changed their security category but retained their previous function. Information on change of function costs is not available as accounting records do not identify these separately from other operating costs.

Mr. McLoughlin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prisoners have escaped from HMP Sudbury in Derbyshire in the last year for which figures are available; what the (a) offence and (b) sentence of each absconder was; what the remaining length of sentence was of each absconder; how many have been caught; and if he will make a statement. [79992]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 26 June 2006]: Seventy-six prisoners absconded from Sudbury open prison during 2005-06, the latest year for which data are available. Of these 14 remain unlawfully at large. Details of each absconder's offence and sentence could be obtained only by examination of each prisoner's record at a disproportionate cost.

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many inmates who absconded from (a) all open prisons and (b) Spring Hill open prison since 1999 have not been recaptured; and how many of those who absconded committed further crimes before being apprehended. [80312]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 26 June 2006]: Information for all open prisons is available since 1997. As at 24 May 2006, 357 prisoners remained unlawfully at large from those who had absconded from open prisons in England and Wales between 1 April 1997 and 31 March 2006. As at 22 June 2006, 29 prisoners remained unlawfully at large from those who absconded from Springhill open prison between 1 April 1999 and 31 March 2006. Information is not held centrally on further offences committed by absconders while unlawfully at large.

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) Prison Service

Instructions and (b) Prison Service Orders were issued without being published in each of the last nine years for which figures are available. [81204]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Prison Service Orders and Instructions are available to prisoners through prison libraries, unless their circulation is restricted on security or commercial grounds. Extant non-restricted Orders and Instructions are also published on the Prison Service website except for a few early examples for which no electronic copy exists. Hard copies of these can be obtained on request to Prison Service headquarters.

The numbers of restricted Instructions and Orders by year of issue are detailed in the table.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prisoners under the age of 18 years are in each prison; what plans he has to transfer those individuals to specialist youth institutions; and if he will make a statement. [81515]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The number of young people under 18 accommodated in each young offender institution (run by the Prison Service or private contractors) on 28 April (the most recent date for which figures are available) is set out in the following table. On the same date, 243 under-18s were accommodated in secure training centres and 230 in secure children's homes. These figures and those in the table were provided by the Youth Justice Board.

The Youth Justice Board has responsibility for deciding, on behalf of the Secretary of State, where young people serving detention and training orders are to be accommodated. The board's decisions take account of the age and sex of the young person, his or her individual needs and where he or she normally lives. The Prison Service performs the same function in relation to under-18s sentenced to longer periods of detention. Young offender institutions, secure training centres and secure children's homes are all specialist youth institutions, with staff who are trained in the needs of young people. The higher staff-to-trainee ratios in secure training centres and secure children's homes are more suited to the needs of younger trainees and those who are more vulnerable.

Probation Service

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of the probation facilities in Hertfordshire; and if he will make a statement. [21089]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Details of the performance of the 42 probation areas in England and Wales against targets set for the National Probation Service for 2005-06 may be found in the National Probation Service performance report issue 20 which is posted on the NPS website at: http://www.probation.homeoffice. gov.uk/output/page34.asp.

Issue 20 showed Hertfordshire as the worst performing area in the weighted scorecard, which ranks probation areas according to their performance across the range of key indicators. The greatest areas of concern are with performance in relation to the two key targets on OASys risk assessments on (a) high risk offenders and (b) prolific and other priority offenders (PPOs). Performance on both these targets was 14 per cent. in 2005-06. The target for both high risk and PPOs is 90 per cent.

Hertfordshire's performance on the enforcement target is the worst of all the probation areas at 80 per cent. The target is 90 per cent. and the aggregate of all areas in England and Wales was 91 per cent. Hertfordshire achieved 77 per cent. on compliance against a target of 85 per cent. and an England and Wales average of 81 per cent. Against a target of 645 completions of unpaid work orders, Hertfordshire achieved 464 (72 per cent.). 49 per cent. of victims were contacted within the timescale required by national standards—the target is 85 per cent. and nationally the NPS is achieving 93 per cent. The remaining key performance indicators are at or around target with the exception of basic skills awards where double the awards target was achieved in 2005-06.

HM Inspectorate of Probation, as an independent inspectorate reporting to Ministers on the work of the National Probation Service, published an inspection report on Hertfordshire probation area in March 2004 under its effective supervision inspection programme. This showed poor performance, particularly in the assessment and supervision of offenders who posed a high risk of harm to others, and that the area needed to make significant improvements in its overall operation.

In view of the results of this inspection, HM Inspectorate of Probation undertook a follow-up inspection of Hertfordshire which was published in January 2005. This indicated considerable signs of improvement, but that further work was needed to improve the quality of effective supervision, and particularly of the management of risk of harm.

All HMI Probation reports are published, and copies are in the Library of the House.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on how many occasions (a) he and (b) his officials have met trade union representatives to discuss improvements to the probation service in the last 12 months. [82685]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 5 July 2006]: The information is as follows:

(a) Junior Home Office Ministers have met frequently with the unions, both formally and informally, over this period and these discussions have included improvements in the service.

(b) My officials have met union representatives on a regular basis throughout the last twelve months in a wide range of contexts and improvement to the probation service has been discussed on many occasions.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people recruited by the Probation Service in the last 12 months have no formal qualifications. [82686]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 5 July 2006]: The Home Office does not collect information centrally on what, if any, qualifications are held by staff recruited to the Probation Service, and we cannot therefore provide a response to this question.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he uses consultants to advise on the work of the Probation Service. [82687]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 5 July 2006]: The National Probation Directorate employs from time to time a number of consultants or consultancy firms to provide specialist support over a wide range of probation work..

Seasonal Agricultural Workers

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department why his Department is proposing to change the contracts of employment for seasonal agricultural workers scheme students; when these changes were announced; and when they will take effect. [82027]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 3 July 2006]: It is the responsibility of the operators to ensure that each student employed on the seasonal agricultural workers scheme (SAWS) has a contract of employment and that it meets the terms and conditions of both the scheme and all appropriate employment legislation. Monitoring activities have found that many students employed on the SAWS are being paid as daily casual workers; a practice which is incompatible with the terms and conditions of the SAWS contract. The contract states that participants are to be offered work for a minimum period of five weeks and a minimum of 40 hours work per week. Officials sent a contract clarification letter to all SAWS operators on 22 June 2006 confirming that SAWS students must not be employed on daily contracts and that employment contracts must be amended accordingly. A working group of Home Office officials and SAWS operator representatives will now address how the operators should be seeking to comply with the requirements and the timescales for doing so.

Security Industry Authority

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) licence applications were received and (b) licences were issued by the Security Industry Authority in each of the last five months for which figures are available. [62261]

Mr. Coaker: The information is given in the table.

Month in 2006	Applications received	Licences issued
May	12,200	6,752
April	13,126	13,034
March	25,632	10,821
February	18,494	8,480
January	14,000	8,354

Security Service

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many former (a) MI5 and (b) MI6 agents have been imprisoned in the UK in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [82919]

Mr. Sutcliffe: It is the established policy of successive Governments not to make public information that could assist in the identification of agents of the intelligence and security services.

Sex Offenders

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many registered sex offenders reside in each London borough. [82752]

Mr. Sutcliffe: This data will be made available in local multi-agency public protection arrangements (MAPPA) annual reports, which are due to be published in October.

Terrorism

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many terrorist cells have been discovered in the United Kingdom since 11 September 2001; and if he will make a statement. [82356]

Mr. McNulty: It is our policy not to comment on the details of specific intelligence operations as these are operational matters for the police and the security service. However, on 11 May 2006, I informed the House that the police and agencies have disrupted many attacks against the UK since 9/11, including three since last July.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how he expects the EU plans to introduce a non-emotive lexicon to help combat terrorism to work in practice; and if he will make a statement. [82741]

Mr. McNulty: Under the UK presidency, in the context of the EU's action plan to counter radicalisation and recruitment to terrorism, the Government proposed the development of a "non-emotive lexicon". This proposal reflected our recognition, and that of the EU, that certain terms are potentially inflammatory if used inappropriately and there are those who wish to misrepresent Government policies as anti-Muslim or anti-Islam. The Austrian presidency took work on this forward with the development of a short list of key terms and a broader EU communications strategy, which was designed to provide a framework for discussing issues related to Islamist terrorism. The lexicon is a living document which the current presidency may or may not chose to expand, but, as part of the communications strategy, it is a guide to help EU Ministers and officials express themselves clearly and to minimise the chance of their statements and policies being misunderstood or misconstrued.

Victims of Crime

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what measures are in place to prevent a person who has murdered their spouse organising the victim's funeral in their position as next-of-kin. [76783]

Ms Harman: I have been asked to reply.

There are no specific measures in place to prevent a person who has murdered their spouse organising the victim's funeral.

Being next-of-kin does not create a right to organise someone's funeral. A duty to dispose of a dead body is incumbent on the executors of the deceased. A court can refuse to issue a grant of representation to someone it considers unsuitable to be an executor or an administrator of the deceased's estate. It is an offence to detain a body and to refuse to deliver it to the executors for burial.

Under the victim advocate scheme which is being piloted in five Crown courts, families of the victims of murder or manslaughter will be able to receive up to 15 hours of publicly funded personal and social legal advice from a lawyer, who will be able to advise on issues such as this, in addition to questions about access to the deceased's property and their children's belongings, residency orders, next of kin status as well as financial and benefits matters.

Violent Crime

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many violent crimes were recorded in each year since 1996 (a) in total, (b) in Northamptonshire and (c) in Wellingborough. [82053]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 3 July 2006]: The information requested is given in the tables. Since 1997, there have been two major changes to the way in which crime is recorded. The effect of the change in counting rules in 1998 was to artificially increase recorded violent crime nationally by more than 80 per cent. while it is estimated that the effect of the introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard in April 2002 caused a further 20 per cent. increase in recorded violent crime in its first year.

Table 1: Recorded violent crime—1996 and 1997

	Number of offences
	1996	1997
England and Wales	344,766	347,064
Northamptonshire	3,584	3,688
Wellingborough	n/a	n/a n/a = not available.

Table 2: Recorded violent crime—1998-99 to 2001-02

	Number of offences
	1998-99	1999-2000	2000-01	2001-02
England and Wales	605,797	703,107	733,374	813,121
Northamptonshire	5,995	5,896	6,051	6,973
Wellingborough	n/a	960	878	913

n/a = not available.

Notes:

1. The coverage was extended and counting rules revised from 1998-99. Figures from that date are not directly comparable with those for 1997.
2. The data in this table is prior to the introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard. These figures are not directly comparable with those for later years.

Table 3: Recorded violent crime—2002-03 to 2004-05

	Number of offences
	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05
England and Wales	991,563	1,109,016	1,184,702
Northamptonshire	11,431	12,834	12,678
Wellingborough	1,544	1,462	1,491

Note:

The data in this table takes account of the introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard in April 2002. These figures are not directly comparable with those for earlier years.

Workers Registration Scheme

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many of those who registered under the Workers Registration Scheme have worked for 12 months or more in the United Kingdom. [81015]

Mr. Byrne: The information is not available. The Worker Registration Scheme does not require those that register to notify the Home Office when they leave the UK.

Young Offenders

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of non-violent young offenders (a) sent to prison and (b) given alternatives to custody re-offended within two years of finishing their sentence in the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [78648]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Re-offending rates are not available for non-violent young offenders by disposal. The most recent information on the re-offending of juveniles living in England and Wales was published in June as "Juvenile re-offending: results from the 2004 cohort". Home Office Statistical Bulletin 10/06. The report is available on line at: http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs06/hosb1006.pdf.

Tuesday 11 July 2006

TRANSPORT

Community Transport

9. Judy Mallaber: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on the role of community transport in future transport policy. [83855]

Gillian Merron: Community transport has a vital role in helping to meet the transport needs of different groups. The Department works closely with the Community Transport Association and supports over 700 community transport operators in England through the Bus Service Operators Grant.

Concessionary Bus Travel Scheme

11. Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his plans are for implementing the proposed free national concessionary bus travel. [83857]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: From April 2008 persons aged 60 and over and disabled people will be entitled to free off-peak local bus travel anywhere in the country. We will be consulting authorities, bus operators and other interested parties on the best framework for delivering the improved concessionary fares entitlement.

Buses

12. Mr. Hendrick: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to increase the use of public transport by bus. [83858]

20. Mr. Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to encourage more use of public transport buses. [83866]

Gillian Merron: We are committed to seeing an increase in bus use and improving bus services.

Over the coming months I will be looking closely at the issues, to come to a decision, later in the year, about the right framework to increase and improve bus travel.

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to encourage the use of public transport by bus. [83123]

Gillian Merron: Within the context of delivering our long-term strategy for improving bus services across the country, the most recent steps taken by the Government include:

Providing local authorities in England with the resources to support their Local Transport Plan strategies, a large part of which are related to improving bus-related infrastructure (some £571 million invested by local authorities between 2001-02 and 2004-05 in bus improvements);

The introduction of free local concessionary fares for older and disabled people from April 2006, and the announcement of free national concessionary fares from April 2008;

Up to £200 million per year of the Transport Innovation Fund (from 2008-09) has been made available specifically to support packages of measures that will address congestion in towns and cities through demand management and public transport improvements, including better bus services;

Allocating £20 million to fund 43 Kickstart schemes to pump-prime promising local bus services;

£54 million available for 2006-07 to support rural bus services.

Providing capital funding for major bus schemes, such as the £42 million contribution towards the Greater Bristol Bus Network scheme.

Over the coming months we will be looking at the success of these, and other initiatives, with a view to developing future plans to encourage bus use.

Railways

13. Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his plans are to overcome capacity problems on the rail network. [83859]

15. Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his plans are to overcome capacity problems on the rail network. [83861]

Derek Twigg: We are increasing capacity in a number of ways. Through the franchising process, we are securing increases in train carrying capacity. And we are working with Network Rail on major projects to increase capacity, including the West Coast upgrade and Thameslink. Next year will see the opening of the Channel Tunnel Rail Link. And next summer we will publish the High Level Output Statement detailing what we expect to buy from the railway from 2009-14. Capacity will be a key element.

Bus Regulation

14. Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to change bus regulation; and if he will make a statement. [83860]

Gillian Merron: We are committed to seeing an increase in bus patronage and improving bus services for passengers across the country. Over the coming months we will be looking at what works and what does not work, and will make decisions in the autumn.

Traffic Accidents

16. Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on trends in the number of serious traffic accidents in England. [83862]

Dr. Ladyman: Our statistics for 2005 indicate that there were 24,379 accidents involving people killed or seriously injured reported to the police in England, 30 per cent. below the 1994-98 baseline average and 6 per cent. below the number in 2004.

Euston (Intercity Services)

17. Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to increase intercity services out of Euston as part of the 2009 timetable. [83863]

Derek Twigg: The upgrade of West Coast Mainline will be largely completed by end of 2008. As a result the timetable starting in December 2008 is planned to include a substantial increase in long distance services to and from Euston. This is set out in the progress report on the West Coast upgrade project that was published in May 2006.

Road Congestion

18. Mr. Devine: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress has been made in improving traffic management to ease road congestion. [83864]

Dr. Ladyman: Under the Traffic Management Act 2004 local authorities in England have a duty to manage traffic on their road network, co-ordinate street works and manage parking enforcement. We are consulting on proposals regarding network management duties that will ensure authorities do all they can to tackle congestion and keep traffic moving on their roads.

Traffic officers are helping to keep traffic moving, ease congestion and ensure safety, primarily on English motorways.

Airport Expansion

19. Richard Ottaway: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on the Government's plans for airport expansion in Southern England. [83865]

Gillian Merron: The Government's "Future of Air Transport" White Paper, published in December 2003, sets out a strategic framework for the development of airport capacity in the UK, including at airports in Southern England, over the next 30 years. We intend to publish a progress report on the policies and proposals set out in the Air Transport White Paper (ATWP), by the end of 2006.

Parking Fines

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he plans to take to ensure fairer administration of parking fines by local authorities. [83856]

Gillian Merron: The Traffic Management Act 2004 gives the Government power to make regulations and issue statutory guidance on the civil enforcement of parking contraventions including the administration of parking penalty charges. The Secretary of State will tomorrow—12 July—launch our three month consultation "Better Parking—Keeping Traffic Moving" on this.

Advertising Campaigns

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what advertising campaigns his Department has run since July 2004; and what the (a) date and (b) cost was of each. [81912]

Gillian Merron: The Department and its executive agencies monitor expenditure on a fiscal year basis. Campaign expenditure on media advertising for 2004-05 and 2005-06 are set out in the following table. The major areas of expenditure are designed to support our THINK! road safety and car tax offenders campaigns.

Department	Campaign	2004-05	£ 2005-06
DfT	THINK! Road safety	9.2 million	11,567,000
	Transport Direct	320,000	743,000
DVLA	Sale of personalised car registrations	1.9 million	2 million
	Continuous registration	2.3 million	2.3 million
	Harmonised registration certificate	—	1.5 million
Highways Agency	Introduction of traffic officers	—	153,000
	Active traffic management on the M42	—	100,000
Maritime and Coastguard Agency	Safe fishing	16,000	16,000
Vehicle Certification Agency	Information for the automotive and related industries	18,000	21,500

Aircraft Emissions

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of how much carbon dioxide is produced on average by an individual aircraft per mile travelled, broken down by aircraft type; and if he will make a statement. [82851]

Gillian Merron: The amount of carbon dioxide (CO_2) emissions produced will vary by model of plane, aircraft types and according to factors such as journey lengths, passenger loadings and weather conditions. The information is therefore not collected in the form requested.

However, the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs publishes estimates of CO_2 emissions from aircraft, as set out in its Company Reporting Manual. The manual is available on the DEFRA website:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/business/envrp/gas/envrpgas-annexes.pdf

Arriva Trains Wales

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many Arriva Trains Wales services were cancelled from Llansamlet railway station in 2005. [80621]

Derek Twigg: Responsibility of the management of the Arriva Trains Wales ('ATW') Franchise Agreement has transferred to the National Assembly for Wales from the Department for Transport. The Department for Transport does not hold this information.

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 8 May 2006, Official Report, column 21W, on railways, what issues were discussed at the meeting with Arriva Trains Wales; and what the outcome was. [80726]

Derek Twigg: The Department for Transport is still in discussion with interested parties on the implications of the planned First Great Western timetable changes for services between Cardiff and Swansea.

Birmingham New Street Station (Medical Assistance)

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what emergency medical assistance is available at Birmingham New Street train station. [83368]

Derek Twigg: This is an operational matter for Network Rail, the owner and operator of the national rail network. The hon. Member should contact Network Rail's chief executive at the following address for a response to his question.

John Armitt
Chief Executive
Network Rail
40 Melton street
London NW1 2EE.

Departmental Documents

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much it cost to research, write and publish (a) "A New Deal for Transport" (July 1998), (b) "Transport 2010—the 10 Year Plan", (c) "Delivering Better Transport: Progress Report" (December 2002) and (d) "The Future of Transport: a Network for 2030" (July 2004). [79919]

Gillian Merron: Research and writing of the latter three documents were carried out as part of civil servants' normal duties. Design and printing costs were:

"Transport 2010—The Ten-Year Plan"	46,659
"Delivering Better Transport—Progress Report"	43,999
"The Future of Transport"	52,377

Information on the costs of "A New Deal for Transport" cannot be traced without incurring disproportionate costs.

Departmental Emissions

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent estimate he has made of the carbon emissions of his Department; what commitment he has made to reducing such emissions; and if he will make a statement. [81053]

Gillian Merron: On 12 June Government launched new targets for sustainable operations on the Government estate, including ones to reduce carbon emissions. The Department for Transport is currently assessing its position against these targets and will publish performance data in due course.

Our performance in respect of the 2004-05 financial year can be found in the Sustainable Development Commission's report "Leading by example?".

Departmental Consultations

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his practice is regarding meeting, discussions with and taking into account the views and opinions of (a) private individuals and (b) representatives of organisations when drawing up and framing legislation to be introduced by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [81641]

Gillian Merron: The Department always seeks a full range of views when drawing up and framing legislation. Consultation is a key part of the policy-making process; both informal and formal. The Department holds regular meetings with representatives of the principal stakeholder groups for our policy areas and with relevant experts.

Organisations and individuals can also contribute to the Department's formal consultations which abide by the code of conduct on consultation. Known stakeholders are alerted to the fact that a formal consultation is taking place. As required by the code, the Department then gives feedback on the responses received and on how the consultation process influenced the policy decision.

Greater Manchester Passenger Transport Executive

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the value of the grant paid to Greater Manchester Passenger Transport Executive was in each of the last five years. [82440]

Derek Twigg: The total funds allocated by the Department for Transport to the Greater Manchester Passenger Transport Executive are set out in the following table. These totals include funding for rail, bus services and local transport. In the case of rail and bus service funding, these allocations are entirely in the form of grant. Local Transport Plan funding covers integrated transport block (for small schemes), maintenance and major projects, and are allocated as a combination of capital grant and supported borrowing. 2005-06 figures are provisional and subject to audit.

2001-02	133.1
2002-03	193.8
2003-04	172.5
2004-05	176.0
2005-06	92.0

Hang-gliding

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what safety regulations govern hang-gliding; what guidance he has issued on the subject; and if he will make a statement. [83772]

Gillian Merron: All aircraft in the United Kingdom, including hang-gliders, must be flown in accordance with the Rules of the Air Regulations 1996. There are no registration, design certification or pilot licensing requirements for hang-gliders. The Civil Aviation Authority has not issued any guidance on hang-gliding.

London-Swansea Rail Line

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the merits of linking the main London-Swansea rail line to a rail link to Ebbw Vale. [83669]

Derek Twigg: This is a matter for the Welsh Assembly Government.

Low-emission Vehicles

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what financial incentives the Government provide for the purchase of low emission vehicles; and which vehicles on sale in the UK are eligible for those incentives. [82321]

Dr. Ladyman: The single biggest financial incentive for most drivers is provided by fuel duty. Motorists can make substantial fuel duty savings by choosing more efficient, less polluting vehicles.

In 2001 vehicle excise duty for cars was reformed and is now graduated by carbon dioxide emissions. This gives a clear signal to motorists to choose less polluting vehicles. In Budget 2006 this framework was further reformed to strengthen environmental signals. Private and light goods vehicles first registered before March 2001 are taxed according to their engine size, in one of two bands.

Company car tax is also graduated according to CO_2 emissions, having been reformed in 2002.

The CO_2 ratings for new cars are published on the website of the Vehicle Certification Agency and in its publication "New Car Fuel Consumption and Emission Figures" (latest edition May 2006) and VED rates are published on the DVLA website.

Concerning grants, I refer the hon. Member to the written statement "Transport grant and advice programmes" which I made on 7 June 2006, Official Report, columns 30-32WS.

Media Analysis Reports

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether his Department produces a monthly media analysis report. [82205]

Gillian Merron: The Department's use of the services provided by its media analysis contractor ended in February 2006. We are currently reviewing how we measure the effectiveness of our communications.

All the media analysis reports can be found on the DfT website at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/stellent/groups/dft_about/documents/divisionhomepage/610943.hcsp and at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/stellent/groups/dft_foi/documents/divisionhomepage/041073.hcsp

Motorway Surface Noise

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport by what criteria an area is assessed for its eligibility for motorway surface noise alleviation. [84162]

Dr. Ladyman: Resurfacing of strategic roads, including motorways, is carried out when maintenance of the existing surface is required on safety grounds or as a result of general wear and tear caused by traffic. When resurfacing is required, quieter surfacing materials are used as a matter of course.

Noise barriers have been installed on existing strategic roads where serious and pressing cases of high levels of traffic noise experienced by nearby residents have been identified and where there has been no early prospect of quieter surfacing materials being laid. These cases, which were listed on 11 November 1999, Official Report, columns 681-83W, were identified using criteria announced by the Minister on 22 March 1999, based on calculated noise levels and road opening dates.

Multi-Modal Studies

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on (a) progress with and (b) plans for multi-modal studies. [83015]

Gillian Merron: I refer the hon. Member to the answer that was provided on 10 October 2005, Official Report, columns 96-98W.

Rail Fares

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many passenger train operating companies permit the use of a cheap day return ticket all day. [82503]

Derek Twigg: Most train companies have a few cheap day return fares that are valid all day, usually well away from urban areas or for travel in the opposite direction to the peak passenger flow. Most cheap day return tickets carry a morning peak restriction, and cheap day returns set by at least five train operating companies also have an evening peak restriction. Cheap day return tickets are not regulated, so the Department does not collate information on these restrictions.

Rail Timetables

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will seek a review of the time of early morning trains on the Gloucester to Bristol line. [83266]

Derek Twigg: The Department of Transport has no current plans to seek a review of the times of trains on the Gloucester to Bristol line.

Railways (Crime)

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many crimes have been reported at each train station in each of the last five years. [82600]

Derek Twigg: This information is not held by the Department for Transport. Information relating to crimes at railway stations is held by the British Transport Police who can be contacted at: British Transport Police, 25 Camden Road, London NW1 9LN.

Reading-Taunton Freight Line

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) if he will take steps to ensure that freight traffic from the Mendip quarries is re-routed via Bristol to enable essential repair work by high-output machinery on the Reading to Taunton line; and if he will make a statement; [83528]

(2) what discussions he has had with the owners of (a) Whatley and (b) Merehead Quarry on their use of freight trains at times when repairs could be effectively carried out to the Reading to Taunton line by high-output machinery; [83529]

(3) if he will ensure that the high-output machinery for repairing and improving rail track is used on the West country route between Reading and Exeter and not transported to other parts of the rail network until the work is completed. [83532]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 10 July 2006]: These are operational matters for Network Rail, the owner and operator of the national rail network. The hon. Member should contact Network Rail's chief executive at the following address for a response to his questions.

John Armitt
Chief Executive
Network Rail
40 Melton street
London NW1 2EE

Rural Bus Services

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many rural bus services have been lost in Suffolk in each of the past five years. [82727]

Gillian Merron: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) do not keep the statistics requested by county. They do, however, compile this information according to traffic area. The number of new and cancelled bus services by traffic area from 1998-2005 were provided in an answer give by my predecessor on 16 February 2006, Official Report, columns 2505-6W.

The following table shows the figures for 2005-06 which are now available.

Traffic area	New	Cancelled
North Eastern	578	554
North Western	652	546
Eastern (incorporating Suffolk)	579	454
West Midlands	488	407
Welsh	268	213
Western	559	468
South Eastern plus Metropolitan	210	157
Scotland	385	511

Traffic Commissioners

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take steps to include the monitoring of the operation of bus services in the remit of the Traffic Commissioners. [82822]

Gillian Merron: The Traffic Commissioners do already have powers to monitor local bus services. They can and do take action against operators who fail to run a bus service in accordance with the registered details of the service.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Alcoholism

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what support his Department provides for children and families affected by alcoholism in (a) England, (b) the north-east, (c) the Tees Valley and (d) Middlesbrough, South and East Cleveland constituency. [79325]

Beverley Hughes: The Government are taking robust action to reduce significantly the numbers of young people affected by substance misuse, (including alcohol). The Department for Education and Skills, the Home Office and Department of Health agreed a joint approach to the development of universal, targeted and specialist services to prevent drug harm and to ensure that all children and young people are able to reach their potential. This will often cover a wide range of substances, including alcohol and volatile substances and is supported by a ring fenced budget—The Young People's Substance Misuse Partnership Grant.

In addition, the Alcohol Harm Reduction Strategy, led by the Home Office, aims to minimise harm caused by alcohol and tackle adult problem drinking. The strategy includes a work theme on young people and parents.

Arrangements for safeguarding children and promoting their welfare have been strengthened through the Every Child Matters reform. The Children Act 2004 places a duty on local authority children's services departments to protect children from significant harm, including from alcohol misusing parents.

Over the past two years the Government Office for the North East's Drugs and Crime team has led a major regional initiative aimed at developing effective multi-agency responses for children and families affected by parental substance misuse. All 12 local authorities are participating in this and many have developed local networks to plan and implement effective support services.

Specifically within Tees Valley, five authorities have developed a range of services for children and families affected by parental substance misuse.

Middlesbrough have just established a project—Families First—dedicated to supporting families where parental alcohol or misuse threatens the safety and well-being of the children in the family. The Government are funding an evaluation of the project in order to develop the evidence base on interventions with these young people.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much the Department has spent in providing support for children and families affected by alcoholism in each of the last five years. [79326]

Beverley Hughes: DfES do not provide specific funding for this area of work. However, local partnerships have used a range of funding streams to develop and support children and families affected by alcoholism, including the Adult Pooled Treatment Budget, Young People's Substance Misuse Partnership Grant, High Focus Area capacity building fund, Neighbourhood Renewal Funding and mainstream funding for children's services.

Comprehensive Spending Review

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what discussions he has had with (a) the Treasury and (b) the Cabinet Office regarding the pre-comprehensive spending review report; and if he will make a statement. [82838]

Alan Johnson: I have had and will continue to have wide-ranging and regular discussions with the Chief Secretary to the Treasury about preparations for the 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review, as a matter of key importance to my Department's medium and long-term planning.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the Answer of 3 July 2006, Official Report, column 666W, on the Comprehensive Spending Review, what the key challenges and issues for his Department are for the Comprehensive Spending Review 2007. [84108]

Alan Johnson [holding answer 10 July 2006]: As my Department prepares for the Comprehensive Spending Review 2007, I will be seeking to continue our drive to improve outcomes for all children, and in particular the most disadvantaged; enhance the protection of vulnerable children (including those with special educational needs); improve school standards; and to improve the quality and choice of courses available to young people between the ages of 14 and 19. It will also be crucial that our Further and Higher Education systems are able to deliver the world class skills and culture of learning that will increase the nation's international competitiveness.

Dyslexia

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans he has to allow children with dyslexia to be given extra time in public examinations; and if he will make a statement. [83919]

Jim Knight: The regulation of public examinations in England is the responsibility of the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA). The QCA requires awarding bodies to have arrangements in place for candidates with special requirements, including dyslexia. It is the responsibility of the Joint Council for Qualifications (JCQ) on behalf of the awarding bodies to co-ordinate a common set of access arrangements. Candidates with dyslexia are able to benefit from extra time when taking public examinations if they fulfil the criteria set out in "Regulations and Guidance relating to Candidates who are Eligible for Adjustments in Examinations", which is produced by the JCQ.

Examination Standards

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what representations he has received on standards in grading of (a) GCSEs and (b) A levels; and if he will make a statement. [84254]

Jim Knight: The Department, working closely with the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority, has been in consultation with a wide range of stakeholders to take forward our proposals to look at ways of increasing stretch and challenge to test the abilities of the brightest students, as set out in our 14-19 White Paper on Education and Skills.

Further Education Courses

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many students did not complete further education courses they had started in each year since 1997. [84255]

Bill Rammell: Figures on students failing to complete courses are best expressed as percentages. Some poorer quality data are excluded, so although rates are accurate, numbers are less so.

Retention rates in Further Education (FE) institutions and completion rates in Work Based Learning (WBL) are published annually in a Learning and Skills Council Statistical First Release:

(http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000649/index.shtml)

FE figures for 1999/00 (the earliest year for which comparable data are available) to 2004/05 (the latest year for which data is published) are shown in the following table:

	Proportion of courses not completed in FE institutions Percentage
1999/2000	22
2000/01	20
2001/02	17
2002/03	17
2003/04	15
2004/05	14

WBL figures for 2000/01 to 2004/05 are shown in the following table:

	Proportion of full frameworks not completed in WBL Percentage
2001/02	76
2002/03	73
2003/04	69

Gap Years

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the university non-completion rate is of students having taken (a) a deferred entry gap year, (b) a non-deferred entry gap year and (c) no gap year. [84646]

Bill Rammell: Since 1996/97, information on projected non-completion rates for higher education students has been published annually, initially by the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) and latterly by the Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA), in "Performance Indicators in Higher Education". The latest available figures giving overall non-completion rates for students starting full-time first degree courses in England are shown in the table. Figures that separately identify students who have taken gap years are not available. Figures published in 2005 by the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) showed that in 2003 the UK had one of the lowest higher education non-completion rates among OECD countries.

Percentage of UK domiciled full-time first degree students expected neither to obtain an award nor transfer English higher education institutions

Students starting courses in:	Non-completion rate (%)
1998/99	15.8
1999/2000	15.9
2002/03	13.9

"Performance Indicators in Higher Education", published by HESA.
For 2002/03, the projected outcomes summarise the pattern of movements of students at institutions between 2002/03 and 2003/04 and give the outcomes that would have been expected from starters in 2002/03 if progression patterns were to remain unchanged over the next few years. The HESA data show the proportion of entrants who are projected to: obtain a qualification (either a first degree or another undergraduate award); transfer to another HEI; neither obtain a qualification nor transfer (i.e. fail to complete the course).

Higher Education (Staff Pay)

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether his Department has estimated the likely cost to public funds of the proposed pay offer to higher education staff in each of the next three years; how much of the additional funding of this sector over the next three years the pay award will account for; and if he will make a statement. [81758]

Bill Rammell: Pay and conditions of service are subject to negotiations between the HE employers, their staff and their representative trade union bodies. The Government play no part in this. As such, determining the cost of the pay offer is a matter for individual institutions. Higher education receives funding from a variety of public and private sources. It is a matter for institutions, as autonomous bodies, to determine how they use the resources available to them. Public funding for 2008-09 and beyond will be determined through the comprehensive spending review.

The Universities and Colleges Employers Association (UCEA) has included estimates of the pay offer on its website (http://www.ucea.ac.uk/). UCEA's calculations estimate that the current pay offer will exceed the total additional income from variable fees, in steady state which we estimate will be £1.35 billion by 2010.

Language Colleges

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many registered language colleges were in operation in England in (a) June 2004, (b) June 2005 and (c) June 2006. [83086]

Bill Rammell: The Department does not keep separate records on the number of registered language colleges in operation in England and Wales, and the information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

National Learning Grid

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on the decision to discontinue the national learning grid. [84161]

Jim Knight: The National Grid for Learning (NGfL) was always a time limited strategy which was developed to deliver 1. a structure/architecture of educationally valuable content on the internet and 2. ICT infrastructure, services, support and training. The NGfL strategy evolved into the ICT in Schools strategy and now the e-Strategy: Harnessing Technology—Transforming Learning and Children's Services, published in 2005 and lodged in the House of Commons Library. The e-Strategy takes the NGfL vision a step further looking at a much bigger picture for improving the entire education system and children's services capacity to make best use of technology to achieve better outcomes for children and learners.

The British Educational and Communications Technology managed the NGfL portal as part of the overall NGfL strategy. A combination of overlaps with other online services—e.g. Teachernet and Curriculum Online, and the need to simplify brands and service, resulted in BECTA integrating the NGfL portal into its own online service. Visitors can search for specific educational content both through the BECTA online service and Curriculum Online.

School Playing Fields

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many school playing fields there were in (a) 1997 and (b) 2006; and how many square feet this represented in each year; [84247]

(2) how many square feet of property belonging to educational establishments has been sold since 1997. [84244]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not held centrally. Data on school playing fields were requested from local authorities in 2001 and 2003 but the data were incomplete and of variable quality, and it was not possible to accurately assess the number and area of school playing fields.

Since 1998, there have been 228 applications that involve the sale of an area of grassed land that could comprise a school sports pitch. Of these, 43 have been rejected or the application withdrawn. 175 applications have been approved and the other 10 are still under consideration. Of the 175 approved applications, 73 related to playing fields at closed or closing schools. Prior to 1998 there was no regulation of the sale of school playing fields at local authority controlled schools.

Special Educational Needs

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the name and address is of each special needs school in (a) Essex and (b) each London borough; who the head teacher of each is; how many pupils are attending each; when each opened; and when each was last inspected by Ofsted. [83201]

Jim Knight: A table detailing the name and address of each special needs school in (a) Essex and (b) each London borough; together with the name of the head teacher; the number of pupils; the opening date; and when each was last inspected by Ofsted has been placed in the Commons Library.

The figures given in the table include special schools maintained by local authorities together with non-maintained special schools and independent special schools. Ofsted have included the inspection type for the hon. Member's information. It is regretted that data on school opening dates are not available to the Department prior to 1997.

University Lecturers

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the percentage change in the number of university lecturers was in each year since 1997. [84291]

Bill Rammell: The latest available information is given in the following table:

Academic staff[1] employed in English Higher Education Institutions

Academic year	Number of academic staff	% change
1997/98	104,470	—
1998/99	106,210	1.7
1999/2000	110,615	4.1
2000/01	114,060	3.1
2001/02	116,785	2.4
2002/03	119,495	2.3
2003/04 [2]	124,140	—
2004/05	134,130	8.0

[1] Staff figures are on the basis of staff with active contracts in the reporting period.
[2] Up until 2002/03 the staff record only included academic staff with a full-time equivalent greater than 25 per cent; as from 2003/04, all academic staff were included. Therefore, the numbers for 2003/04 and 2004/05 are not directly comparable with those for earlier years. Figures have been rounded to the nearest 5.

Vocational Education and Training

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which Vocational Education and Training projects in the UK are funded by the EU. [84252]

Phil Hope: The European Commission provided funding between 2000-05 to UK organisations for 840 work placement and 129 development projects under the EU's vocational training programme, Leonardo da Vinci.

The European Social Fund supports a range of labour market activities including vocational education and training. In 2000-06 it contributed to the funding of 20 Structural Fund programmes in the UK.

Women Engineers

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimate he has made of the number of women studying engineering at university level in each of the last 10 years; what employment opportunities in engineering were available on completion of their course; and if he will make a statement. [82351]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I have been asked to reply.

The Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA) report the number of women studying engineering at university level over the past 10 years in England as follows:

	Number of women
1995/06	8,385
1996/07	7,586
1997/08	7,435
1998/99	7,500

	Number of women
1999/2000	7,530
2000/01	7,895
2001/02	7,810
2002/03	7,352
2003/04	7,910
2004/05	7,325

This represents a small increase, from 10.6 per cent. in 1994/95 to 11.8 per cent. in 2004/05, in the proportion of women studying engineering subjects.

With respect to employment opportunities in engineering the Destinations of Leavers data collected by HESA over the period 1994/95—2003/04, show that:

12.1 per cent. of female graduates in engineering entered "work only";

15.8 per cent. went into a "combination of work and further study"; and 14.5 per cent. went into "further study only".

The key initiative of the Government's strategy on women in Science, Engineering and Technology (SET) is the UK Resource Centre for Women in SET (UKRC), funded through the Office of Science and Innovation (OSI) with £6.7 million from the science budget plus £325,000 for a dedicated undergraduate package from the Department for Education and Skills (DfES).

The Centre carries out a co-ordinated strategy, including:

championing best practice;

a recognition scheme for good SET employers;

raising the profile of women in SET;

support for women undergraduates (DfES have committed £315,000 to this project);

supporting SET returners;

setting up the GetSET database (this holds contact details for women who have agreed to promote SET topics and the role of women in SET);

co-ordinating the work of the women in SET organisations; and pump-priming for innovative initiatives e.g. mentoring and networking.

There are also examples of positive action by employers. Where Women Want to Work.com website scrutinises the gender policies of companies against a set of attributes one of which is innovative recruitment. Some examples are:

Accenture ensures women are represented at all the graduate recruitment events and at interviews and they try and allocate female buddies at those reaching second round interviews for guidance to ensure the process is as supportive as possible;

BP run gender and diversity workshops for interviewers and assessors involved in university and other recruitment;

Shell advertise in Cosmopolitan magazine to broaden their market reach and invited university careers advisers and female students to a women's network conference and in 2005 held Working Women's Roadshows at four UK universities.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps the Government are taking to encourage women to enrol on national engineering programmes at university. [84170]

Bill Rammell: The Government are committed to increasing the number of young people taking science and maths at advanced level and progressing to study science and engineering at university and beyond. 'The Science and Innovation Investment Framework 2004-2014: Next Steps' published in March 2006, sets out a range of measures to support this. We have invested just over £7 million in the UK resource centre for women in science, engineering and technology (SET) which aims to increase the participation of women in SET subjects and funds a number of initiatives to increase the participation of women on undergraduate engineering programmes.

Written Questions

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of written questions from hon. Members to his Department in the last 12 months were answered within (a) one week, (b) two weeks and (c) one month of tabling. [84395]

Bill Rammell: The Department's parliamentary question tracking system is unable to break the data down as requested. The answer could be supplied only at a disproportionate cost.

Departments aim to ensure that Members receive a substantive response to their named day question on the named day, and endeavour to answer ordinary written questions within a working week of being tabled.

PRIME MINISTER

Advertising Campaigns

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Prime Minister what advertising campaigns his office has run since July 2004; and what the (a) date and (b) cost was of each. [81922]

The Prime Minister: For these purposes my office forms part of the Cabinet Office. I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary for the Cabinet Office (Mr. McFadden) today.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Fraud Trials

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Solicitor-General what the Government's plans are for the use of juries in fraud trials. [83876]

The Solicitor-General: We intend to press ahead with our proposals to change the system for serious and complex fraud trials so that they can be heard without a jury to ensure justice is done.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Correspondence

Mr. Ian Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry when he expects to be able to respond to the letter to his predecessor of 7 November 2005 from the hon. Member for Esher and Walton on the campaign by the RSPCA to reduce the noise levels of fireworks. [82676]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Due to an error the hon. Member's letter has been mislaid. A copy of the letter has been requested and we will respond shortly, with an apology for the delay.

Nuclear Power Stations

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the implications for energy policy of the cracks in the reactor core at (a) Hinkley Point and (b) other advanced gas-cooled reactor power stations. [84118]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 10 July 2006]: None. Decisions about the continued operation of each of the UK's AGRs are a matter for the operator, British Energy, subject to rigorous regulatory oversight by the independent safety regulator, HSE's Nuclear Installations Inspectorate.

Post Office Charging

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans the Post Office has to change the basis of their charging for letter delivery to take account of letter size rather than weight; and if he will make a statement. [84051]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Postcomm, the independent regulator for postal services has agreed that Royal Mail's new Pricing in Proportion (PiP) will be introduced from August 2006.

Royal Mail is mounting a substantial publicity campaign to explain the changes. Postwatch, the consumer body and Postcomm will be monitoring the implementation closely to safeguard the interest of customers.

Post Office Services

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry why small post offices are no longer able to provide television licences; and if he will make a statement. [84052]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The BBC awarded "Paypoint" the contract for over-the-counter sales of television licences. The decision was a commercial one made by the BBC as the television licensing authority looking to the interests of licence fee payers and seeking to ensure the best deal for the public in this capacity.

TREASURY

Advance Market Commitment

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) which G8 countries support the Advance Market Commitment concept; [83988]

(2) which organisations have made representations to his Department (a) in support of and (b) against the Advance Market Commitment concept; [83993]

(3) what representations he has (a) made to and (b) received from his G8 counterparts on implementing the pilot Advance Market Commitment confirmed by the Italian Finance Minister at the G8 Finance Ministers' meeting in June; [83994]

(4) what progress has been made towards the launch of an Advance Market Commitment pilot project by the end of 2006; [83995]

(5) what funds the UK has allocated for the G8 commitment for the launch of an Advance Market Commitment pilot project by the end of 2006; and if he will make a statement. [83996]

Ed Balls: The UK has been working with other G8 countries on Advance Market Commitments (AMCs), which are feasible, innovative, and cost-effective market-based tools in the fight against global disease and poverty. Working with the World Bank and GAVI, the Global Alliance for Vaccines and Immunization, the G8 have conducted extensive outreach and consultation with stakeholders and experts in the global health community. At their June Meeting in St. Petersburg, G8 Finance Ministers stated that they look forward to a successful launch of the AMC pilot project by the end of this year. The cost of a pilot AMC will be determined following the choice of disease and further technical discussions with partner countries.

Arms Imports

Nick Harvey: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 13 June 2006, Official Report, column 5767W, on AK-47s, what UK custom entry clearance has been issued to Procurement Management Services Ltd. for the import into the UK from Bosnia of assault rifles and other types of small arms since June 2003. [83922]

Dawn Primarolo: Due to taxpayer confidentiality HMRC cannot provide the information requested.

Bank Accounts

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many and what proportion of adults in (a) Beverley and Holderness and (b) the East Riding of Yorkshire currently have a bank account; and if he will make a statement. [84649]

Ed Balls: The most recent data available that allow assessment to be made of the number of households with no access to a bank account are the Family Resources Survey from 2002-03. This indicates that 8 per cent. of households in the United Kingdom had no bank account of any kind. This equated to 1.9 million households containing around 2.8 million adults. These data are broken down to Government Office regional level. This shows 9 per cent. of households in Yorkshire and the Humber were unbanked.

In December 2004, the Government and the banks agreed to work together towards the goal of halving the number of adults in households with no access to a bank account of any kind and of making significant progress within two years. The Financial Inclusion Taskforce has been asked to monitor progress. The Taskforce recently made its first annual report, which concluded that steady progress has been made towards the goal but also encouraged banks to continue to address the difficulties faced in opening a bank account.

Child Trust Fund

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the total amount spent on advertising Child Funds was in each financial year since their introduction. [83501]

Ed Balls: Advertising for the Child Trust Fund began in January 2005.

The total media spend on advertising the Child Trust Fund (including media buying fees and excluding VAT) was as follows:

Financial Year	Spend (£ million)

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many children were eligible to receive a voucher for a child trust fund in each financial year since their introduction. [83572]

Ed Balls: The Child Trust Fund became operational from the start of 2005-06 and all children born on or after 1 September 2002 with a child benefit award are eligible. The number of children eligible, by complete financial year, to receive a Child Trust Fund voucher is in the table.

Financial year	Eligible children (Thousand)
2002-03	395
2003-04	687
2004-05	680
2005-06	[1]644

[1] Provisional.

Civil Service

Ian Lucas: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many civil service posts have been reduced in each UK civil service Department in Wales under the terms of the efficiency programme announced in the July 2004 spending review. [83721]

Mr. Timms: HM Treasury does not centrally hold data showing which Departments have made work force reductions in Wales as part of the SR04 efficiency programme. Departments are responsible for managing their work force strategies and for implementing their SR04 work force reduction targets.

Ian Lucas: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many of the UK civil service post reductions announced in the July 2004 spending review will be made in Wales by 2008. [83732]

Mr. Timms: HM Treasury does not centrally hold data showing which Departments intend to make work force reductions in Wales as part of the SR04 efficiency programme. Departments are responsible for managing their work force strategies and for implementing their SR04 work force reduction targets.

Ian Lucas: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the net change will be in the number of civil service posts in Wales in each of the Departments within which posts are being transferred in accordance with the Lyons Review. [83733]

Mr. Timms: HM Treasury does not centrally hold information on the net number of civil servants employed in Wales broken down by Department.

However by April 2006 more than 1,600 posts had been relocated to Wales in accordance with the Lyons Review. This included more than 1,100 DWP posts, 200 Home Office posts, 150 ONS posts and more than 100 HMRC posts. Of the 1,600 relocated posts, 510 have moved to Wrexham.

Customs National Strike Force

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many times members of the Customs National Strike Force have visited Wales in each year since 2003. [84594]

Dawn Primarolo: The number of times members of the Customs National Strike Force have visited Wales since 2003 are:

	Visits
2004-05	4
2005-06	5

Customs Officers (Wales)

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many customs officers (a) are based in Wales and (b) have responsibility for Wales but are based outside Wales. [84595]

Dawn Primarolo: The information is as follows;

(a) At 1 April 2006 the full time equivalent number of staff based in Wales and on the former HM Customs and Excise payroll was 592.7

(b) This information is not available.

Death Certificates

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 29 June 2006, Official Report, column 580W, on death certificates, under what circumstances a correction to the death register can legitimately be made (a) before a death register has been completed, (b) after a death register has been deposited with the Superintendent Registrar for a district and (c) at any other point; and who is entitled to authorise such a correction. [83675]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Dennis Roberts, dated 11 July 2006:

The Registrar General for England and Wales has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question pursuant to the Answer of 29th June 2006, Official Report, column 580W, on death certificates, under what circumstances a correction to the death register can legitimately be made (a) before a death register has been completed, (b) after a death register has been deposited with the Superintendent Registrar for a district and (c) at any other point; and who is entitled to authorise such a correction. I am replying in her absence. (83675)

The only circumstances in which a correction to the death register can legitimately be made is if it can be shown that it contains incorrect information. This is applicable regardless of whether the registrar of births and deaths or the Superintendent Registrar has custody of the register.

Local registration officers have some powers of correction depending on the nature of the error, e.g. they can correct a simple copying mistake. More serious errors, e.g. a major change that might affect the identity or status of a person or event requires the authority of the Registrar General.

Where an error is found in a death entry compiled from information supplied by a Coroner following an inquest, the registrar or Superintendent Registrar may not correct anything, other than a copying error in the register, without receiving either an amended or fresh certificate from the Coroner. However, where the error relates to the cause of death this can only be corrected if the Coroner's inquest is quashed and a new inquest is held. Only if the death was originally registered on the basis of a coroner's certificate after inquest adjourned, and the Coroner then resumes the inquest, may he or she certify to the registrar or Superintendent Registrar an amendment to the cause of death.

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer under what circumstances a registrar can register the death of an individual whose death is still subject to (a) an inquest by a coroner and (b) an inquiry that has led to the adjournment of a coroner's inquest under section 17A of the Coroners Act 1988; what legislation determines these circumstances; and whether these circumstances are unchanged from July 2003. [83734]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Dennis Roberts, dated 11 July 2006:

The Registrar General for England and Wales has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning under what circumstances a registrar can register a death of an individual whose death is still subject to (a) an inquest by a coroner and (b) an inquiry that has led to the adjournment of a coroner's inquest under section 17A of the Coroners Act 1988; what legislation determines these circumstances; and whether these circumstances are unchanged from July 2003. I am replying in her absence. (83734)

A death which is subject to an inquest by a coroner can only be registered once the inquest has concluded or been adjourned. In either circumstance the coroner is required to send a death certificate to the registrar. Sections 11, 16 and 17 of the Coroners Act 1988 contain the relevant provision. On receipt of the certificate the death can be registered under section 23 of the Births and Deaths Registration Act 1953. There have been no changes to the relevant legislation since 2003.

Departmental Artwork

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the 10 most expensive pieces of artwork are which are owned or held by his Department; what the value is of each; and who the owner is of each. [83571]

John Healey: The 10 most valuable pieces of artwork are three antique silver ink stands valued at £200,000 each, and seven antique silver candle holders valued at £60,000 each, all of which are owned by the Treasury.

These pieces of artwork are reported as part of the net book values disclosed in the Departmental Resource accounts for 2005-06.

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the total amount spent by his Department on (a) mobile phones and (b) secure mobile phones was in each year since 1997. [83491]

John Healey: I refer to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Chipping Barnet (Mrs. Villiers) on 16 January 2006, Official Report, column 1157W.

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was spent on overseas travel by employees of his Department in the last year for which figures are available. [83503]

John Healey: For the cost of overseas travel for the Treasury in 2005-06, including Ministers' travel, I refer to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Shipley (Philip Davies) on 12 June 2006, Official Report, column 926W.

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was spent on refurbishments and building work in his private office in each year since 1997. [83506]

John Healey: All of the space occupied by the Treasury in 1 Horse Guards Road was refurbished in a project that was completed in 2002. The cost of this work is not available by individual offices.

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was spent on departmental refurbishments in his Department in each year since 1997. [83513]

John Healey: The costs of the refurbishment of the Treasury building at 1 Horse Guards Road were given in answer to the hon. Member for South Norfolk (Mr. Bacon) on 5 February 2002, Official Report, column 841W.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was spent on cavity wall insulation in his Department in each financial year since 1997-98. [83575]

John Healey: Nothing. The Treasury building at 1 Horse Guards Road has solid walls.

Departmental Wine Cellar

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether his Department has its own wine cellar. [83783]

John Healey: The Treasury does not have a wine cellar.

Energy Audit

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the last time was that an energy audit was conducted in his Department; and if he will place a copy of the results of that audit in the Library. [83508]

John Healey: Energy usage in the Treasury building at 1 Horse Guards Road is monitored on a regular basis as part of an environmental management system that is certified to ISO 14001 standards.

Energy Efficiency

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the total amount spent on energy efficiency measures in his Department's buildings in London was in each year since 1997. [83502]

John Healey: This information is not readily available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Export Control

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what budget HM Customs has allocated to policing the Export Control Act 2002 in 2006-07; how many personnel are engaged in policing the Act; and of what type. [84367]

Dawn Primarolo: HM Revenue and Customs does not allocate a separate budget to policing the Export Control Act 2002. HMRC personnel are multifunctional and deal with a wide range of different controls under UK and EC Regulations. On 25 May 2006, HMRC advised the Quadripartite Select Committee that in any one year between 60 and 100 staff years were expended on enforcing strategic export controls. This includes personnel involved in criminal investigation, intelligence, detection, policy advice, entry-processing, and local and national compliance.

Financial Literacy

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he has had with representatives of Citizens Advice on financial exclusion; and what partnerships he is aiming to put in place to improve financial literacy in (a) schools and (b) wider society. [84498]

Ed Balls: My department has regular contact with Citizens Advice on financial inclusion issues.

Improving financial literacy is being taken forward through the FSA led National Strategy for Financial Capability. The FSA is working in partnership not only with Government, but also with the financial services industry and the voluntary sector, including Citizens Advice, to create a step change in financial capability in schools and wider society.

Gross National Product

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the gross national product was at (a) (i) current and (ii) constant prices, (b) factor cost and (c) market price in each year since 1976. [83454]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 11 July 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question requesting gross national product (GNP) annual data going back to 1976. I am replying in her absence. (83454)

Under the current system of national accounts introduced in the UK in September 1998 (based on the European System of Accounts 1995), the concept of gross national product was replaced by that of gross national income (GNI). Additionally the concept of "factor cost" is no longer used and GNI figures are only available at market prices.

Table A shows the most recent estimates for GNI in both current prices and volume terms.

Table A

Health Statistics (Yeovil)

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the most recent rate is of (a) cancers and (b) stroke in (i) Yeovil constituency, (ii) Somerset county and (iii) the South West. [83388]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 11 July 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what the most recent rate is of (a) cancers and (b) stroke in (i) Yeovil constituency, (ii) Somerset county and (iii) the South West. I am replying in her absence. [83388]

A: Cancers—incidence

The latest available rates for newly diagnosed cases of cancer (incidence) are for the year 2003. Incidence rates are not available centrally for parliamentary constituencies. Cancer incidence rates for all malignant cancers excluding non-melanoma skin cancer for 2003 are given in Table 1 for (i) Somerset South local authority, (ii) Somerset county and (iii) the South West government office region.

B: Stroke—incidence

There is no complete register of stroke cases. Information is available centrally on emergency admission to hospital from the NHS Hospital Episode System (HES), and on death registrations.

Figures on emergency admissions to hospital for strokes can be found on the Clinical and Health Outcomes Knowledge Base website: http://www.nchod.nhs.uk/. (Table reference numbers: 10C_5281SR7CM_04-V2 (males) 10C_5281SR7CF_04-V2 (females)). Figures are available for England, Government Office Regions, Strategic Health Authorities, Local Authorities and Primary Care Organisations. The latest year for which data are available is for the financial year 2003/04.

C: Cancers and stroke-mortality

Mortality rates for parliamentary constituencies cannot be provided because population estimates are not available for these areas. Figures in Table 2 are provided for the local authorities making up the requested constituency.

The introduction of ICD-10 for coding cause of death in England and Wales in 2001 means that data for cancer are not completely comparable with data for years before this date. The effect of the change in classification in 2001 on deaths from these causes is described in a report published in May 2002: Office for National Statistics. Results of the ICD-10 bridge coding study, England and Wales, 1999. Health Statistics Quarterly 14 (2002), 75-83.

Table 1: Incidence rates[1] per million population for all malignant cancers[2] registered in Somerset South local authority, the county of Somerset and South West government office region, 2003

	All cancers excluding nmsc
Somerset South	3,861
Somerset	3,752
South West	3,890

[1] Rates per million population standardised to the European Standard Population.
[2] "All malignant cancers" are defined by codes C00-C97 excluding non-melanoma skin cancer (nmsc) code C44 in the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD 10).

Table 2: Death rates[1] for cancer and stroke[2] for Somerset South local authority, the county of Somerset and South West government office region[3], 2004[4]

	Death rates
	Cancer	Stroke
Somerset South	1,583	449
Somerset	1,637	488
South West	1,664	539

[1] Rates per 1,000,000 population standardised to the European Standard Population.
[2] The cause of death was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) The codes used are listed:
Cancer (malignant neoplasms)—C00-C97
Stroke(cerebrovascular disease)—160-169
Deaths were selected using the original underlying cause.
[3] Usual residents of this area.
[4] Deaths registered in each calendar year.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the most recent death rate from heart disease was in (a) Yeovil constituency, (b) Somerset county and (c) the South West. [83393]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 11 July 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking what the most recent death rate from heart disease was in (a) Yeovil constituency (b) Somerset county and (c) the South West. I am replying in her absence. (83393)

Mortality rates for parliamentary constituencies cannot be provided as requested because population estimates are not available for these areas. The latest year for which figures are available is 2004 and these are given in the following table.

Death rates[1] from coronary heart disease[2] for South Somerset local authority, Somerset County and South West Government Office Region[3], 2004[4]

	Coronary heart disease
Somerset South
Somerset	841
South West	931

[1] Rates per 1,000,000 population standardised to the European Standard Population.
[2] The cause of death was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10). The codes used are listed:
Coronary heart disease—ICD-10 120-125
Deaths were selected using the original underlying cause.
[3] Usual residents of these areas.
The local authority of South Somerset comprises the whole of Yeovil constituency plus part of Somerton and Frome constituency. Data for the county of Somerset excludes figures for the unitary authorities of Bath and North East Somerset and North Somerset, created in 1996.
[4] Deaths registered in 2004.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the most recent (a) teenage pregnancy rate and (b) life expectancy was in (i) Yeovil constituency, (ii) Somerset county and (iii) the South West. [83394]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 11 July 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking what the most recent (a) teenage pregnancy rate and (b) life expectancy was in (i) Yeovil constituency, (ii) Somerset County and (iii) the South West. (83394)

(a) Information on teenage conceptions is routinely published for local authorities and strategic health authorities. Figures cannot be provided by Parliamentary Constituency because of the risk of disclosing individual's information, due to small differences in boundaries between the Parliamentary Constituency and the local authority.

The most recent year for which figures are available is 2004 and these are shown in the table below. Figures for 2004 are provisional.

(a) Teenage conception rates for South Somerset LA[1], Somerset county and the South West, 2004[2]

Area	Rate
South Somerset LA	32
Somerset county	32
South West	34

(b) Life expectancy at birth (years) by sex, for South Somerset LA[1], Somerset county and the South West, 2002-04[3]

	Males	Females
South Somerset LA	78	82
Somerset county	78	82
South West	78	82

[1] The local authority of South Somerset comprises the whole of Yeovil constituency plus part of Somerton and Frome constituency.
[2] Conceptions for 2004 are provisional.
[3] Results are based on deaths registered in 2002-04 and mid-year population estimates for these years.

HM Revenue and Customs Offices

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment has been made of the effects on compliance of (a) closing and (b) reducing staff at local HM Revenue and Customs offices; and if he will make a statement. [83446]

Dawn Primarolo: In the 2004 Spending Review, the Government set HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) challenging performance targets for the years 2005 to 2008. They have also been set stretching targets to achieve resource efficiencies following the merger of the two former tax departments in April 2005. HMRC is making good progress against all these objectives, as outlined in their Spring Departmental Report 2006 (Cm 6832).

Master Netting Agreement

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 31 January 2006, Official Report, column 403W, on the Master Netting Agreement, whether the European Central Bank Guidelines preclude the Government from changing its own practices as the baseline upon which its own guidelines have been set. [84203]

Ed Balls: No, as ECB guidelines are applicable to members of the Eurosystem and are not binding on the UK while it is not a member of the system.

Ministerial Group on Youth Volunteering

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to his announcement in the pre-Budget report on the Ministerial Group on youth volunteering, how many times the group has met; who (a) attends and (b) chairs this group; and how many meetings have been attended by Rod Aldridge. [83509]

Dawn Primarolo: The ministerial group on youth volunteering has met twice. The Chancellor chairs this group and the Departments represented at these meetings have been the Department for Education and Skills, Home Office, the Cabinet Office, the Department for Work and Pensions, the Department for Communities and Local Government and the Department for Culture, Media and Sport. Rod Aldridge has not attended any of these meetings.

National Insurance Contributions

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many complaints were received about the National Insurance Contribution system in each of the last nine years. [84345]

Dawn Primarolo: Correspondence about complaints is dealt with across HMRC and the information requested is not available, except at disproportionate cost.

Official Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on how many occasions he has visited each region in an official capacity in the last 12 months. [83909]

John Healey: The Chancellor has made a number of visits to the regions and nations of the United Kingdom and will be continuing to do so over the coming months.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many written answers to parliamentary questions to the Department have taken longer than 10 days to answer in each year since 1997. [83395]

John Healey: 10 days has no particular significance in relation to the answering of parliamentary questions. Indeed, as any period of 10 days will include at least one weekend and may also include other days on which the House of Commons is not sitting and questions cannot be answered, it is a meaningless yardstick against which to measure performance in answering questions. With that important caveat, the information sought by the hon. Member for each session since 1997-98 is given as follows:

Session	Answers given after more than 10 days	Percentage of all answers
1999-2000	584	22.1
2000-01	389	32.2
2001-02	1,237	22.5
2002-03	940	25.7
2003-04	701	22.1
2004-05	279	20.1
2005-06[1]	1,164	23.6

The proportion of written answers given by the Treasury within the timescales set by the House (that is to say, on the nominated day in the case of named day questions and within a working week of tabling for ordinary questions) in each of the last three sessions is as follows:

Session	Percentage Named day questions	Ordinary questions
2005-06[1]	72.6	79.0

[1] Up to 30 June 2006

People Trafficking (Wales)

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many suspected cases of illegal people trafficking in Wales were reported to HM Customs and Revenue in each year since 2003. [84592]

Dawn Primarolo: HMRC do not keep records of such cases in searchable form; but the Department pass all relevant reports to the UK Immigration Service or the Serious Organised Crime Agency who have responsibility for countering people trafficking, for follow-up action.

Pound Sterling (Purchasing Power)

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the purchasing power is of the pound sterling compared with (a) 1976, (b) 1986 and (c) 1996. [83802]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 11 July 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning what the purchasing power is of the pound sterling compared with (a) 1976, (b) 1986 and (c) 1996.1 am replying in her absence. (83802)

A pound in May 2006 is worth:

(a) 20p compared with its 1976 purchasing value;

(b) 49p compared with its 1986 purchasing value; and

(c) 77p compared with its 1996 purchasing value.

Recycling

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recycling facilities are available in his Department; and how many categories of waste are recycled by his Department. [83580]

John Healey: Recycling facilities for nine categories of waste are available at various locations within the Treasury building at 1 Horse Guards Road.

Tax Avoidance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he is taking to reduce tax avoidance opportunities for company directors drawing salary in dividend form; and if he will make a statement. [83422]

Dawn Primarolo: As stated at Budget 2006, the Government believe that all individuals and businesses must pay their fair share of NICs and tax, irrespective of legal form. The Government will continue to review the tax and NICs systems to ensure that this is the case and will bring forward proposals for discussion that are consistent with simplicity for compliant businesses, support for businesses in their aspirations to grow and maintaining the attractiveness of the UK as a business location.

Taxation Revenue

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much revenue was raised in taxation in each year since 1976; and what the budget surplus or deficit was in each year. [83455]

Mr. Timms: Data on tax revenues and Government borrowing from 1976 onwards are available in the "Key Fiscal Aggregates" table and Table C1 in the Public Finances Databank. This is available on the Her Majesty's Treasury website at:

http://www.hm_treasury.gov.uk/economic_data_and_tools/finance_spending_statistics/pubsec_finance/psf_statistics.cfm

Unemployment

Chris Ruane: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) total and (b) percentage rate of (i) unemployment, (ii) long-term unemployment and (iii) youth unemployment was in each constituency in each of the last 10 years, grouped by region. [79828]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 11 July 2006:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about unemployment. (79828)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles statistics of unemployment for local areas from the annual local area Labour Force Survey (LFS) and Annual Population Survey (APS) following International Labour Organisation definitions.

Tables 1 to 5, attached, show estimates for each parliamentary constituency in great Britain, for the 12 month periods ending in February from 1997 to 2004 from the annual LFS, and for the 12 months ending December 2004 from the APS. Table 1 shows the number of unemployed aged 16 and over resident in each constituency; Table 2 shows unemployment rates; Table 3 shows the number of long-term (more than 12 months) unemployed; Table 4 shows the number of unemployed aged 16 to 24 and Table 5 shows the unemployment rate for those aged 16 to 24.

These estimates, as with any from sample surveys, are subject to a margin of uncertainty. Changes in the estimates from year-to-year should be treated with particular caution.

ONS also compiles statistics for local areas of people claiming Jobseeker's Allowance (JSA). Tables 6 to 10, attached, show annual averages for claimants of JSA resident in each constituency in the United Kingdom for 1996 to 2005. Table 6 shows the total number of claimants; Table 7 shows the number of claimants as a proportion of the resident population of working age; Table 8 shows the number of claimants claiming JSA for over 12 months; Table 9 shows the number claiming over 12 months as a proportion of the working-age population and Table 10 shows the number of people aged 18 to 24 claiming JSA. Proportions for the 18 to 24 age group are not available for parliamentary constituencies.

Since the information is so extensive, copies of these tables have been placed in the House of Commons Library.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Correspondence

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to reply to the letter from Mrs. Pauline Penton, a constituent of the hon. Member for Sittingbourne and Sheppey, sent on 19 January. [82128]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 3 July 2006]: I apologise for the delay in replying to my hon. Friend's letter. I will ensure a reply is sent as a matter of urgency.

Illegal Waste

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what volume of waste he estimates was illegally fly-tipped in each year since 1992, broken down by the nature of the waste. [84067]

Mr. Bradshaw: DEFRA has worked with the Environment Agency to establish Flycapture, the national database on fly-tipping, which has been operational since April 2004. Before this database was established, no national data were available on illegal waste disposal or fly-tipping.

Flycapture collects summary data by waste-type, land-type and size of incident at local authority level only. Data on the volume of waste fly-tipped are not available, however English waste collection authorities reported a total of 891,170 incidents between April 2004 and March 2005. It is also important to note that the data are probably an underestimate and will increase as authorities get better at collecting and reporting fly-tipping incidents.

The number of incidents of fly-tipping by waste-type, reported to Flycapture by English local authorities between April 2004 and March 2005, are set out in the following table:

Waste Type	Number of incidents
Animal Carcass	7,481
Green	38,700
Vehicle Parts	14,651
White Goods	52,933
Other Electrical	17,664
Tyres	22,028
Asbestos	2,627
Clinical	2,0.53
Construction/Demolition/ Excavation	46,483
Black Bags Commercial	36,265
Black Bags Household	234,144
Chemical Drums Oil Fuel	3,734
Other Household	256,923
Other Commercial	24,529
Other	130,445

The number of incidents of fly-tipping by size, reported to Flycapture by English local authorities between April 2004 and March 2005, are set out in the following table:

Size of Fly-tip	Number of incidents
Single Item	315,818
Car Boot or Less	242,335
Small Van Load	189,793
Transit Van Load	94,132
Tipper Lorry Load	19,441
Significant Multi Loads	5,699

Pet Fairs

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what action he proposes to take in respect of pet fairs following the case of R (Haynes) v Stafford borough council. [84041]

Mr. Bradshaw: My Department is considering any implications the recent judgment may have on our proposals to regulate pet fairs.

Recycling

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he plans to take steps to bring forward penalties for those who fail to recycle their household waste. [82793]

Mr. Bradshaw: Local authorities have existing powers, under section 46 of the Environmental Protection Act 1990, to require householders to put waste for collection, including recyclables, in specified receptacles. Where householders fail, without reasonable excuse, to follow the authority's instructions on these matters, they can be issued with a fixed penalty notice under section 47ZA or be liable to prosecution and a summary fine upon conviction under section 46 of the Act.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what advice he offers to local authorities in dispute with households over misuse of new waste and recycling collection schemes. [83260]

Mr. Bradshaw: Getting people to change their behaviour is a challenge, and recycling is no exception. While there are millions of dedicated recyclers, there are still too many families and people who are not engaging with local waste reduction, recycling and composting schemes.

The Government are continuing to investigate options for influencing householder behaviour, and we have recently supported a series of local authority pilots to encourage householders to reduce, re-use and recycle their waste through positive incentives.

Ultimately, if mediation doesn't work and a householder either fails to put the correct material into the appropriate receptacle for collection, or fails to comply with other instructions with regard to putting the receptacle out for collection or bringing it back onto their property after it has been emptied, the local authority can prosecute them for breaches of section 46 of the Environmental Protection Act 1990. These offences carry a maximum fine of £1,000. In addition, the Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Bill contains proposals for the issuing of fixed penalty notices to those breaching sections 46 and 47 of the 1990 Act.

Water Companies

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what allowance Ofwat made for each water company for capital works in each of the last five years for which figures were available; and what the value was of the capital works completed by each water company in each year. [83535]

Ian Pearson: Ofwat makes assumptions on the capital investment required by companies at each price review for the ensuing five-year period.

Ofwat has only published annual expenditure against its assumptions for 2004-05. The following table gives information for the five-year period 2000-05. Ofwat will publish data for 2005-06 later this year, following analysis of the June return submission from companies.

The regulatory regime provides incentives for companies to out-perform Ofwat's assumptions. Companies retain the benefit from these savings until the next price review when price limits are reset and Ofwat takes the savings into account.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Breastfeeding Facilities

Mr. Hancock: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission if he will make a statement on the availability of breastfeeding facilities for (a) hon. Members and (b) members of the public in the House. [83762]

Nick Harvey: Breastfeeding facilities are available for hon. Members in the Family Room off the Lower Waiting Hall and, if greater privacy is needed, in first aid rooms in various parts of the Estate. For members of the public there is a baby care room just off the Upper Committee Corridor, and there are baby changing facilities off the Lower Waiting Hall and off the Upper Committee Corridor. Details of these facilities for visitors are set out in a leaflet issued by the Serjeant at Arms. These facilities are also open to hon. Members and staff.

Child Care Vouchers

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission whether the Commission plans to reconsider the decision not to offer child care vouchers to hon. Members; and if he will make a statement. [83663]

Nick Harvey: The issue of provision of child care vouchers for hon. Members was considered in passing by the domestic committees and by the Commission in 2003 in the context of the Childcare Feasibility study, which was principally concerned with staff and Members' staff. I understand that an informal view was taken that hon. Members were sufficiently well remunerated to meet their own child care costs. The Commission has no plans to consider this issue, as any such provision would fall on the House of Commons: Members Estimate which is not the Commission's responsibility. It would be for the House to decide on any such service, on the basis of proposals from the Leader of the House.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Debt Cancellation

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the impact of alleviation of debt in Africa on health and education provision in Africa; and if he will make a statement. [83121]

Hilary Benn: Debt relief provides long-term, predictable resources for countries to spend on improving health and education. Recipients of debt relief under the heavily indebted poor countries (HIPC) initiative report their expenditure on reducing poverty (health, education, and rural and agriculture investments for example) and these expenditures increased from an average of 6 per cent. of GDP in 1999 to 9 per cent. of GDP in 2005 in the 29 countries receiving HIPC debt relief.

There is good evidence that debt relief benefits health and education provision. For example, after receiving debt relief in 2000, Ghana increased its expenditure on education, increasing the net enrolment ratio of seven to 13-year-olds by 8 per cent. and the number of secondary schools from 937 to 1,024 by 2004. In Tanzania, debt relief received in 2001, helped to increase the number of children in primary schools by over 50 per cent., build almost 2,500 new primary schools and recruit 28,000 extra teachers. If this rate of progress continues, Tanzania will meet the goal for universal primary education in the next couple of years—significantly ahead of the target date of 2015. In Uganda, debt relief has helped make possible the removal of user fees for healthcare. As a result, the number of new out-patient consultations has increased from 9.3 million in 1999-2000 to 24.5 million, indicating a doubling in the use of health services over five years. Immunisation coverage has increased from 41 per cent. in 1999-2000 to 89 per cent. in 2004-05.

When fully implemented, the new multilateral debt relief initiative (MDRI) will provide over US$50 billion of debt cancellation to up to 43 countries. Zambia has used some of its savings under MDRI to abolish health user fees in rural areas, allowing thousands of poor people to access free health care. Ghana also intends to use some of its MDRI savings for health and education, and we expect other countries to make similar commitments when their new budgets are agreed.

Health and education in Nigeria will also benefit as a result of its recent debt deal at the Paris Club. Approximately $1 billion a year that would have been spent by Nigeria on debt service will now be channelled through a poverty reduction fund with a focus on the millennium development goals. As a result, the federal health and education budgets have received an additional $167 million and $143 million respectively in 2006. The Nigerian Government have agreed that this will help to employ an additional 120,000 teachers and put 3.5 million more children into school.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Queen's Counsel

21. Richard Ottaway: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many solicitors have applied for appointment as Queen's Counsel under the new selection system. [83867]

Vera Baird: 12 solicitors applied for Silk in the current round.

Members of Parliament (Scottish Constituencies)

29. Mr. Khabra: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will make a statement on the right of hon. Members representing constituencies in Scotland to speak and vote in this House on issues related to England. [83875]

32. Mr. Cox: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will make a statement on the right of hon. Members representing constituencies in Scotland to speak and vote on issues related to England. [83879]

Bridget Prentice: All hon. Members who have taken the oath are entitled to speak and vote on any issue before the House.

Electoral Administration Bill

30. Mr. Betts: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what options for data sharing are available to electoral registration officers; and whether this will change under the provisions in the Electoral Administration Bill. [83877]

Bridget Prentice: Electoral registration officers are currently able to:

inspect and take copies of any records kept by their own council, and to inspect and take copies of records kept by any registrar of births and deaths.

The Electoral Administration Bill does not change this. However, what it does do is require electoral registration officers when compiling the electoral register to make full use of their powers to inspect those records which they are permitted to inspect.

33. Mr. Harper: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what measures she will put in place to monitor the effect of the proposed changes to Services voting in the Electoral Administration Bill. [83880]

Bridget Prentice: In the Electoral Administration Bill the Government inserted a requirement that the MOD would keep a record of the electoral registration information of service personnel. This record will provide statistical information that will be used to provide monitoring on a continuous basis.

Postal Voting

31. Kitty Ussher: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs when she will make it an offence to make a false application for a postal vote. [83878]

Bridget Prentice: The Electoral Administration Bill creates a new electoral offence of falsely applying for a postal vote. We are currently considering implementation of the provisions in the Bill with a view to having them in force in time for the May 2007 local elections.

Freedom of Information

34. Mr. Gauke: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many Freedom of Information complaints have been referred to the Information Commissioner. [83881]

Vera Baird: The Information Commissioner is an independent body created by statute. On 1 June 2006, the Information Commissioner had received 3,521 complaints since the implementation of the Freedom of Information Act. This includes complaints made under the Environment Information Regulations.

Office for Legal Complaints

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will make a statement on the proposed Office for Legal Complaints. [83874]

Bridget Prentice: One of the main proposals in the draft Legal Services Bill which was published by the Government on 24 May is to set up an independent Office for Legal Complaints (OLC). The OLC, which will replace the various complaints services run by the different legal professional bodies, will deal with consumer complaints about legal service providers who are regulated by bodies or organisations that are authorised by the proposed new oversight regulator, the Legal Services Board (LSB). Where things go wrong, the OLC will be empowered to order appropriate redress to consumers.

Action against Medical Accidents

Mr. Baron: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what fees were paid in the last year to Action against Medical Accidents (AvMA); what services were provided by AvMA in respect of such fees; and whether the engagement of AvMA to provide services was the subject of a tendering process. [84586]

Vera Baird: During 2005-06, the Legal Services Commission (LSC) paid £529 to AvMA as part of a three year contract with Community Legal Service Direct to review the content of the advice leaflet, 'Medical Accidents'. The value of the contract fell below the threshold necessary for tendering.

Court Service

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will make a statement on the recent performance of the Court Service in (a) Southend-on-Sea and (b) Essex. [83771]

Ms Harman: The information is as follows:

Departmental Staff

Roger Berry: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many disabled staff in her Department received support through the Access to Work scheme (a) in each of the last five years and (b) in 2006-07. [82222]

Vera Baird: The DCA has recently appointed a team of dedicated local disability advisers based in the regions who assist in ensuring that the required reasonable adjustments, including specialist equipment and support, for people with disabilities are provided. Those advisers provide support and advice to individuals in making applications to Access to Work.

It is not possible to confirm the precise number of individuals assisted under the Access To Work scheme over the last five years without incurring disproportionate costs, as there is no central record held within DCA.

With effect from 1 October 2006, Access to Work funding will no longer be available to employees of Central Government Departments, and DCA will be responsible for financing any required reasonable adjustments for its own employees.

The Office of Disability Issues (ODI) will be monitoring the situation to ensure that there is no detriment to current and future employees who are disabled.

Elections

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many complaints she has received from residents of West Lancashire in relation to being unable to vote in (a) local, (b) general and (c) European elections in each year since 1997. [83645]

Bridget Prentice: As far as DCA records show, we have received one item of correspondence complaining that postal ballot papers did not arrive for the 2004 elections in Lancashire. No other correspondence from West Lancashire relating to being unable to vote has been received, and my Department does not hold any information on this subject prior to 2001.

Judiciary

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what steps she is taking to increase diversity in the judiciary. [84582]

Ms Harman: The Judicial Diversity Strategy was announced to Parliament on 17 May 2006, Official Report, column 57WS and sets out how the Department for Constitutional Affairs, the Judicial Appointments Commission and the judiciary will work together to increase the diversity of the judiciary.

The strategy will: promote judicial service and widen the range of people eligible to apply for judicial office; encourage a wider range of applicants, to ensure the widest possible choice of candidates for selection; promote diversity through fair and open processes for selection to judicial office solely on merit; and, will ensure that the culture and working environment for judicial office holders encourages and supports a diverse judiciary and increases understanding of the communities served.

Legal Aid

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what representations she has received about eligibility for legal aid in criminal cases. [84563]

Vera Baird: I have regular and constructive dialogue with stakeholders, including members of the legal professions, MPs and members of the public, about eligibility for criminal legal aid. For example, I received a number of representations on this point in response to the recent consultation exercise on the draft regulations under the Criminal Defence Service Act.

Legal Profession (Complaints)

John Mann: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what performance standards she has set for the length of time a consumer complaint to the Law Society takes to be resolved, including where the solicitors refuses to accept decisions of the Law Society Adjudication Panel and the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal. [83899]

Bridget Prentice: I will reply to the hon. Member as soon as possible.

Substantive answer from Bridget Prentice to John Mann:

None. The legal profession is independent and self-regulating, and as such I have no powers to set targets for the Law Society. However, the Lord Chancellor and Secretary of State appointed Ms Zahida Manzoor, as the Legal Services Complaints Commissioner (LSCC) in February 2004. The LSCC has powers to set targets for the handling of complaints, make recommendations about the complaints systems, require the Law Society to submit a plan for complaints handling; and impose a fine if the Law Society fails to meet the agreed plan for improvements in complaints handling.

John Mann: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs (1) how many solicitors have refused to accept decisions of the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal in each of the last 10 years; [83900]

(2) what rights of redress are available to those who have won decisions at both the Law Society Adjudication Panel and the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal; [83901]

(3) what sanctions are available against solicitors who refuse to accept decisions of the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal; [83902]

Bridget Prentice: I will reply to the hon. Member as soon as possible.

Substantive answer from Bridget Prentice to John Mann:

Depending on the matter in question, respondents before the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal have an automatic right, under the Solicitors Act 1974, of appeal to the Master of the Rolls or the High Court. The information on the number of appeals against decisions by the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal for the last 10 years is unavailable, however, the figures for the last five years are as follows:

	Number of appeals
2001	9
2002	8
2003	10

In the absence of an appeal, an order of the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal is immediately enforceable as a High Court order. If the solicitor is fined by the Tribunal, the fine is enforced by the Treasury Solicitor—through the courts if necessary. If the solicitor is struck off or suspended from practice, that decision would be immediately recorded with the Law Society and the solicitor would be unable to practise. In the event that he continued to practise as a solicitor following an order suspending him or striking him off the Roll of Solicitors, he would be committing a criminal offence under the Solicitors Act and may be prosecuted in the criminal courts.

The Law Society's Adjudication Panel deals with redress issues and is able to award complainants up to £15,000 in compensation. If a solicitor refuses to accept a decision of the Adjudication Panel, including a decision that he pay compensation, it is open to the Society to prosecute him/her before the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal. The Tribunal cannot award compensation, but if the Law Society has previously awarded compensation, the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal can make that award enforceable as a High Court order.

Magistrates Courts

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what assessment she has made of the facilities available for victims and witnesses in magistrates courts. [84525]

Ms Harman: In 2005 "Priority Minimum Standards" (e.g. availability of reading materials, witness room routinely cleaned) and "Desirable Minimum Standards" (e.g. en-suite toilet facilities in witness waiting rooms, video/DVD equipment provided) for witness accommodation were developed and defined in consultation with key stakeholders. To establish how existing waiting facilities met up to these standards, an audit was undertaken in all Crown and magistrates courts in July 2005. Subsequent to that audit, additional funding totalling over £3 million was allocated between the regions to improve facilities where the standards were not being met. A further audit will be undertaken during the summer to ascertain how witness waiting rooms measure up against the standards now that this funding has been spent.

Online Census Project

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs which contractors tendered by 30 June 2006 for work on the English and Welsh 1911 Online Census Project; and what her timetable is for appointment of a contractor. [83694]

Vera Baird: The National Archives sought expressions of interest from suppliers through a notice published in the Official Journal of the European Union, the closing date for which was 4 July 2006.

Conduct of this procurement process will follow normal practice on commercial confidentiality.

All expressions of interest received by the closing date will be evaluated on 10 July 2006.

On 11 July 2006 potential suppliers who are shortlisted will be invited to participate in the Competitive Dialogue process to be used for the contract.

It is anticipated that a contract will be awarded in January 2007.

Notification will be made in accordance with the Public Services Regulations.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Business Statement

Mr. Amess: To ask the Leader of the House how many (a) Ministers, (b) hon. Members, (c) staff of hon. Members, (d) Members of the House of Lords, (e) officials in Government Departments and (f) members of the public receive his office's weekly business statement by e-mail; how much it costs per week to (i) prepare and (ii) distribute, broken down into (A) officials' time and (B) other costs; if he will place a copy of each edition from this Session in the Library; and if he will make a statement. [82467]

Mr. Straw: This information is not held in the format requested.

To date, a total of 813 people have subscribed to the business statement newsletter. Much of the work in issuing the newsletter is largely automated.

The average cost of officials' time to upload the business statement each week is £3.99, with a further 67p being incurred in distributing it, ie £4.66 in all. This task forms part of the core duties of the private office staff who maintain the website.

All previous business statements are freely available on the Office of the Leader of the House website at www.commonsleader.co.uk.

I note that the hon. Member has so far not subscribed to the newsletter. If he wishes to do so, he can register at: www.commonsleader.co.uk/output/Page637.asp.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Benefit Fraud

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many suspected cases of benefit fraud were (a) referred to and (b) investigated by his Department in each year since 1997. [73444]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is in the following table:

Benefit fraud referrals and investigations by DWP

	Referrals received	Referrals accepted for investigation
1997-98	1,363,608	925,501
1998-99	1,332,367	923,853
1999-2000	887,788	564,543

Benefit Payments

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he plans to take to ensure that employers are willing to recruit people who have been claiming incapacity benefit or employment and support allowance. [78364]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Government are determined to ensure that people on incapacity benefits and, when it is introduced, those on the new employment and support allowance, should not be written off as incapable of work and consigned to a life on benefit.

Since 1997, we have set about implementing the most profound extension of disability rights this country has ever seen. In October 2004, we extended the employment provisions of the Disability Discrimination Act (DDA) 1995 to provide protection against discrimination for an additional 600,000 disabled workers. A further seven million jobs and one million employers were brought within the scope of the employment provisions of the Act. We conduct regular media campaigns aimed at helping employers and service providers to recognise their obligations under the DDA, as well as the commercial benefits of providing accessible services.

Our Pathways to Work pilots work with employers to help people on incapacity benefits gain and retain employment. They have already shown significant success in getting people off benefit and into employment. Over the next two years we will be extending Pathways to Work to every part of Britain. As a result of this investment, we will be bringing new hope and opportunity to some of the most disadvantaged members of our community.

We are currently putting together a cohesive and wide-ranging strategic action plan, developed in consultation with employers and employer organisations that are committed to increasing job opportunities for disabled people. We will work closely with them and other key stakeholders to build and deliver the action plan. Proposals include: an employer-led campaign to better engage employers to recruit and retain disabled people at both corporate and local levels; continued work to increase awareness of the Disability Discrimination Act; addressing and challenging negative employer attitudes; and building employer support for the Government's Welfare Reform agenda. Our aim is not just to challenge and change attitudes, but also to make a real difference to the recruitment of disabled people as well as their retention and progression within organisations.

On 4 July 2006 we launched our Welfare Reform Bill which set out our plans for welfare reform.

Carbon Emissions

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent estimate he has made of the carbon emissions of his Department; what commitment he has made to reducing such emissions; and if he will make a statement. [81049]

Mr. Plaskitt: In the last Sustainable Development in Government Report, published in December 2005, DWP was reported as having produced 62.1 thousand tonnes of carbon for the year 2004-05.

The Department is committed to meeting the new Sustainable Operations targets announced by the Prime Minister and the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on 12 June. We continue to work closely with our Estates Partners, Land Securities Trillium, to identify and introduce more energy saving measures across the estate, and to maintain, and where possible increase, our use of renewable energy. Currently 60 per cent. of our electricity is sourced from renewable sources, although this is not factored into the figures reported above. We have also begun work with the Carbon Trust to increase awareness among staff, encouraging them to make best use of energy saving devices and features where they are available, and to adopt improved housekeeping practises.

Child Support

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when the Child Support Agency will reclaim from the Treasury monies wrongly deducted for maintenance payments from a constituent of the hon. Member for Birkenhead (reference PCU/156249/RVI/LCP, case number, 321030812331). [83038]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 6 July 2006]: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to my right hon. Friend.

Letter from Hilary Reynolds, dated 11 July 2006:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As he is currently unavailable, I am responding on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when the Child Support Agency will reclaim from the Treasury monies wrongly deducted for maintenance payments from a constituent of the hon. Member for Birkenhead (reference PCU/156249/RVI/ LCP case number 321030812331.

As details about individual cases are confidential I have written to you separately about this case.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what earnings from the Territorial Army are exempt from child support calculations; and if he will make a statement; [83236]

(2) in what circumstances a father is exempt from paying child maintenance as a result of receiving payments from the Territorial Army. [83238]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 6 July 2006]: Members of the Territorial Army are not automatically exempt from paying child support maintenance. Child support calculations do not take account of any payment made in respect of the performance of duties as a member of the Territorial Army. Such members, in common with those who serve communities in similar occupations such as lifeboat crew or part-time firefighters, tend to undertake these activities in addition to their main occupation. Child support will take account of earnings from that main job and any other net weekly income.

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what the total backlog was of all Child Support Agency cases relating to West Lancashire residents operating under the old scheme of calculation which are due to transfer to the new scheme but where the transfer has not yet taken place in each month since March 2003; [83661]

(2) what the total backlog of cases is relating to West Lancashire residents awaiting processing under the new Child Support Agency scheme calculation for each month since June 2003. [83662]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information requested is not currently available at the geographical levels requested.

Helen Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions on what dates members of the child support redesign team in his Department have had meetings with individuals and organisations from outside his Department in the last 12 months. [83160]

Mr. Plaskitt: Sir David Henshaw began his redesign work in February 2006 and is due to report back to the Secretary of State before the summer recess. During this time Sir David and his team are meeting with a variety of individuals and organisations from outside the Department. Representations made to Sir David will be detailed in his report.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will instruct the Child Support Agency to reconsider its decision not to provide child maintenance for Mrs. Lynda Gould of Buckfast on the basis that her son's father is in the Territorial Army; and if he will make a statement. [82614]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 4 July 2006]: The Secretary of State cannot get involved in individual cases and therefore is unable to instruct the Child Support Agency to reconsider its decision.

Members of the Territorial Army are not automatically exempt from paying child support maintenance. Child support calculations do not take account of any payment made in respect of the performance of duties as a member of the Territorial Army. Such members, in common with those who serve communities in similar occupations such as lifeboat crew or part-time firefighters, tend to undertake these activities in addition to their main occupation. Child support will take account of earnings from that main job and any other net weekly income.

We are making further investigations into how the relevant legislation should be applied in this case. The chief executive of the Child Support Agency will write to the hon. Member and his constituent once we have completed that investigation.

Disability Living Allowance

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many individuals diagnosed with myalgic encephalomyelitis qualified for disability living allowance in (a) 2004 and (b) 2005. [81967]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 6 July 2006]: For the year ending 30 November 2004, there were about 2,400 new awards for customers whose primary disabling condition is recorded as myalgic encephalomyelitis, chronic fatigue syndrome or other post viral conditions. For the year ending 30 November 2005, there were about 2,800 new awards.

Gateway

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he plans to roll out the new Gateway to help parents resolve child support cases. [77979]

Mr. Plaskitt: This is an area to be considered by Sir David Henshaw in his redesign.

Industrial Injuries Disablement Benefit

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what factors were taken into account when deciding that industrial injuries disablement benefit should be treated as income for means-tested benefits. [81751]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Industrial injuries disablement benefit is compensation paid for the degree of disablement suffered as a result of an industrial accident. In all the income-related benefits, income from all sources is normally taken into account, with disregards only where special considerations apply. Consequently, this benefit is taken fully into account when determining entitlement to an income related benefit.

Other benefits such as attendance allowance and disability living allowance are available to customers if as a result of their injuries they require personal care. As such these benefits are disregarded when entitlement to means-tested benefits is assessed.

Mesothelioma

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what guidelines have been issued on awarding compensation to mesothelioma sufferers who have been exposed to asbestos in the workplace; and if he will make a statement. [78572]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 19 June 2006]: The Department introduced regulations and procedures on 29 July 2002 that deem people suffering from mesothelioma to be 100 per cent. disabled from the outset. The change ensures that customers receive the maximum amount of IIDB from the earliest possible date. Procedures were also changed to remove the need for a separate examination on behalf of the Department where the disease has already been diagnosed.

These changes are in addition to the existing fast track arrangements for dealing with claims from customers suffering from other asbestos related diseases and ensure that they are dealt with maximum speed and minimum intervention from the Department.

They can also make a compensation claim under the Pneumoconiosis (Workers' Compensation) Act 1979 where there is no relevant employer to pursue.

In relation to civil claims for damages, the Judicial Studies Board publishes guidelines for the judiciary on the assessment of damages for pain and suffering in personal injury cases. These are based on decided cases and do not cover any damages that may be awarded for other elements of the claim, such as loss of earnings. The latest edition of the guidelines indicates that an award of between £45,000 and £70,000 is appropriate in mesothelioma cases.

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the numbers of (a) women and (b) men who suffer from mesothelioma due to exposure to fibres brought home on the clothes of spouses, or other family members, exposed to asbestos at their workplace. [83751]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 10 July 2006]: The information on which to base such an estimate is not available.

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether those who suffer from mesothelioma due to exposure to fibres brought home on the clothes of spouses, or other family members, exposed to asbestos at their workplace are eligible to make claims under the Pneumoconiosis etc. (Workers' Compensation) 1979 Act scheme; and if he will make a statement. [83756]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 10 July 2006]: People who have contracted mesothelioma as a result of fibres brought home by others exposed at the workplace are not eligible for a payment under the Pneumoconiosis etc (Workers' Compensation) Act 1979.

New Deal

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment his Department has made of the uptake of the New Deal in rural communities; and if he will make a statement. [82033]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Although no formal research has been undertaken to assess the uptake of new deal in rural areas, we estimate that more than 273,000 people in rural areas[1] have started new deal for young people, new deal 25 plus and new deal for lone parents and over 172,000 have gone into work through these programmes. This ratio of programme starts to people into jobs through new deal compares favourably with the national average.

New deal for young people and new deal 25 plus are mandatory programmes and people who are required to attend these programmes will be expected to do so, regardless of the area in which they live. However, new deal advisers are required to identify any barriers or issues participants in new deal may have in getting back to work, and this can include, where appropriate, addressing barriers that may be inherent in living in rural areas.

Jobcentre Plus providers must deliver provision in locations that are easily accessible to participants, and where particular difficulties exist, for example in more rural areas, they must address these. Participants also receive help with their travel expenses for attending the Jobcentre Plus office on days when they would not normally be required to, or when attending new deal provision.

Information is not available on the take up of new deal in rural areas for new deal 50 plus, new deal for disabled people and new deal for partners.

We produce an internal annual Rural Proofing Report for the Countryside Agency; this includes examples of how the Department has addressed service delivery issues in rural areas. A copy of the Countryside Agency's Rural Proofing Report for 2004-05 is available in the Library.

[1] Information from the new deal database has been calculated using data on postcodes from the National Statistics Rural and Urban Classification of Output Areas.

Occupational Pensions

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether his Department sought the support of the Irish Government with respect to an application for a temporal limitation procedure in relation to the Amicus-Community trade union occupational pensions case. [78020]

James Purnell [holding answer 16 June 2006]: No. But my officials have had discussions about the case with their counterparts in Ireland and exchanged copies of their written observations on the case, as the outcome of the case is as important in Ireland as it is in the UK.

Pension Credit

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of (a) pensioner households and (b) female pensioners in (i) Wales, (ii) Scotland and (iii) England he estimates will be eligible to claim pension credit in (A) 2010, (B) 2015, (C) 2020 and (D) 2025; and if he will make a statement. [69546]

James Purnell: The information is not available in the format requested. The information available is shown in the following table.

The numbers eligible for pension credit in the future are subject to a range of uncertainties and a number of factors including policies on uprating different benefits. Table 1 shows the projected proportion of pensioner households eligible for pension credit under the proposals contained in the White Paper "Security in retirement: towards a new pensions system." This information is not available below Great Britain level.

Table 1: Projected proportion of pensioner households who may be eligible for pension credit for selected years under the White Paper proposals

	All pensioner households (percentage)
2010	44
2015	44
2020	41

Notes:

1. Projections of the proportion of pensioner households eligible for pension credit are sensitive to modelling assumptions and to projected changes in the distribution of pensioner incomes.
2. The estimates shown here are the mid-points of projections taken from two separate micro-simulation models. Modelling of the reform proposals does not include any increase in private saving from the introduction of personal accounts, which would reduce the numbers eligible for pension credit.
3. These projections assume: continued earnings uprating of the standard guarantee credit; earnings uprating of the savings credit threshold from 2008 to 2014; earnings uprating of the basic state pension from 2012; price uprating of the maximum savings credit from 2015; measures to improve coverage of the basic state pension described in the White Paper.
4. Estimates account for equalisation of state pension age between 2010 and 2020. Estimates assume that the minimum age at which people can claim pension credit rises in line with women's state pension age.
5. Estimates are calibrated to the mid-points of the 2004-05 National Statistics range estimates of non-eligibility to pension credit, which adjust 2004-05 Family Resources Survey data to take account of possible biases in reporting. Although the estimates here are not presented as ranges, they are subject to a margin of uncertainty.
6. Estimates of the number of pensioners eligible under the proposed reforms are not available for each country. As explained above, the estimates are based on taking the average of results from two separate models, a process which would render the breakdown of estimates at sub-Great Britain level unreliable.

Christine Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many residents in each electoral ward in Chester City were receiving pension credit in the last period for which figures are available. [82671]

Pension Rights (Bankruptcy)

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 28 March 2006, Official Report, column 865W, on pension rights (bankruptcy), what the difference is between recent unpaid contributions to occupational pension schemes or state scheme premiums which are preferential and amounts due to pension schemes that is not preferential which is unsecured; and if he will make a statement. [81949]

James Purnell: The unpaid contributions that are preferential debts are employee contributions to an occupational pension scheme that have been deducted from the employee's pay during the last four months preceding the relevant insolvency date but that have not yet been paid over by the employer to the scheme, and unpaid employer contributions in respect of the 12-month period preceding the relevant insolvency date.

Under the Pension Schemes Act 1993 the trustees of a scheme can claim a payment in lieu of certain unpaid employee and employer contributions from the redundancy payments directorate of The Insolvency Service, which is an executive agency of the Department of Trade and Industry. Payments are made from the National Insurance Fund and if such a payment is made, the right to recover the relevant contributions from the insolvent employer's estate transfers from the pension scheme to the Secretary of State. Any sum owed on account of a state scheme premium is also a preferential debt.

All other amounts due from an insolvent employer to a pension scheme are unsecured. This includes debts due under section 75 of the Pensions Act 1995,which provides a mechanism for the trustees to be able to take action to pursue a statutory debt due from employers to defined-benefit schemes in certain circumstances including the insolvency of the employer.

Pensions

Sandra Osborne: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the net present cost is of reinstating the pensions of those pension scheme members covered by the recommendations of the parliamentary ombudsman. [68591]

James Purnell: We estimate that the net present value of the cost of implementing the ombudsman's proposals is between around £2.9 billion and £3.7 billion.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will estimate the total change in revenue to the Treasury resulting from the cancellation of contracted-out rebates to defined contribution schemes in each year from 2012. [78001]

James Purnell: The estimated total change in public finances resulting from the abolition of contracting out for defined contribution schemes is shown in the following table.

Over time, the costs to S2P and the reductions on the rebate are expected to be broadly equivalent. The abolition of contracting out leads to a cash-flow effect from the rebate, balanced by a longer term increase in state second pension liabilities. The increase in the cost of the state second pension will arise as people retire, many of them after 2050. Therefore, some of the increase in cost is not captured in this table.

Pensions Reform

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to his oral statement on pensions reform of 25 May 2006, Official Report, columns 1648-51, what estimate he has made of the difference in the number of people who would have gained a full basic state pension under the Turner proposals based on residency and the number based on his proposed reform of the contributory principle. [75157]

James Purnell [holding answer 5 June 2006]: The Government's White Paper on pension reform, "Security in retirement: towards a new pensions system", published on 25 May, includes estimates of those achieving a full basic state pension under the Pensions Commission's residence accruals approach compared to our proposed reform of the contributory principle.

Estimates of the proportion of people reaching state pension age with full basic state pension under the current system, the Pension Commission's residence accruals approach, and our proposed reform are shown in Figure 3.vi of "Security in retirement: towards a new pensions system", and in the following table.

Table 1: Proportion of people reaching state pension age with full basic state pension under different schemes

			Percentage
	Current system without reform	Residence accruals from 2010	30 qualifying years for new retirees from 2010
Men
2010	90	90	95
2015	85	85	95
2050	75	95	95
Women
2010	55	55	70
2015	70	75	85
2025	80	85	95
2050	80	95	95

Notes:
1. Based on projections from the Government Actuary's Department's Retirement Model, GB.
2. Estimates are approximate and reflect the inevitable uncertainty associated with any future projection. Figures shown have therefore been rounded to the nearest 5 percentage points.
3. Under residence accruals, 44 years are required for a full basic state pension.
4. Women's entitlement is based on their own and their husband's contributions, i.e. includes entitlement using the inheritance and substitution rules for widows and divorced women.

Statistical Returns

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what statistical returns and reports were rendered by local employment offices during the period January to June 2006; how many civil servants were involved in (a) collating, (b) processing and (c) publishing the statistics; and what the estimated total cost was. [83805]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The information is not collected centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Winter Fuel Payment

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cost would be of extending eligibility for the £200 winter fuel payment to those non-pensioner households who qualify for cold weather payments. [82910]

James Purnell: We estimate the cost of extending winter fuel payments to non-pensioner households that are eligible for a cold weather payment would be £300 million in 2005-06.

Notes:

1. Estimates based on DWP benefit data and rounded to the nearest £50 million.

2. Actual receipt of a cold weather payment depends on local temperatures as well as meeting qualification conditions. Here it is assumed that all eligible cases would receive a payment of £200.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Departmental Emissions

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent estimate she has made of the carbon emissions of her Department; what commitment she has made to reducing such emissions; and if she will make a statement. [81335]

Angela E. Smith: The Department for Communities and Local Government was created on 5 May 2006 and no assessment of its carbon emissions has yet been undertaken. In 2005 the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister produced approximately 5,000 tonnes of absolute carbon emissions, as reported in the 2005 Sustainable Development in Government report. These emissions were calculated through the energy consumed across the estate; this included ODPM properties and Executive Agencies but excluded the Government Office Network.

In addition to the carbon emissions produced through energy consumption, ODPM produced an estimated further 360 tonnes of absolute carbon emissions through business road travel in 2005.

The Department of Communities and Local Government has commenced a carbon management programme with the Carbon Trust. The aim of the programme is to mobilise the Department and its agencies in working towards reducing carbon emissions across the estate. This will involve identifying energy efficiency quick wins, as well as devising long-term strategies and business opportunities to ensure increased sustainability across all areas of business.

Design for Manufacture

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the estimated minimum life span is of the properties constructed for the Design for Manufacture competition. [83078]

Angela E. Smith: All bidders were required, as a minimum, to comply with all current building regulations and demonstrate that all of the homes they were proposing to build through the competition would be able to obtain relevant third-party approvals, such as from the Council of Mortgage Lenders (CML), the Association of British Insurers (ABI) and building warranty agreements. This is normal industry practice, and assessments for mortgageability are commonly based on a 60-year minimum measure for life span. However, in addition, to ensure that we could explore the whole-life quality of the proposed dwellings the bidders were also required to prepare a table setting out maintenance and replacement costs in use for all homes built under the Design for Manufacture competition based on a period of 60 years.

Greater Manchester (Local Government)

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to introduce (a) an elected mayor, (b) an elected assembly and (c) other statutory forms of governance for the Greater Manchester City Region. [84081]

Mr. Woolas: Discussions are ongoing with Manchester and the other core cities regarding their business case proposals, following the summits that were held during 2005. Those business cases include options for devolving decision-making to the cities or city regions. We will further develop these ideas and associated thinking, including on individual local authority leadership, in the forthcoming Local Government White Paper.

Home Information Packs

Michael Gove: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what benchmarks have been established to measure the effectiveness of the pilots for home information packs. [65073]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

We are currently developing proposals for the dry run and will make an announcement before the parliamentary recess.

Planning Applications

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether (a) parish and (b) town councils have the power to delegate decisions on planning applications to a responsible councillor or officer. [84147]

Mr. Woolas: Parish and town councils have no powers to determine planning applications and are not therefore in a position to delegate decisions on applications to councillors or officers. Parish and town councils are entitled to be notified in writing of planning applications in their areas and make representations on them, following a written request to the local planning authority.

Second Homes

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans her Department has to introduce a second homes tax, as recommended by the Affordable Rural Housing Commission. [83409]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 10 July 2006]: The Department for Communities and Local Government has no plans to introduce a second homes tax. From April 2004, we have given councils the freedom to reduce the council tax discount on second homes from 50 per cent. to 10 per cent. In 2005-06 councils raised an additional £92 million to spend on local priorities by reducing the discount.

Sheree Dodd

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what payments her Department has made to Sheree Dodd out of public funds; and for what purposes. [83022]

Angela E. Smith: The terms of contracts between the Department and individuals are private matters. Sheree Dodd has been working as an interim head of news for the Department for Communities and Local Government while a full civil service recruitment process is completed. This is a short-term role and requires a person with expertise and recent knowledge of Whitehall.

Single Status Agreement

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will ensure that there is no aggregate national cash limit to the capitalisation of back payments due to local authority staff arising from the single status agreement. [83337]

Mr. Woolas: Revised guidance on the policy and procedures for capitalisation directions was issued on 26 June. This is available from the Department for Communities and Local Government website at:

http://www.local.communities.gov.uk/finance/capital/cappolpro.pdf

Sovereign Strategy

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on what dates over the last 12 months (a) she and (b) (i) Ministers and (ii) officials in her Department met a representative of Sovereign Strategy. [72342]

Angela E. Smith: On 18 November 2005 my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, then serving as Minister of Communities and Local Government, spoke on raising aspirations for young people in the North East at the Annual North East Economic Forum, organised by the University of Northumbria and Sovereign Strategy. I am not aware of Ministers holding other meetings with representatives of Sovereign Strategy during this period. Records are not held centrally of such contacts at official level. Any such contacts are conducted in accordance with the requirements of the Ministerial Code, Civil Service Code, Code of Conduct for Special Advisers and Guidance for civil servants on contacts with lobbyists and people outside Government.

Sustainable Communities Summit

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what reason her Department is cancelling the Sustainable Communities Summit in Manchester due to be held in February 2007; how much the event has cost, including cancellation fees. [83021]

Angela E. Smith: The Sustainable Communities summit that was to be held in Manchester in February 2007 has been cancelled for the following reasons:

1. DCLG is taking a new approach to stakeholder engagement. The DCLG is a new Department with a new remit and will be communicating its agenda in new ways.

1.1 The Department is of the view that the commercial sector is better placed to deliver large-scale events such as the summit. Previous summits in 2002 and 2005 were successful in raising awareness of the Sustainable Communities agenda with key stakeholders. The success of these summits and other similar events such as the Thames Gateway Forum means that it is the right time to seek private sector interest in running the summit.

1.2 As well as looking at how best to communicate through large events, the Department is planning a series of regional events to discuss how we can best work with the public, private and voluntary and community sectors to deliver sustainable communities.

The summit project has in total cost £291,000.

The cancellation element of the total cost will be in the region of £60,000 (the Department has yet to agree final costs with our contractors).

Third Sector

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the projected budget is for the Central-Local Government-Third Sector Engagement Board. [83095]

Mr. Woolas: There is no specific budget allocated to the Central-Local Government-Third Sector Engagement Board. Its secretariat and related policy work will be resourced within current departmental staffing.

Unitary Authorities

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which (a) local authorities and (b) groups of authorities have applied to be pilots for new unitary status; and if she will make a statement. [83935]

Mr. Woolas: Our approach to restructuring will be set out in the forthcoming White Paper which will be published shortly after the summer recess.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

BBC

Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions she has had with the BBC about the desirability of bringing BBC regions in line with Government regions; and if she will make a statement. [83987]

Mr. Woodward: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has had no discussions with the BBC about the desirability of bringing BBC regions in line with Government regions.

Departmental Staff

Roger Berry: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many disabled staff in her Department received support through the Access to Work scheme (a) in each of the last five years and (b) in 2006-07. [82223]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport received support through the Access to Work scheme for the following numbers of people:

		Number
	2004-05	3
	2005-06	2
(b)	2006-07	2

Engagements

Mr. Geoffrey Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she next plans to visit Coventry Cathedral. [83334]

Tessa Jowell: I have no specific plans to visit Coventry Cathedral. However when I am next in the West Midlands I would be pleased to do so.

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will list the official engagements of the hon. Member for St. Helens South from the date of appointment as Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State (Media and Tourism) to 14 July. [83484]

Mr. Woodward: The information is as follows:

I have undertaken the following public engagements:

12 July—O2

12 July—Historic Houses Association

I have also carried out a full schedule of engagements with internal stakeholders, other Ministers, MPs, DCMS sponsored bodies, cabinet committees and business with the EU commission.

Hyde Park Events

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will list the events held in Hyde park during the last 12 months for which an attendance fee was payable and for which an area of the park was enclosed; how much (a) income was generated and (b) expenditure was spent by the Royal Parks Agency relating to each such event; what arrangements are in place between the Royal Parks Agency and relevant local authorities to reduce the impact of these events on local residents; and whether payments were made to any local authority in relation to these events. [81328]

Mr. Lammy: The following table show the number of events that were held in Hyde park, the income derived from them and the cost to The Royal Parks (TRP).

Under the 2003 Licensing Act The Royal Parks are, from 24 November 2005, required to obtain a licence for events from the local authority. In the case of Hyde park, that is Westminster city council. It is for the local authority to set the limit on the number and size of events and any other conditions it feels relevant. In addition, TRP holds meetings with the local authority, police, transport and other emergency services to agree the arrangements for each event. Details like noise levels are subject to existing guidance and are monitored by the council and the promoter at each event.

In addition to day-to-day liaison with Westminster city council, TRP officials attend many meetings of residents and amenity societies, and write to local residents and neighbours advising them of the dates, times and other arrangements relating to events.

The only payment made to any local authority in relation to these events was the fee for the licence, which amounted to £48,100.

Events for which an attendance fee was payable by the public and an area of the park was enclosed, 1 April 2005 to 31 March 2006

Event 2005	Description	Income (fee) (£)	Expenditure (£)
Moonwalk—17 June	Charity sponsored walk around London streets, starting and ending in a large marquee in Hyde park	152,500	17,008

Official Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on how many occasions she has visited each region in an official capacity in the last 12 months. [83910]

Tessa Jowell: I have made 34 regional visits in the last 12 months. Details are given in the following table.

Regions	Times visited
London	12
Wales	1
Scotland	2
North West	4
South East	5
East	2
Yorks and Humber	1
West Midlands	3
North East	1
South West	3

Post Office

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions she has had with (a) other Government departments, (b) the BBC and (c) Post Office Limited on the effect on the sub-post office network of the loss of television licence renewal income. [82865]

Mr. Woodward [holding answer 6 July 2006]: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has had no such discussions. The award of the contract for over the counter sales of television licences is a commercial decision for the BBC (as television licensing authority). Prior to the announcement of the corporation's decision, DCMS officials had been briefed by the BBC, and liaised with officials at the Department of Trade and Industry.

Television Licences

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent representations she has received regarding the withdrawal of television licence savings stamps. [81927]

Mr. Woodward: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport had received 13 representations primarily about the withdrawal of TV licence savings stamps at the end of June 2006. A small number of representations about other aspects of the licensing system also referred to savings stamps but are not recorded separately. The Department has also answered two other recent parliamentary questions about the withdrawal of savings stamps.

Televisions, Leicester

Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many households in Leicester have television receiving equipment; and what proportion receive a signal from (a) Waltham television transmitter (BBC), (b) Sutton Coldfield television transmitter (BBC) and (c) other BBC transmitters. [83986]

Mr. Woodward: Nationally, an estimated 97.6 per cent. of households have television reception equipment. We do not have local figures for Leicester.

Most viewers in Leicester can get signals either from the Waltham transmitter or from a small transmitter in the city which relays Waltham's signals. The Sutton Coldfield transmitter does overlap Waltham across most of the city and there are a few parts (notably the Wigston area of the city and a section to the south-west of the city centre) where only Sutton Coldfield provides adequate signals.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Allegations against Teachers

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many incidences there have been of pupils making serious allegations against teachers in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years; and in how many of these cases the allegations were proved to be false or unfounded. [82701]

Maria Eagle: The Department does not collect the information on the basis requested.

The Department has undertaken an audit recently with all employing authorities to collect information about staff, both teaching and non-teaching, who have been suspended from duty following allegations of child abuse. This information has been collected to inform the work of a review group established to look at the use of precautionary suspension when allegations of child abuse are made against members of staff. I expect to receive a report of the findings, including an analysis of this data, and proposals for new guidance from the review group in the autumn and I intend to publish both the report and the proposals later this year.

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when preparatory work began in Northern Ireland for the 2011 Census; and what it will involve. [81859]

Mr. Hanson: Preparatory work for the 2011 Census began in Northern Ireland during 2003, in line with developments across the rest of the UK. The work involved includes (i) reviewing and evaluating key aspects of the 2001 Census operation, (ii) developing, testing and evaluating new topics/questions, enumeration procedures and statistical methodologies, (iii) procuring systems and services to assist with the data collection, processing and output phases of the Census and (iv) consultation with users. Proposals for the 2011 Census will be brought forward in a White Paper in 2008.

Child Services

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether the action plan for implementation of the Children's and Young People's Strategy will be subject to consultation. [83685]

Maria Eagle: I do not intend to consult publicly on the action plan for implementation of the 10-year Strategy for Children and Young People. My priority, as I indicated at the launch, is to publish the action plan as quickly as possible and then get on with the actions to achieve the six outcomes set out in the strategy. A draft action plan will be considered by the Strategy Planning and Review Group, established to oversee implementation. I will chair the group and membership will include key children's stakeholders. I will also seek the views of members of the All-Party Group, whom I meet with on a regular basis, prior to publication.

Departmental Staff

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many disabled staff Northern Ireland Government Departments have employed in each of the last 10 years. [80941]

Mr. Hanson: The information requested is as shown in the following table:

Staff employed by Northern Ireland Government Departments who have declared a disability at 1 January each year

1997	435	n/a	435

2006	1,409	10	1,419

n/a = Not applicable

Notes:

1. Table shows staff employed by NI Government Departments and departmental agencies and includes industrial staff, casual staff and Home Civil Service (HCS) staff employed in NIO. (Figures for NIO HCS staff prior to 2001 could not be made available within the timescale for this question.
2. Figures for 1997 and 1998 show those staff who were registered as disabled. Figures for 1999 to 2006 show those staff who declared a disability as defined by the Disability Discrimination Act 1995. It is impossible to say with authority whether all staff with disabilities have declared it; anecdotal evidence is that an unknown number has not.
3. In August 2000, the Northern Ireland civil service conducted a survey of staff and encouraged those staff who had a disability to declare it at that time. Since then all new staff have been required to declare whether or not they have a disability.

Derry Airport

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people from (a) Strabane district council area and (b) Limavady district council area have applied for jobs as (i) airport hands and (ii) fire fighters at city of Derry airport in the last six years; and how many from each council area were successful. [83028]

David Cairns: Employment policies and practices in relation to the airport are a matter for its owner, Derry city council.

I have asked the chief executive of Derry city council to write to the hon. Member with the information.

Domestic Rates

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has made of the average effective tax rate that will be levied from April 2007 under the new system of domestic rates; and if he will make a statement. [83011]

Mr. Hanson: It is estimated that the effective tax rate to be levied on households in Northern Ireland under the new discrete capital values system in April 2007 will be £6.33 for every £1,000 of capital value. This estimate is based on a 6 per cent. increase for the regional rate, which has already been announced in the draft Priorities and Budget 2006-08 and an assumption of a 6 per cent. increase in the average district council rate. District councils are wholly responsible for setting the district rate in each of the 26 council areas and this broad assumption is made against a background of a 5.8 per cent. average increase in district rates over the last three years.

In order to smooth the transition to the new system assistance will be provided through relief schemes, firstly for those facing significant increases and secondly for those on low incomes beyond the 20 per cent. of households that are already entitled to a full rebate under housing benefit.

FIFA World Cup

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which matches (a) he and (b) other Ministers in his Department attended at the FIFA World Cup 2006 in Germany in their ministerial capacity; at what cost to public funds; and with what contributions from third party organisations. [83628]

Mr. Hain: Neither I nor any member of my ministerial team attended any matches at the recent FIFA World Cup in Germany.

Financial Assistance (Political Parties)

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much has been paid per year to each political party in Northern Ireland under the financial assistance to political parties scheme; and whether this funding will end if there is no agreement for a power-sharing Executive by 24 November. [81486]

Mr. Hanson: The amount paid per year to each political party under the Financial Assistance to Political Parties Scheme as operated by the Northern Ireland Assembly is set out as follows.

In terms of future funding, I would refer my hon. Friend to the work plan published with the joint statement made by the Prime Minster and the Taoiseach on 29 June 2006, which stated that salaries and allowances for MLAs and financial assistance to parties would stop from 24 November if restoration does not occur by that date.

Further Education

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what funding has been allocated for further education colleges in the Province to provide tuition to those with (a) mental health difficulties and (b) learning disabilities in 2006-07. [83653]

Maria Eagle: The Department for Employment and Learning is unable to provide financial information in the format requested but would confirm that it has allocated total funding of £6,866,092 for the academic year 2006-07 to the FE sector in Northern Ireland towards provision for those students with learning difficulties and disabilities.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what criteria are used to categorise further education college courses as recreational rather than vocational. [83654]

Maria Eagle: When the course of study is identified by the further education colleges as not examined, or not leading to a qualification, it is categorised by the Department as "non-specified, non-examinable" and generally viewed as a hobby and leisure/recreational course.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans there are to withdraw funding to further education colleges in the Province for tuition of those with (a) mental health difficulties and (b) learning difficulties. [83729]

Maria Eagle: The Department for Employment and Learning has no plans to withdraw funding to further education colleges in Northern Ireland for tuition for those students with learning difficulties and disabilities.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what funding has been allocated to further education colleges in the Province for tuition of those with (a) mental health difficulties and (b) learning disability in each of the last five years. [83730]

Maria Eagle: The Department for Employment and Learning is unable to provide financial information in the format requested but would confirm that the total funding provided to the FE sector in Northern Ireland towards provision for those students with learning difficulties and disabilities in the last five years was as follows:

	Funding (£)
2006-07	6,866,092
2005-06	5,793,553
2004-05	6,318,568

2002-03	7,628,772

Knives

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many knives were recovered in each district council area in the Province during the recent knife amnesty. [83726]

Mr. Hanson: A total of 886 items were handed in during the recent knife amnesty in Northern Ireland. The numbers deposited in bins in each district council area were as follows.

	Number
Antrim	26
Ards	26
Armagh	22
Ballymena	29
Ballymoney	23
Banbridge	63
Belfast	102
Carrickfergus	31
Castlereagh	35

Lisburn	62
Magherafelt	11
Moyle	8
Newry and Mourne	8
Newtownabbey	46
North Down	48
Omagh	33
Strabane	7

The other 56 items were surrendered to bins managed by the harbour police and Ministry of Defence.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has made of the number of knives that are carried in Northern Ireland. [83727]

Mr. Hanson: It would be impossible to make an estimate of the number of knives carried in Northern Ireland. Knives are used in a variety of professions and for hobbies and pastimes such as camping and diving in a way that does not break the existing laws.

The Government are however determined to tackle the culture of carrying knives for illegal purposes. One way that we can judge the success of policies, campaigns and initiatives is to note their impact on the recorded crime figures where the use of a knife is involved.

Current initiatives that seek to address the culture of knife carrying among young people include the year-long public information campaign and the education package that will be delivered in post-primary schools from September.

Media Monitoring

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much his Department spent on media monitoring in each of the last five financial years. [77223]

Mr. Hain: Media monitoring expenditure in each of the last five years is detailed as follows and comprises both equipment and staff costs.

Equipment costs

2001-02	3,096.13
2002-03	20,982.08
2003-04	25,975.36
2004-05	13,543.24
2005-06	2,513.02

The rise in expenditure in 2002-03 and 2003-04 was due to the NIIS media monitoring facility transferring to a digital service from video to DVD.

Staff costs

There are four staff employed in the Media Monitoring Unit and their combined average salaries for the last five years are as follows:

2002-03	64,544
2003-04	67,220
2004-05	69,896
2005-06	72,568

Migrant Workers

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps his Department is taking to ensure that migrant workers to Northern Ireland have access to information on (a) health, (b) social services, (c) housing and (d) other public services. [80961]

Maria Eagle: Northern Ireland Departments provide a wide range of information and services to migrant workers. Key areas are:

Migrant worker access to information on health

The Department for Health and Social Services and Public Safety is currently developing a booklet for those new to Northern Ireland which provides key information about health and social services and how to access them. This will be made available in a range of languages.

The Department is currently in discussions regarding the future provision of interpreting, with the aim of meeting the needs of the changing migrant worker communities.

The Department in collaboration with the Equality Commission for Northern Ireland will produce a second edition of the 2003 good practice guide "Racial Equality in Health and Social Care" by March 2007.

Migrant worker access to information on social services

The Social Security Agency has a statutory obligation to ensure that migrant workers have access to social security benefits where they satisfy the necessary conditions. The Agency ensures that migrant workers are, on request, allocated a national insurance number to enable them to pursue legitimate employment or obtain access to social security benefits.

The Agency publishes benefit information and fact sheets in a number of languages including Arabic, Chinese, Latvian, Lithuanian, Polish, Portuguese and Spanish and works closely with voluntary sector support groups to ensure that information about the benefits system is as widely available as possible.

Telephone and face-to-face interpreting and translation services are provided by the Agency to those customers who have difficulty communicating in English.

Migrant worker access to information on housing

The Northern Ireland Housing Executive provides or facilitates the following services to ensure that migrant workers in Northern Ireland have access to information about housing services.

An interpreter service (language line) is available to all housing executive district office staff.

The housing executive intranet site includes advice leaflets available in the following languages: French; Lithuanian: Polish; Russian; Mandarin and Cantonese.

The housing executive provides inter-cultural awareness training to equip its front-line staff with the knowledge and skills to deal with culturally sensitive issues. The training also provides information on support services and organisations assisting migrant workers.

Migrant worker access to information on other public services

Government Departments who provide services to migrant workers are taking similar measures as are being taken on health, social services and housing, some examples include:

Driver Vehicle Licensing NI (DVLNI) produces leaflets and posters in a number of languages and on a range of issues including how to buy a car, obtain a drivers licence, insurance and use of seat belts.

Provisions of English for Speakers of other Languages courses are available in Further Education colleges.

"Language line" interpreting services are provided in all jobs and benefits offices and Jobcentres.

The Health and Safety Executive for Northern Ireland (H and SENI) operates a telephone interpretation service and translation service for customers whose first language is not English. It has also produced a picture booklet on safety in the workplace specifically for migrant workers working in high-risk industries.

A key step that the Government are taking is the recent establishment by the Race Forum of a thematic group on migrant workers. This group will examine the work that individual Departments and agencies have been doing to date and identifying those information practices which should be consistent across all Government. It will make recommendations to Ministers in the autumn.

Ministerial Meetings

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on what dates the Minister for Social Development has met representatives of the (a) Democratic Unionist Party, (b) Ulster Unionist Party, (c) Progressive Unionist Party, (d) Ulster Political Research Group and (e) Orange Order in the last 12 months. [82991]

Mr. Hanson: The information requested from June 2005-June 2006 is as follows:

Party	Dates
DUP	19 July 2005
	18 October 2005
	21 November 2005
	15 March 2005
	30 March 2006
	8 May 2006
	11 May 2006
	26 June 2006
UPRG	9 June 2005
	19 September 2005
	12 December 2005
PUP	21 June 2005
	24 October 2005
	30 March 2006
Orange Order	23 January 2006
	2 February 2006
UUP	30 March2006

As Minister for Social Development I have also met representatives from the parties on other occasions in different ministerial capacities during the 12-month period.

Model United Nations General Assembly

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) how much funding the Model United Nations General Assembly has received from his Department in each of the last five years; and how much funding has been allocated for the next three years; [84105]

(2) what his assessment is of the contribution to reconciliation in Northern Ireland made by the Model United Nations General Assembly organised by the Council for Education in World Citizenship Northern Ireland. [84106]

Maria Eagle: The Model United Nations General Assembly is organised by the Council for Education in World Citizenship NI (CEWC NI). The Department of Education funded CEWC (NI) through its Community Relations Core Funding Scheme for the period 1 April 2001 to 31 March 2004, total funding £136,584. A breakdown for each of the last five financial years is displayed in the following table.

2002-03	51,201
2003-04	45,465
Total	136,584

The overt objectives of the Model United Nations General Assembly (MUNGA) are not around reconciliation in Northern Ireland. However, it is recognised that any programme that widens the experience of young people in the context of Global Citizenship and their understanding of diversity has merit.

The next round of core funding, 2007-10, was launched on 5 July 2006 and CEWC (NI) are welcome to apply. All applications will be judged on how they meet the scheme's criteria/objectives.

MRSA

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many MRSA-related deaths have there been in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years (a) in total and (b) in each hospital. [83964]

Mr. Hanson: Causes of death are classified by International Classification of Diseases (ICD), the current version of which does not have a specific code for MRSA. However statistics on deaths where MRSA was a contributing factor can be obtained by identifying deaths registered with specific conditions likely to be linked with MRSA and then checking whether MRSA was recorded on the death certificate.

The following table gives the number of deaths registered in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years, 2001-05, where MRSA was mentioned on the death certificate. The figures relate to all deaths where MRSA was mentioned on the death certificate, regardless of whether it was the primary cause of death or not. Figures are classified by place of death, which need not be the place of infection.

Pollution

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) private citizens and (b) businesses in Northern Ireland have been prosecuted for causing pollution from (i) septic tanks and (ii) heating oil tanks in each of the last three years; and what the total amount paid out in each category was in each year. [83966]

David Cairns: In the last three years, no private citizens have been prosecuted by Environment and Heritage Service for causing pollution from heating oil tanks, as the severity and environmental impact of these incidents have not warranted prosecution.

In the last three years, one private citizen has been prosecuted by Environment and Heritage Service for causing pollution from a septic tank. The incident occurred in 2003, and the owner of the septic tank was fined £2,000 and court costs of £16 were awarded against the offender.

The following figures outline the number of prosecutions taken in respect of oil pollution incidents caused by industry since 2003:

Year in which incident occurred	Number of cases	Costs awarded (£)	Fines imposed (£)	Cases still pending
2003	7	1,337	7,400	—
2004	4	10,645	4,600	—
2005	6	206	300	8

Private Members' Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to his answer of 28 October 2005, Official Report, column 657W, on Private Members' Bills, whether the information was collected at any time; and if he will make a statement. [33882]

Mr. Hain: This information has never been collected.

Sinn Fein

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) how much has been granted to Sinn Fein from public funds in each of the last 10 years; [11672]

(2) how much Sinn Fein has received in the last year from public funds; [77374]

Mr. Hanson: I am sorry for the lateness of this reply, which was due to an administrative error.

The amount paid in £ to Sinn Fein in respect of members' salaries and allowances, and party allowances, by the Westminster Parliament and NI Assembly is as follows:

	Westminster	NI Assembly
1998-99	[1]—	935,950
1999-00	[1]—	1,341,860
2000-01	[1]—	1,588,184
2001-02	63,370	1,711,507
2002-03	342,455	1,877,511
2003-04	439,452	1,939,690
2004-05	472,482	2,122,968

[1] Westminster Parliament figures are not disaggregated prior to 2001.

Notes:

The information for the last financial year 2005-06 is not yet available.

Substitute Teachers

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what arrangements his Department has in place to undertake background criminal conviction checks on substitute teachers. [83215]

Maria Eagle: It is the responsibility of each employing authority to ensure that criminal record checks are carried out on prospective employees in line with guidance provided by my Department on the recruitment of people to work with children and young people in educational settings.

The Northern Ireland Substitute Teacher Register (NISTR) was made available to all schools from March 2004. All teachers on the register have an initial pre-employment criminal record check carried out and a vetting check carried out every two years thereafter. With effect from 1 September 2006, only substitute teachers who are on the NISTR should be employed to work in schools.

Valuation and Lands Agency

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much the Valuation and Lands Agency has spent on its automated valuation model and associated computer database and training. [82994]

Mr. Hanson: The VLA used CAMA (Computer Assisted Mass Appraisal) techniques and proprietary spatial modelling software to assess capital values of domestic properties in Northern Ireland for rating purposes.

The automated CAMA and modelling software operate on data contained within the Agency's core business database system.

The Valuation and Lands Agency has spent a total of £1.40 million in respect of the automated valuation model and associated computer database and training.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether the Valuation and Lands Agency use of geocode data in its automated valuation model includes data on proximity to geographic features or facilities. [83010]

Mr. Hanson: Geocode data do not contain data on proximity to geographic features or facilities.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether the Valuation and Lands Agency (a) automated valuation model and (b) Spatialest software uses variography techniques. [83013]

Mr. Hanson: Variography techniques were not used by VLA in the construction of valuation models. While the Spatialest software is capable of applying variography techniques the VLA modellers did not use the facility.

Waste Disposal

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people in Northern Ireland have been prosecuted for the illegal (a) transport, (b) deposit and (c) storage of waste in each of the last three years; and what total amount was paid in fines in each year. [83965]

David Cairns: Prosecutions for illegal waste offences are taken under the Waste and Contaminated Land (NI) Order 1997.

It is not possible to provide a breakdown in the format you have requested. Prosecutions for unregistered waste transport are associated with the more serious offences of illegal storage and deposit of waste, for which several offences may apply in each case.

The following overall successful prosecutions for waste offences have been taken by EHS:

2004: 24 prosecutions, generating total fines of £18,800;

2005: 58 cases, generating total fines of £104,050; and

2006 (to end June): 47 cases, generating total fines of £85,050 and a prison sentence of nine months—the first sentence handed down by the courts in Northern Ireland for waste offences.

Water Service

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people are employed by Water Service in (a) administrative, (b) technical and (c) professional grades; and how many people were employed in each category in (i) 1996-97 and (ii) 1999-2000. [85648]

David Cairns: The Chief Executive of Water Service (Mrs. Katharine Bryan) has written to the hon. Gentleman in response to this question.

Letter from Mrs. Katharine Bryan, dated 10 July 2006:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a Parliamentary Question about how many people are employed by Water Service in (a) administrative, (b) technical and (c) professional grades; and how many people were employed in each category in (i) 1996-97 and (ii) 1999-2000 (75587). I have been asked to reply as this issue falls within my responsibility as Chief Executive of Water Service.

The details requested are set out in the table below. Water Service does not differentiate between Professional and Technical grades.

Grade	1996-97	1999-2000	1 July 2006
Administrative	477	467	369
Professional and Technical	683	679	565
Total	1,160	1,146	934

WALES

Public Appointments

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many public appointments are within his patronage; what (a) salary and (b) other emoluments are attached to each; and what the comparable figures were in (i) 1976, (ii) 1986 and (iii) 1996. [83165]

Mr. Hain: Following the devolution settlement in 1999 responsibility for public appointments that were made by the Secretary of State for Wales was transferred to the National Assembly for Wales.

The detailed financial information requested could be supplied only at disproportionate cost.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Accession State Workers

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether funding given to Sheffield city council for issues related to accession state citizens may be used for (a) advice workers, (b) interpreting services and (c) repatriation costs. [63576]

Mr. Byrne: The sum in question (£44,250) was made available to Sheffield city council primarily for the purpose of repatriating destitute accession state nationals. It was however specified that any remaining funding could be used for the council to meet associated costs, including the provision of advice workers and interpreters.

Asylum Seekers (Non-compliance with Reporting Requirements)

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he plans to take steps to enable an estimate to be made of the number of asylum seekers who do not comply with reporting requirements to the Immigration and Nationality Directorate. [73525]

Mr. Byrne: The level of compliance with reporting restrictions has been monitored since April 2005.

Crime Statistics (Suffolk)

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been (a) charged and (b) convicted under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 in Suffolk since 1997. [82106]

Mr. Coaker: The available information relates to the number of persons cautioned, dealt with at court and found guilty for principal drug offences, most of which are under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 legislation.

Persons[1] cautioned, dealt with at court and found guilty for principal drug offences, Suffolk, 1997 to 2004

Defence Intelligence and Security Centre

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many officials from his Department were sent on courses run by the Defence Intelligence and Security Centre in each year since 1997; for what purpose; and at what cost. [76689]

Mr. Byrne: The information sought is not held centrally in the Home Office.

Departmental Guidance

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance is issued by his Department to officials on ordering refreshments at meetings in which (a) officials only and (b) non-civil servants will be present; and if he will make a statement. [35977]

Mr. Byrne: Refreshments may be ordered for meetings only when:

(i) a number of those attending will not be Home Office civil servants;

(ii) a number of Home Office civil servants will be attending a meeting in a building other than that which is their regular place of work; and

(iii) if refreshments are requested for meetings where neither (i) nor (ii) apply, then advance written authorisation must be obtained.

Deportation (Appeals)

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the countries in respect of which a person seeking asylum in the UK has a right of appeal against deportation on the grounds of personal safety. [69523]

Mr. Byrne: A deportation decision in respect of a person liable to deportation, including an asylum seeker, currently attracts a right of appeal regardless of the person's country of origin.

Driving Offences

Mr. Ian Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will take steps to make the offence of driving while disqualified a matter for the Crown courts. [60434]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The offence of driving while disqualified is a summary only offence and carries a maximum penalty of six months imprisonment and/or a level five fine (£5,000) and six penalty points. The Government have no plans to increase the maximum penalty or to change the summary trial process to an indictable one for this offence. Most bad driving offences are triable summarily, and it is only the more serious offences, with higher maximum penalties (such as causing death by dangerous driving and causing death when under the influence of drink or drugs) that are triable on indictment.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been convicted of causing death by dangerous driving in each (a) London borough and (b) constituency in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [82983]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Data from the Court Proceedings Database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform showing the number of defendants found guilty at the Crown Court of causing death by dangerous driving in Greater London, broken down by committing court is shown in the table. The courts' data enable boroughs to be separately identified in outer London, but not in inner London. We are unable to provide convictions for each London constituency, as the data are not available at the level of detail required. Figures for 2005 will be available in the autumn of 2006.

European Union Satellite Centre

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what services available from the European Union Satellite Centre are being used by his Department. [70352]

Mr. Byrne: The Home Office does not use any of the services of the European Union Satellite Centre (EUSC) as the services provided relate to "second pillar" issues. Details of the services which the EUSC provide are obtainable from their website http://www.eusc.org.

Fatmir Kurti

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether Fatmir Kurti, the subject of crime reference 435W09297/02, of 17 and 18 September 2002, remains in the UK. [71689]

Mr. Byrne: It is not the policy of the Department to comment on the specific details of individual cases in the public domain.

Foreign Criminals

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the impact of (a) European Council and (b) European Court of Justice decisions on the effective deportation of foreign nationals incarcerated in the UK. [68683]

Mr. Byrne: The Secretary of State is satisfied that current procedures with regard to deportation of EEA nationals comply with relevant European Council and European Court of Justice decisions. The European Council directive 2004/38/EC provides for the deportation of EEA nationals on public policy, public security and public health grounds. This directive was transposed into UK law by the Immigration (European Economic Area) Regulations 2006.

Foreign Prisoner Releases

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) whether (a) Fouad Boukadiar, (b) Abderrahamane Boulares, (c) Faleh Rechachi, (d) Alarbi Khelifi and (e) Khelid Khelifi, convicted of conspiracy to defraud and sentenced to imprisonment in November 2004, have (i) completed their sentences, (ii) been released and (iii) been deported in accordance with the court's recommendations; [68218]

(2) whether Shamar Evans-Abdulie who was convicted of supplying drugs and sentenced to imprisonment in October 2003, has (a) completed his sentence, (b) been released and (c) been deported in accordance with the court's recommendations; [68529]

(3) whether (a) Malik Madani and (b) Hamlaoui Selama convicted of conspiracy to defraud and sentenced to imprisonment in November 2004, have (i) completed their sentences, (ii) been released and (iii) been deported in accordance with the court's recommendations; [68530]

(4) whether Bogdan Tanasa, convicted of fraud and sentenced to imprisonment in March 2004, has (a) completed his sentence, (b) been released and (c) been deported in accordance with the court's recommendations; [68531]

(5) what the (a) name and (b) nationality is of the foreign male prisoner detained by Grampian police on 3 May; what the nature of his conviction was; what the (i) date and (ii) term of sentence was; what the date of release was; and whether he was recommended for deportation on release. [69733]

Mr. Byrne: The Home Office does not comment on individual cases.

Gurkhas

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Gurkha soldiers who have completed their service (a) applied for and (b) were granted (i) leave to remain and (ii) British citizenship in each year since 1997. [82373]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 4 July 2006]: Figures for applications from Gurkhas for ILR before October 2004 are not available. Figures for the period October 2004 until June 2006 for indefinite leave to remain (settlement) are in table 1. Figures for applications from Gurkhas for citizenship before October 2001 are not available. Figures for the period October 2001 until June 2006 are in table 2. The figures quoted are from provisional management information and are subject to change.

Human Trafficking

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department from which countries people convicted of human trafficking came in each of the past five years. [78807]

Mr. Coaker: The nationalities of the people convicted of trafficking offences in the last five years are Albanian, Kosovan, Macedonian, Lithuanian, Turkish, Chinese, Moldovan and Thai.

Illegal Workers

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) asylum seekers and (b) illegal immigrants have been caught working illegally in each of the past five years. [79764]

Mr. Byrne: I am advised that IND records show that the number of offenders detected during illegal working operations is as follows:

Number of offenders detected during illegal working operations

Financial year	FAS	Non FAS	Total
2002-03	194	905	1,099
2003-04	456	1,848	2,304
2004-05	1,240	2,614	3,854
2005-06	2,218	7,009	9,227

Immigration and Nationality Directorate

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) applicant files, (b) passports and (c) other documents submitted by applicants have been lost in the Immigration and Nationality Directorate in each of the last three years. [79172]

Mr. Byrne: Other information is not routinely kept and the cost would be disproportionate to provide the information requested. I am advised that IND records show that the number of passports lost in 2003-04 was 588, in 2004-05 was 452 and in 2005-06 was 288.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what procedures are (a) in place and (b) planned to reduce the number of documents submitted by applicants being lost in the Immigration and Nationality Directorate; and if he will make a statement. [79173]

Mr. Byrne: IND takes seriously its responsibility for ensuring the safe handling and return of important documents submitted by customers. Measures already in place include procedures for early return of passports, secure handling areas to safeguard documents, secure movement in sealed crates or secure wallets, dedicated passport searching and streamlined work processes. These procedures are kept under review with the aim of further reducing the potential for documents to be lost.

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Immigration and Nationality Directorate will reply to letters of (a) 21 December 2005, (b) 3 February 2006 and (c) 12 May 2006 from the hon. Member for Richmond Park, regarding the immigration case of her constituent, Mrs. Ifeoma Ngozi Hewlett (née Exebilo), Home Office reference number E114243. [79307]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 21 June 2006]: I wrote to the hon. Member on 26 June.

IT Projects

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many IT projects which cost over £1 million and were introduced since 1997 are in use in his Department. [26611]

Mr. Byrne: To say how many IT projects which cost over £1 million, were introduced since 1997 and are in use in the Home Department could be given only at disproportionate cost. However as of 8 June 2006, the Home Department had 21 current IT enabled programmes, which either had a full life cost of over £40 million or were mission critical.

John Rose

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if he will investigate why a constituent, Mr. John Rose, has not received his licence or passport following the undertaking by the Minister to raise the case with the Security Industry Authority; [67161]

(2) when he will reply to Question 67161 tabled by the hon. Member for Hereford concerning his constituent, Mr. John Rose. [76247]

Mr. Coaker: I will write to the hon. Member on this matter.

Judicial Review

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on what occasions an (a) individual and (b) organisation has applied for a judicial review of decisions of his Department in each year since 1997; and what the outcome was of each case where proceedings have been completed. [80482]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Money Laundering

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of suspicious activity reports relating to suspected money laundering were in connection with transactions in basic bank accounts in 2005. [83752]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 10 July 2006]: A total of 127,918 suspicious activity reports were received by the National Criminal Intelligence Service from the banking sector in 2005, representing just over 65 per cent. of all SARs received in that year. There is no requirement on the banking sector to make reference to, or distinguish between, account types on the report form. It is not possible, therefore, to break SARs down by account type.

Offences Committed on Probation

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individuals have been convicted of (a) drug dealing offences, (b) rape, (c) armed robbery and (d) manslaughter while on probation in each year since 1998. [66888]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information is not available in the precise form requested.

Number of individuals convicted of rape, armed robbery and manslaughter whilst under probation supervision

	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003
Rape convictions	33	18	24	27	30	37
Armed robbery convictions	4	6	10	5	9	5
Manslaughter convictions	20	12	2	1	4	2

Parole

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 23 May 2006, Official Report, column 1705W, on parole, what measures have been put in place since 2001-02 to reduce the number of parolees breaking the terms of their release. [77433]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Probation National Standards require breach action to be considered after one unacceptable failure to comply with the sentence. Where breach action is not undertaken after one unacceptable failure to comply, a formal written warning of the consequences of further failure may be issued. Ultimately breach or recall action will be taken after the offender's third unacceptable failure to comply. The target for the national probation service to take such enforcement action within 10 working days is met in 90 per cent. of cases. In 2001-02 the enforcement rate for all offenders released on licence was 58 per cent. In 2005-06, this had improved to 93 per cent. The Multi-Agency Public Protection Arrangements were introduced in the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 and came into effect in April 2001. They were strengthened through the Criminal Justice Act 2003. They provide the framework for the police, prison and probation services to supervise the most serious sexual and violent offenders and to take swift enforcement action where such offenders engage in behaviour which demonstrates a risk of harm to the public.

Personal Documentation (Verification)

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether police officers are required to verify when requested the authenticity of personal documentation on occasions when the public are required by financial organisations to send verified copies of the personal documentation by post. [84050]

Ed Balls: I have been asked to reply.

The 2003 Money Laundering Regulations place a responsibility on financial institutions and other firms in the regulated sector to verify the identity of their customers.

Prisons

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) men and (b) women have (i) committed and (ii) attempted self-inflicted death in each prison in England and Wales in each of the last five years. [80836]

Mr. Sutcliffe: There is no definition of what constitutes an attempt at self-inflicted death, as it is very difficult to measure suicidal intent. For the number of apparent self-inflicted deaths in each prison in England and Wales, 2001-05, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for North-West Norfolk (Mr. Bellingham) on 20 March 2006, Official Report, column 122W, where this information was requested for the time period 1996-2005. As that question did not differentiate between men and women, the following table shows the number of apparent self-inflicted deaths involving women in each prison in England and Wales, 2001-05.

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what arrangements are in place to provide literacy training in the Welsh language for prisoners from Wales. [84186]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 10 July 2006]: All education and training delivery in Welsh prisons is available through the medium of the Welsh language, including literacy training. Data on the provision of literacy training in the Welsh language in English prisons are not collected centrally.

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what arrangements are in place to provide for religious needs of prisoners through the medium of Welsh. [84187]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 10 July 2006]: Chaplaincy teams in prisons in Wales are committed to meeting the religious needs of all prisoners, including through the Welsh language. All teams have access to Christian clergy who are able to conduct worship in Welsh. For other religions, networks exist to enable a relevant minister to be found. Chaplaincy leaflets setting out the programme of activities are being produced in Welsh. Provision for Welsh speaking prisoners held in prisons in England will be made on an as needs basis, as for prisoners who require religious provision in any other language.

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what arrangements are in place to ensure the provision of Welsh medium software in prison IT training centres. [84188]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 10 July 2006]: Software used in IT training in prisons in Wales is available in the Welsh language. Data on the availability of Welsh medium software in IT training centres in English prisons are not collected centrally.

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what arrangements are in place to ensure that prison libraries have an adequate stock of Welsh and Welsh language (a) books, (b) periodicals and (c) newspapers for the use of prisoners from Wales; and how much was spent on providing them in each of the last three years. [84189]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 10 July 2006]: Prison Service Order 6710 on prison libraries requires the library to cater for the informational, cultural, occupational and recreational needs of all prisoners. Each prison, in conjunction with the local public library authority who provide library services in prisons, ensures that the individual needs of the establishment are met, and follows quality and performance indicators which require a range of materials, such as books, magazines and newspapers, to be made available in a range of languages. Because of this local approach to meeting the individual needs of offenders the amount spent on providing such material is not collected centrally.

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what arrangements are in place to ensure that prisoners from Wales are able to access Welsh and Welsh language television and radio programmes whilst being held in prisons outside Wales. [84190]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 10 July 2006]: Welsh prisoners held in English prisons will have access to Welsh language television and radio programmes through standard terrestrial television and domestic radio. Prisoners will be able to receive Welsh programmes where the signal is strong enough or when programmes are broadcast nationwide.

Psilocin/Psilocybin

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) when he last asked the Advisory Committee on the Misuse of Drugs to review the classification of (a) psilocin and (b) psilocybin; [79000]

(2) what criteria were used for the classification of (a) psilocin and (b) psilocybin as class A drugs; [78997]

(3) how many deaths have been caused by (a) psilocin and (b) psilocybin in each of the last 10 years. [78998]

Mr. Coaker: The classification of psilocin and psilocybin has not been reviewed by the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs. The classification of psilocin and psilocybin as Class A drugs under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971, since that Act came into force on 1 July 1973, reflects the United Kingdom's implementation of the United Nations Convention on Psychotropic Substances 1971. Psilocin and psilocybin (and many similar drugs) were included in Schedule one to the 1971 Convention, reflecting international consensus that these substances should be subject to the highest level of control. HM Government placed these substances in Part I of Schedule two to the 1971 Act as Class A drugs. The information on deaths from psilocin and psilocybin is not held.

Racism (Prison Officers)

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prison officers have been (a) disciplined and (b) dismissed for racism in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [82969]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Central records on disciplinary cases involving public sector prison staff are currently being revalidated by reference to records held in individual prisons. I will write to the hon. Lady with the information requested once this exercise has been completed.

Reoffending

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the reoffending rates have been of (a) adults, (b) young offenders and (c) juveniles who have served (i) custodial and (ii) community sentences, in each of the last nine years for which figures are available, broken down by offence. [83340]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The most recent publication for adult reoffending is "Adult Re-offending: Results from the 2002 cohort", Home Office Statistical Bulletin 25/05, available online at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs05/hosb2505.pdf

Similarly for juveniles the most recent publication is "Juvenile Re-offending: Results from the 2004 Cohort", Home Office On-Line Report 10/06, available online at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs06/hosb1006.pdf

Both of these publications hold breakdowns by those who served custodial or community sentences, age and offence. The section "Measuring Re-offending", which begins on page one of both reports, explains the difference between reconviction and re-offending measures, as well the changes to the data source used for these computations. Because of the change in methodology, figures for previous years are not comparable.

Sentencing

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the variation in severity of sentences for crimes between regions of England and Wales at (a) magistrates courts and (b) Crown courts in each year since 1997; what plans he has to reduce such variation; and if he will make a statement. [83608]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 10 July 2006]: Information on sentencing by criminal justice area is contained in chapter five of "Sentencing Statistics 2004" (ISSN 1358-510X). In the Criminal Justice Act 2003, the Government established the Sentencing Guidelines Council to frame sentencing guidelines for the courts. In doing so, it is required among other things to have regard to the need to promote consistency in sentencing. It began work in 2004 and has issued four final guidelines to date.

Speeding Offences

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the trigger levels for prosecution of speeding offences were in each region of England and Wales in each year since 1997; what plans he has to reduce variations in the trigger levels between regions; and if he will make a statement. [83607]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 10 July 2006]: Decisions on the appropriate action to take when a speeding offence is detected are an operational matter for the police. The Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) has issued speed enforcement guidelines, available on the ACPO website at www.acpo.police.uk/policies.asp It is for individual chief officers of police to decide on the adoption of these guidelines by their forces. They do not override the discretion of individual officers.

Unlawful Sexual Intercourse

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) males and (b) females were (i) prosecuted and (ii) convicted of unlawful sexual intercourse in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [66907]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Data from the Court Proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform on the number of males prosecuted and convicted for offences relating to sexual intercourse with a girl under the age of 16, are contained in the following table. There were no prosecutions or convictions of females for these offences. Statistics for 2005 court proceedings will be available in the autumn of 2006.

Number of males, proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty[1] at all courts for offences under the Sexual Offences Act 1956(8.5 and S.6) and Sexual Offences Act 2003 England and Wales, 2000-04[2]

	2000[3]		2001		2002		2003		2004
	Prosecuted	Found guilty	Prosecuted	Found guilty	Prosecuted	Found guilty	Prosecuted	Found guilty	Prosecuted	Found guilty
Unlawful sexual intercourse with girl under 13	40	53	53	54	43	47	71	49	144	92
Unlawful sexual intercourse with girl under 16	167	214	178	214	192	228	185	248	376	306

[1] The found guilty column may exceed those proceeded against, as it may be the case that the proceedings in the magistrates court took place in the preceding year and they were found guilty at the Crown Court in the following year.
[2] These data are provided on the principal offence basis.
[3] Staffordshire police force were only able to submit sample data for persons proceeded against and convicted in the magistrates courts for the year 2000. Although sufficient to estimate higher orders of data, these data are not robust enough at a detailed level and have been excluded from the table.

Victim's Personal Statement

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the introduction of the victim's personal statement. [79830]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Victim Personal Statement (VPS) scheme was introduced in 2001 after pilot projects confirmed the demand for a victim statement scheme. The VPS provides victims with a formal opportunity to tell criminal justice agencies and individuals dealing with their case how the crime has affected them—physically, emotionally, psychologically, financially or in any other way. Victims groups tell us that victims want the opportunity of having a voice in the criminal justice system. However, we are aware that there are some concerns about the level of take-up and the purpose of the scheme. Throughout the summer we will be consulting in more depth with victims, victims' groups and criminal justice agency staff on how the scheme is working, in order to assess what, if any, improvements could be made to its operation. The Government are also currently piloting Victims' Advocates at five Crown courts. The pilots allow the relatives of murder and manslaughter victims to make a statement to the court about the effect of the crime on them after conviction and before sentence. The statement can be made by the relative orally as if giving evidence, read out by an independent or CPS lawyer, or given in writing.

Voluntary Assisted Return and Reintegration Programme Scheme

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost has been of the Voluntary Assisted Return and Reintegration Programme scheme since January. [75786]

Mr. Byrne: The funding arrangements for VARRP (Voluntary Assisted Return and Reintegration Programme) mean that the Home Office will not be invoiced for the fist six months of 2006 until the end of August 2006.

Zylfi Meera

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what steps he is taking to ensure the work of those agencies for which he has Ministerial responsibility will be efficiently co-ordinated in the case of Zylfi Meera; [73334]

(2) which agencies for which he has Ministerial responsibility have been involved in the case of Zylfi Meera, convicted at Reading Crown court on 4 May 2006; [73335]

(3) whether those agencies for which he has Ministerial responsibility will need to co-operate with other official services and agencies for which he does not have ministerial responsibility in the case of Zylfi Meera. [73353]

Mr. Byrne: It is not the policy of the Department to comment on the specific details of individual cases or the agencies involved in these cases in the public domain. However, if the hon. Member wishes to write to me with detailed representations on this matter and sets out the basis of his interest in this case I will consider these further.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Bolivia

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of (a) the decision of Bolivia to rewrite its Constitution and (b) the likely impact on (i) human rights, (ii) the growth of democracy and (iii) Bolivia's relations with (A) its South American neighbours, (B) the United Kingdom and (C) the United States. [82987]

Mr. Hoon: The decision to rewrite Bolivia's Constitution is a matter for the Bolivian people and its Government. An EU Electoral Observation Mission monitored elections on 2 July for the Constituent Assembly, the body charged with carrying forward this process, and we are encouraged to hear initial reports that they took place peacefully. We are not in a position to speculate on the impact of any changes to the Constitution that the Bolivian people may eventually choose to introduce.

Burma

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the extent to which the agreements between the regime in Burma and the Governments of (a) France, (b) Italy and (c) Germany relating to timber imports from Burma are consistent with the EU Common Position on Burma. [80388]

Mr. McCartney: No assessment has been made. Timber imports into the EU are not banned under the Common Position on Burma.

China

Rosemary McKenna: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations her Department has made to the Chinese government in relation to human rights abuses in Tibet; and if she will make a statement. [83835]

Mr. McCartney: We regularly raise human rights, including Tibet, with the Chinese Government. My hon. Friend the then Minister of State for Trade, Investment and Foreign Affairs (Mr. Ian Pearson) raised Tibet with the Chinese Government on 7 April 2006. Human rights in Tibet, and a number of individual cases of concern, were discussed at the latest rounds of the EU-China Human Rights Dialogue in May and the UK-China Human Rights Dialogue on 3 July. We will continue to raise concerns about human rights abuses in Tibet at every appropriate opportunity, including during my own visit to China this week.

Government Wine Cellar

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many bottles have been transferred from the Government wine cellar to HM Treasury in the last 12 months. [83512]

Mr. Hoon: No bottles have been transferred from the Government hospitality cellar to HM Treasury in the last 12 months.

Indonesia

Mr. Tom Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if the Government will make representations to the Indonesian government regarding the imprisonment of Dr. Zakaria and her colleagues. [84003]

Mr. McCartney: We do not plan to make representations to the Indonesian government about this case. However, the treatment of religious minorities is an issue we regularly discuss with the Indonesian government. In September 2005, President Yudhoyono stressed that the state guaranteed every citizen religious freedom and called on the police and members of the public to act to prevent violence against any faith. We will continue to work with the Indonesian government on this important objective.

Israel

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she made to the Government of Israel in May and June on the use of UK-supplied military equipment and components in accordance with the Consolidated EU and National Arms Export Licensing Criteria. [84597]

Dr. Howells: There have been no representations made to the Israeli Government concerning the use of UK-supplied military equipment during this period.

North Korea

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when the six-party talks on North Korea are expected to reconvene. [84156]

Mr. McCartney: It is not clear when the talks are likely to reconvene. We are very disappointed that, due to the Democratic People's Republic of Korea's (DPRK) reluctance to re-engage, it has not been possible to hold further rounds of the six-party talks since their last session in November 2005. We continue to urge the DPRK to return to the talks and make progress on implementing the commitments made in the 19 September 2005 joint statement. Following the G8 Foreign Ministers meeting in Moscow, the Chair's statement underlined the importance of the DPRK returning to the table.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the recent testing of North Korean inter-continental ballistic missiles. [84233]

Mr. McCartney: Ahead of the launch of the Taepodong-2 missile/Satellite Launch Vehicle, we made clear our view to the Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK), as did the EU, US, Japan and others that this would be seen as a provocative act, which would add considerable tension to an already complex regional situation. We strongly urge the Government of the DPRK to refrain from any further provocation and adhere to its commitments under the 1999 moratorium and the 2002 Pyongyang Declaration. We also call upon the Government of the DPRK to rejoin the six-party talks immediately to demonstrate their commitment to resolve these issues.

Post Office Contracts

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs for which services (a) her Department and (b) its associated public bodies hold contracts with the Post Office; and what the (i) start and (ii) termination date is of each contract. [81543]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office and its associated public bodies do not hold any contracts with the Post Office.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Casinos

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) what meetings he has had with casino developers in each of the last five years; [84601]

(2) what meetings he has had with representatives of Kerzner International in the last five years. [84603]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the response given to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) by my hon. Friend the then Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State at the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister (Jim Fitzpatrick) on 8 February 2006, Official Report, column 1243W.

I have had no meetings with Kerzner International. On Wednesday 17 August 2005, while on a well-publicised visit to the Greenwich peninsula, I was one of a number of guests who were updated on progress in the area. I believe one of those present at that time was a representative of Kerzner International, but at no time did I have any conversations about plans for a casino, and I was accompanied by officials at all times.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Warrior infantry fighting vehicles are being deployed to Afghanistan. [82830]

Mr. Ingram: There are currently no Warrior vehicles in Afghanistan. The suitability of the current force package in Afghanistan is kept under regular review and future deployments will be tailored appropriately based on an assessment of the expected operational tempo and conditions.

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will assess the effectiveness of the allocations of spares for Apache helicopters in Afghanistan. [82962]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 6 July 2006]: Our initial assessment is that the level of spares support to Apache attack helicopters in Afghanistan has been effective. The level of spares support is monitored on a continuing basis.

Carbon Credits

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the cost to his Department of carbon credits for financial years 2006-07 to 2011-12. [83357]

Mr. Watson: This information is not held centrally and it will take a little time to co-ordinate a reply. I will write to the hon. Member as soon as the facts have been assembled and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Defence Bodies (Mergers)

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much the proposed merger of the Defence Procurement Agency and the Defence Logistics Organisation is expected to cost; what the purpose of the merger is; and if he will make a statement. [83412]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 10 July 2006]: The detailed structure of the new organisation, formed by merging the Defence Procurement Agency and Defence Logistics Organisation, will be addressed during implementation. However, it is not expected that the merger itself will involve significant additional costs beyond those arising from the proposal to collocate elements of the two organisations. The purpose of merging the two organisations is to provide a greater unity of purpose in acquisition; to improve support to our armed forces; and to provide best value for them and the taxpayer.

Departmental Estate

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) land and (b) property his Department and its predecessors (i) leases and (ii) leased in (A) Southend West constituency, (B) Essex, (C) Hertfordshire and (D) the Metropolitan Police area of London in (1) 1979, (2) 1983, (3) 1987, (4) 1992 and (5) 1997. [72479]

Mr. Watson: Full details are not held centrally in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, I am able to provide some information which I have placed in the Library of the House due to its volume.

I should point out that details of service families accommodation leased from Annington Homes Limited in England and Wales, under the 1996 agreement, have not been included.

Future Rapid Effect System

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the timing of the future rapid effect system. [82892]

Mr. Ingram: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 26 June 2006, Official Report, column 164W.

Helicopters

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the armed forces are expected to take delivery of the 70 extra helicopters planned to be procured by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [82696]

Mr. Ingram: We expect to take delivery of the 70 future Lynx helicopters under order from 2012 to 2017.

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many helicopters he has ordered for delivery between 2006 and 2016, broken down by type. [82893]

Mr. Ingram: A contract for the delivery of 70 future Lynx aircraft was signed in June 2006 between the Ministry of Defence and Westland Helicopters Ltd. A total of 66 aircraft are scheduled to be delivered before the end of 2016.

In addition, a contract with Lockheed Martin for the upgrade of 30 of our current Merlin Mk1 aircraft was announced in January 2006. The first of these upgrades is expected to enter service in 2013, with all being completed before the end of 2016.

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many qualified helicopter pilots are serving in (a) the Royal Navy, (b) the Royal Marines, (c) the Army and (d) the Royal Air Force. [83640]

Mr. Ingram: The latest available information on the number of qualified helicopter pilots in the Royal Navy, the Royal Marines, the Army and the Royal Air Force is given in the following table.

Qualified helicopter pilots, 1 April 2006

	Number
Naval Service	390
Royal Navy	380
Royal Marines	10
Army	650
Officers	330

HEALTH

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research her Department (a) has undertaken and (b) plans to undertake into the psychological effects on women of having early medical abortions at home; and if she will make a statement. [77595]

Caroline Flint: The Department has not undertaken any research into the psychological effects on women having early medical abortions at home and has no plans to do so.

The Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists reviewed the evidence on abortion when updating its evidence-based guideline "The Care of Women Requesting Induced Abortion" in 2004.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her answer of 20 June 2006, Official Report, column 1794W, on abortion, what the evidential basis was for the statement that medical abortion is safe; if she will place in the Library papers that support this; and if she will make a statement. [81162]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by the then Minister of State for Health for Delivery and Quality on 20 December 2005, Official Report, column 2688W.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much her Department paid out in compensation to women who had an abortion as a result of misdiagnosis by national health service hospitals in each of the last five years for which information is available. [83196]

Caroline Flint: The National Health Service Litigation Authority manages clinical negligence claims on behalf of national health service bodies in England. Its data are not categorised in the format requested.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the NHS abortion rate per 100 live births was in each health authority in England in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [83199]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is shown in the table.

The Health Statistics Quarterly 30 shows that the percentage of conceptions ending in abortion has remained stable.

Alcohol Misuse

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people, and at what grades, are employed in her Department to work on alcohol misuse strategies. [83924]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is shown in the table in whole-time equivalents (WTE) for the senior civil service and the Department's integrated pay scales.

	Total

Alcohol Treatment (Gloucestershire)

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to increase access to specialist alcohol treatment services in Gloucestershire; what has been allocated to such services in 2006-07; and how that budget is allocated. [82482]

Caroline Flint: The Department's guidance on local programmes of improvement for alcohol treatment services was launched in November 2005. This is aimed at the local national health service, local authorities, voluntary bodies, and others seeking to work with the NHS to tackle alcohol misuse.

Access to specialist treatment services is a matter for local primary care trusts (PCTs), who are responsible for improving the match of treatment provision they commission to the need of the local population for services. Information is not held centrally on local budgets.

It is estimated that £217 million is currently being spent by PCTs on alcohol treatment. An additional £15 million has been allocated to all PCTs to improve alcohol services from 2007-08 onwards. Around 63,000 people are receiving treatment from specialist services, with additional people receiving treatment and support from their general practitioners.

Blood Donors

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment her Department has made of the extent of the risk posed by women who give blood and engage in anal intercourse without then notifying the National Blood Service; and whether heterosexual women who engage in anal intercourse are considered high-risk blood donors. [80807]

Caroline Flint: The United Kingdom blood services together with the Health Protection Agency continually monitor donors who test positive for markers of infection with HIV, Hepatitis B and C, Syphilis and Human T-cell lymphotropic virus. Part of this process involves interviewing donors to determine the risk factors underlying their infection. This process has not suggested that heterosexual anal intercourse is a major risk factor for transmitting the infections tested for by the UK blood services.

Other limited data available in the published literature do not suggest that within the UK, heterosexual anal intercourse, when compared to vaginal intercourse, is a major risk factor for the transmission of HIV or other transfusion transmissible infections.

Carers

Mary Creagh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much was spent on short break provision in Wakefield in each of the last three years; and how many hours break this provides in each year; [83475]

(2) how many hours short break service on average were provided on behalf of people with a learning disability in Wakefield who receive the care component of disability living allowance at the (a) highest, (b) middle and (c) lowest rate in the last period for which figures are available; [83476]

(3) how many (a) carers of people with a learning disability, (b) children with a learning disability and (c) adults with a learning disability in Wakefield received a short break service in the last period for which figures are available. [83477]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 10 July 2006]: The information requested is not held centrally. It is the responsibility of local commissioners to ensure appropriate provision of services to meet their community's needs.

Climate Change

Colin Challen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the impact of climate change on the demand for health services. [79417]

Caroline Flint: The report[1] on the "Effects of Climate Change on Health in the UK", published in 2001, concluded that though an increase in illness due to hot weather was likely as the climate changed, this would be offset by a decline in the effects of cold weather. If effects on deaths can be taken as a guide to the demands on the health services it is likely that the decrease in cold weather-associated deaths will outweigh the increase in hot weather-associated deaths during the coming 50 or so years.

The Department has produced a plan[2] for dealing with the effects of unusual spells of hot weather titled "Heatwave Plan 2006".

Dentistry

Ian Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many custom-made dental appliances were prescribed in 2005-06; and how many custom-made dental appliances have been prescribed since April 2006. [82099]

Ms Rosie Winterton: There were 3.7 million payment claims for items of service that involved custom-made dental appliances made to the Dental Practice Board during the 12 months ending 31 March 2006.

The information is not available in this form under the new system of dental remuneration. Providers of general dental service and personal dental services now have an agreed annual contract value, which is paid in 12 monthly payments instalments. In return for this contract value, the provider carries out over the course of the year an agreed number of units of dental activity that corresponds to overall course of treatment. The provider no longer has to submit data on the individual items of service within each course of treatment. Any dental appliances prescribed within a course of treatment are a matter for individual clinical judgment.

Ian Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much of the £400 million per year extra that has been spent on dentistry has been spent on dental technology and dental laboratories. [82100]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department does not allocate funds directly to dental technology or dental laboratories. The costs involved in having dental appliances manufactured for national health service patients are met by general dental practitioners from within the overall remuneration they receive for providing NHS services.

Ian Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has for the future training of dental technicians. [82101]

Ms Rosie Winterton: It is for higher and further education institutions to determine the provision they make for the training of dental technicians. I understand that a number of dental schools are considering whether provision for the training of dental technicians could be incorporated into the dental education expansion programme, but no specific proposals have yet emerged.

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what definition of a child was used in dental contracts before April 2006; what definition is used in contracts from April 2006; and if she will make a statement. [82330]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The definition of a child in the National Health Service (General Dental Services Contracts) Regulations 2005 and National Health Service (Personal Dental Services Agreements) Regulations 2005 is a person who has not attained the age of 16 years.

This definition applies only for the purposes of determining whether it is a child or his or her parent or guardian who may request treatment, express a preference of practitioner, give consent to treatment, or make a complaint about services. The same definition applied in the 1992 regulations that governed the provision of general dental services up until 31 March 2006.

There has been no change to the groups of patients who are exempt from NHS dental charges. Children aged under 18, and those aged 18 and in full-time education, remain exempt from charges.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the impact of the new dental contract on the (a) type and (b) quality of dental appliances supplied. [82553]

Ms Rosie Winterton: It is for individual dentists working under general dental services contracts or personal dental services agreements to use their clinical judgement to determine the type and quality of any dental appliance required. The Department does not collect routine information on the quantity or type of dental appliances supplied but will be assessing, in conjunction with the implementation review group, the impact of the new contractual arrangements on this and other aspects of the services provided to national health service patients.

Departmental Expenditure

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the annual expenditure on training and development by (a) her Department and (b) each (i) non-departmental public body, (ii) executive agency and (iii) other public body for which she is responsible in (A) Scotland, (B) Wales, (C) each of the English regions and (D) Northern Ireland was in each of the last three financial years; and what the planned expenditure is for 2005-06. [39974]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Diabetes

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps are being taken to encourage self-monitoring for diabetes patients. [82337]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Structured education is seen by the diabetes national service framework (NSF) as one of the key interventions needed to help empower people with diabetes. The diabetes NSF is supported by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) health technology appraisal, number 60—"Guidance on the Use of Patient Education Models for Diabetes".

This requires all primary care trusts to implement NICE recommendations by providing all people with diabetes with high quality, structured education, which should include self-monitoring.

Elderly Care (Cumbria)

Mr. Martlew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what resources have been allocated by the Commission for Social Care Inspection to the assessment of whether Cumbria county council is complying with national standards in the delivery of services for the care of the elderly. [80688]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I am informed by the chair of the Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI) that it has a local inspection team based at Penrith, which is responsible for assessing residential and domiciliary care services for both adults and children in Cumbria. Inspectors assess services against the same standards, regardless of whether those services are provided by the county council or the private or voluntary sector.

In addition to this, there have been service inspections, which cover assessment and care management delivered by the social services authority—Cumbria county council—as well as direct care provision. Specific inspections of older peoples' services were carried out most recently earlier this year.

Until last year, social services in Cumbria were receiving monthly monitoring visits and additional support because of concerns over their performance. In the performance assessment published in December 2005, the council was awarded one star; up from zero stars the previous year. The 2005 judgments in relation to adults', including older peoples', services were that Cumbria were serving some adults well, with uncertain capacity to improve.

The budget available to CSCI's Penrith office in 2006-07 totals £937,000. Of this, staffing costs are £872,000.

Fluoridation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health in which areas in England the public water supply is fluoridated; and when fluoridation was introduced in each case. [83197]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information available is in respect of the strategic health authority (SHA) boundaries which obtained prior to 1 July 2007. The table shows the 10 such SHAs in which fluoridation schemes apply and the proportion of their populations estimated to be benefiting from receipt of fluoridated water. Fluoridation was introduced progressively to these areas over the period 1964 to 1988.

Health Care (Shropshire)

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many patients classified as obese there were in each GP practice area in Shropshire, in each year from 2000 to 2005; [82398]

(2) how many patients suffered a stroke in each GP practice area in Shropshire, in each year from 2000 to 2005; [82399]

(3) how many patients with (a) asthma, (b) clinical depression, (c) diabetes and (d) autism were registered with each GP practice area in Shropshire, in each year from 2000 to 2005. [82400]

Caroline Flint: The information is not available in the format requested.

Information at general practitioner (GP) practice level is not collected for clinical depression, autism, and obesity.

Information has been collected at GP practice level for asthma, diabetes and strokes since 2004-05. Figures for 2005-06 are not yet available.

The following tables show the practice list size and the number of patients in each GP practice within Shropshire County Primary Care Trust (PCT) and Telford and Wrekin PCT with: stroke and transient ischaemic attack; diabetes; and asthma.

The Information Centre for health and social care: QMAS database—2004-05 data as at end of June 2005

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the effect on Shropshire Primary Care Trust of the level of payments made by Powys Local Health Board for Welsh patients treated at the Royal Shrewsbury hospital. [82404]

Caroline Flint: National health service trusts, as providers of services receive the bulk of their revenue funding from commissioning by primary care trusts (PCTs), and in the case of trusts near the Welsh border, local health boards.

Shropshire County PCT pays Shrewsbury and Telford hospital NHS Trust for the activity it carries out for its patients, as does Powys local health board.

Shrewsbury and Telford hospital NHS Trust is currently in negotiation with Powys local health board over the appropriate levels of activity and payments for the coming year.

Health Trusts (Gloucestershire)

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether those primary care trusts and health trusts within Gloucestershire consulting on how to deal with financial deficits will get an early sight of the criteria for community services under moving care closer to home. [79692]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department's guidance on community hospitals, "Our health, our care, our community: investing in the future of community hospitals and services", was published on 5 July 2006 and is available in the Library. The guidance has been drawn to the attention of chief executives of primary care trusts, strategic health authorities, national health service trusts and NHS foundation trusts in England.

Hospital Schemes

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list hospital schemes with a capital value over £20 million reaching financial close in (a) 2005, (b) 2006, (c) 2007 and (d) 2008 and what the (i) capital cost and (ii) completion date is of each scheme. [83044]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is shown in the table.

National School Fruit Scheme

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many schools are participating in the national school fruit scheme; and how many deliveries are made per week to these schools. [83658]

Caroline Flint: There are now 16,413 schools (98.9 per cent. of eligible schools) participating in the school fruit and vegetable scheme, and nearly 2,000,000 children are receiving a free portion of fruit or vegetable every school day.

The variety of storage facilities available in schools means we have to deliver frequently to ensure the produce supplied does not deteriorate. When the scheme was introduced schools received three deliveries per week. As the scheme has developed we have managed to reduce the frequency of deliveries to five per fortnight for the vast majority of schools.

NHS Work Force

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) which jobs have been moved from non-clinical to clinical staff groups in the NHS work force since 1997; [79642]

(2) which job codes have been moved from non-clinical to clinical staff groups in the NHS work force since 1997. [79670]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The annual work force census uses occupation codes to record the number of people in job roles. The census has not recorded any occupational codes which have moved from non-clinical to clinical staff groups in the national health service work force since 1997.

Nurses

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimate she has made of the number of qualified nurses residing in England who are unemployed; [79635]

(2) how many foreign nationals were employed as nurses within the NHS in 2005-06. [79636]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not collected centrally.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether nurses trained and qualified within the UK are recruited ahead of foreign nationals. [79640]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Recruitment is a local matter for national health service trusts. Trusts will normally recruit to vacancies from within the local labour market. Where trusts are unable to find appropriately qualified and experienced staff, for example in certain clinical specialisms, they may decide to undertake international recruitment.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many nurses entered full-time employment within the NHS within one year of being qualified in each year since 1997. [79654]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not collected centrally.

Nurses/Midwives (Redundancies)

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many redundancies of (a) nurses and (b) midwives there have been in the NHS in each of the last nine years. [79795]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not collected centrally.

Obesity

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of (a) children and (b) adults were (i) obese and (ii) overweight when measured by body mass index according to the Government's most recent health surveys in each (A) London borough and (B) constituency; and if she will make a statement. [82971]

Caroline Flint: The main source of data on the prevalence of obesity and overweight among children and adults is the Health Survey for England (HSE). Data are not available in the format requested. Tables one to three show the most recent data on the prevalence of obesity and overweight in children and adults. In all the tables overweight excludes obese and data are only available for males/females. The sample size of the HSE does not allow data to be produced at the level of boroughs or individual constituencies.

Table 1 presents data on overweight and obesity among adults in each of the strategic health authorities (SHA) within the London Government Office Region (GOR) as a three-year average over the period 2000-02.

Papilloma Virus Vaccine

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what information she has received on the progress of human papilloma virus vaccines; and if she will make a statement; [81594]

(2) what meetings (a) she and (b) her Department's officials have had to plan for the introduction of the human papilloma virus vaccination programme. [81595]

Caroline Flint: Research has suggested that human papilloma virus (HPV) vaccines may provide real benefit. The Department is currently seeking expert advice on the efficacy, safety and benefits that these new vaccines may offer.

Officials have met with manufacturers of the HPV vaccines to discuss research results and timescales for the development and likely licensure of the vaccines. A joint committee on vaccination and immunisation subgroup met in May 2006 to review all the available information on HPV vaccines and will hold further meetings during 2006.

Patient Transport

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment her Department has made of the (a) availability and (b) suitability of (i) the Patient Transport Service, (ii) ambulance cars and (iii) public transport for cancer patients attending hospital regularly for chemotherapy and radiotherapy. [80500]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department has not made a specific assessment of the availability or suitability of the patient transport service, ambulance cars or public transport for cancer patients regularly attending hospital for chemotherapy and radiotherapy.

Primary care trusts (PCTs) are responsible for ensuring that there is provision of ambulance services, which could include patient transport services, to such extent as they consider necessary to meet all reasonable requirements. It is, therefore, for the local national health service to decide who provides patient transport services for eligible patients in their area, and what transport is provided.

The White Paper "Our health, our care, our say: a new direction for community services" sets out that in future, local authorities and PCTs will need to work together to influence providers of local transport in planning transport networks.

Guidance on commissioning ambulance services, "Driving change: Good practice guidelines for PCTs on commissioning arrangements for emergency ambulance services and non-emergency patient transport services", was issued by the Modernisation Agency in 2004. A copy of this document is available in the Library for reference.

Pensioners Abroad

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what (a) bilateral and (b) multilateral arrangements the United Kingdom has with the Czech Republic on the provision of health care for UK pensioners resident in that country; [83141]

(2) what (a) bilateral and (b) multilateral arrangements the United Kingdom has with Denmark on the provision of health care for UK pensioners resident in that country; [83144]

(3) what (a) bilateral and (b) multilateral arrangements the United Kingdom has with Cyprus on the provision of health care for UK pensioners resident in that country; [83145]

(4) what (a) bilateral and (b) multilateral arrangements the United Kingdom has with Belgium on the provision of health care for UK pensioners resident in that country; [83151]

(5) what (a) bilateral and (b) multilateral arrangements the United Kingdom has with Austria on the provision of health care for UK pensioners resident in that country. [83154]

Ms Rosie Winterton: There are arrangements co-ordinating the social security and healthcare systems of all the member states of the European Union. This is covered by Regulation (EEC) 1408/71 which is a multilateral instrument.

It provides that pensioners living in another EU member state who are receiving a United Kingdom state retirement, long-term incapacity or bereavement pension, are entitled to healthcare on the same basis as that country's own insured persons.

Post-operative Mortality Rate

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the post-operative mortality rate has been in NHS hospitals in each year since 1997; what assessment she has made of the post-operative mortality rate in other developed countries; what steps she is taking to reduce the post-operative mortality rate; and if she will make a statement. [74049]

Andy Burnham: The specific information as requested in not collected centrally.

The National Centre of Health Outcomes Development (NCHOD) publishes data on post-operative death rates for emergency procedures. This is available for primary care trusts and strategic health authorities for the last six years up to 2003-04. This is shown in the table.

Deaths within 30 days of a hospital procedure: surgery (non-elective admissions)

	1998-99	1999-2000	2000-01	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04

Post-operative death rates by trust are also published by the Healthcare Commission as part of trusts' star ratings. The latest information is available for the calendar year 2004 at:

ratings2005.healthcarecommission.org.uk/Trust/Indicator/indicators.asp?trustType=1

There are no comprehensive reviews available on international comparisons of post-operative mortality rates.

The level of risk is dependent upon the type of operation. There are many different operations carried out with different risks. The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence through its guidance, National Patient Safety Agency through its national reporting and learning system and patient safety solutions and the national confidential enquiry into patient outcome and death, work to improve standards of healthcare for the benefit of the public.

Rheumatology Consultants

Mrs. Dean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many rheumatology consultants there are per head of population in England. [79178]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The following table shows the number of rheumatology consultants there are per head of population in England.

Hospital and community health services (HCHS): medical and dental consultants working in the rheumatology specialty, England as at 30 September 2005

	Number	Number (headcount) Consultants per 100,000 head of population[1]
Consultants	31,993	63.9
Of which:
Rheumatology	505	1.0

[1] Population figures are taken from the 2001 ONS resident estimates. 2005 population data at SHA level are not yet available, therefore, 2004 population data have been used in 2005 calculations. Due to this, calculations for 2005 are subject to change.

Road Accidents (Seat Belts)

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the cost to the national health service during the last 12 months of attending to people not wearing seat belts who were injured in road accidents; and if she will make a statement. [83202]

Caroline Flint: The Government do not have an estimate of the cost to the national health service of attending to people involved in road accidents, who were not wearing seat belts. However, the wearing of seat belts is estimated to prevent over 2,000 road fatalities each year.

Short Break Services

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much was spent on short break provision in Oxfordshire in the last year for which figures are available; and how many hours break that expenditure provided; [82197]

(2) how many hours short break service, on average, were provided on behalf of people with a learning disability in Oxfordshire who receive the care component of disability living allowance at the (a) highest rate, (b) middle rate and (c) lowest rate in the last period for which figures are available; [82198]

(3) how many (a) carers of people with a learning disability, (b) children with a learning disability and (c) adults with a learning disability in Oxfordshire received a short break service in the last period for which figures are available. [82200]

Mr. Heath: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much was spent on short break provision in Somerset in the last period for which figures are available; and how many hours' break that expenditure provided in total; [82279]

(2) how many hours' short break service, on average were provided on behalf of people with a learning disability in Somerset who received the care component of disability living allowance at the (a) highest, (b) middle and (c) lowest rate in the last period for which figures are available; [82280]

(3) how many (a) carers of people with a learning disability, (b) children with a learning disability and (c) adults with a learning disability in Somerset receive a short break service. [82281]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This information is not held centrally. It is the responsibility of local commissioners to ensure appropriate provision of services to meet their community's needs.

Smoking

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funding the Government plan to provide to local authorities to implement the proposed smoking ban. [83026]

Caroline Flint: Under the regulation-making powers in clause 10 of the Health Bill the Government intend to designate local authorities as the enforcement authorities for smoke-free legislation.

As set out in the "Choosing Health" White Paper, the Government have always committed to provide adequate funding for local authorities to undertake this work, in line with the "New Burdens Doctrine". Discussions are currently taking place with stakeholders, including the Local Government Association, on the detail of arrangements for enforcement.

Suicide Rates

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the recorded suicide rates were in each English constituency in each month since January 2001. [83356]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 11 July 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking what the recorded suicide rates were in each English constituency in each month since January 2001. I am replying in her absence. (83356)

Mortality rates for parliamentary constituencies cannot be provided for the years requested because population estimates are not available for these areas. The most recent year for which figures are available is 2005. A table which shows the number (rather than the rate) of deaths with an underlying cause of suicide or injury/poisoning of undetermined intent by month for each parliamentary constituency in England for the years 2001 to 2005 has been placed in the House of Commons Library.

Terminal Patients

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what mechanisms exist to prompt healthcare professionals to discuss special rules claims for (a) disability living allowance and (b) attendance allowance with (i) patients with a terminal disease and (ii) carers of patients with a terminal diagnosis. [81076]

Ms Rosie Winterton: It would not be appropriate for healthcare professionals to advise people about claiming benefits to which they might be entitled.

The Government recognise that finance is an issue of great importance to people with serious illness. Departmental officials are working with those in the Department for Work and Pensions, which has the expertise and knowledge to inform people about arrangements for claiming benefits and their entitlement to different benefits, to take steps for patients to be signposted to benefits information.

Tetanus

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people have been diagnosed with tetanus in each month since March 1997. [80301]

Caroline Flint: Data on the notifications of cases of tetanus by age group and sex for England and Wales for the period 1969 to 2005 are shown in the table and are also available on the Health Protection Agency website at:

University Hospital of North Tees

Ms Dari Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what capital spending has been made on (a) the maternity unit, (b) the neonatal unit, (c) the paediatric unit, (d) the breast unit and (e) gynaecology services at the University Hospital of North Tees since 1997. [82646]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Violence against Staff

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many physical assaults against staff were carried out by patients being treated in (a) mental health services and (b) learning disability services in 2004-05; [82326]

(2) how many of the physical assaults against staff in mental health services in 2004-05 were carried out by patients receiving compulsory treatment under the powers of the Mental Health Act 1983; [82327]

(3) how many physical assaults against NHS staff were carried out by (a) patients and (b) relatives of patients in 2004-05. [82328]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information is not collected centrally in the format requested, however, the NHS Security Management Service is currently considering further methods of data collection for the number of assaults against national health service staff.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many incidents of violence against staff there were (a) in total and (b) in the accident and emergency department at (i) the Royal Sussex County Hospital in Brighton and (ii) Worthing Hospital in each of the last three years. [83414]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 10 July 2006]: The information requested is not held centrally in the format requested. However, figures recently collected by the NHS Security Management Service showed that there were 125 assaults against staff in Brighton and Sussex university hospitals national health service trust and 51 assaults against staff in Worthing and Southlands NHS trust in 2004-05.

Youth Sports Trust

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what grants her Department has made to the Youth Sports Trust in each of the last five years. [82798]

Caroline Flint: We have worked closely with the Youth Sport Trust to increase participation in physical activity in children and young people through the "Schools on the Move" pedometer pilot. Specifically, the Department, working in partnership with the Department for Education and Skills, has provided £106,000 in funding to the Youth Sport Trust between March 2005 and March 2006 to project manage and deliver the "Schools on the Move" programme, as well as to commission an evaluation of the pilots.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Advertising Campaigns

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what advertising campaigns her Department has run since July 2004; and what the (a) date and (b) cost was of each. [81926]

Mr. McFadden: Significant advertising campaigns in support of specific policies are managed centrally through the Cabinet Office Communication Group and placed through the Central Office of Information (COI).

Details of advertising costs are shown in the table.

Campaign	Period	Expenditure (£)
2004-05
Preparing for Emergencies	July-August	[1]2,000,000
Direct Gov	September 2004-March 2005	306,471

Fast Stream recruitment	Throughout year	15,935
Departmental recruitment	Throughout year	514

[1] This was the Cabinet Office contribution to a cross-government campaign.

Charity Commission

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) how many officials of the Charity Commission were formerly employed (a) in the Civil Service, (b) in the Home Office, (c) elsewhere in the public sector, (d) in the private sector and (e) in the voluntary sector; [84599]

(2) how many former Home Office employees work at each grade in the Charity Commission. [84600]

David Miliband: This is a matter for the Charity Commission as the Government Department responsible for the regulation of charities in England and Wales. The Executive Director of Charity Information and Corporate Services at the Charity Commission will write to the hon. Member and a copy of his reply will be placed in the Library for the reference of Members.

Civil Contingencies Secretariat

Mr. Soames: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what recent assessment she has made of personnel levels within the Civil Contingencies Secretariat. [81481]

David Miliband [holding answer 3 July 2006]: As part of the Department's annual planning process, Civil Contingencies Secretariat (CCS) personnel levels were reviewed alongside other Units within the Cabinet Office in June 2006. CCS resources for 2007-08 remain in the range of 85-90 staff (including those at the Emergency Planning College).

Correspondence

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 27 June 2006, Official Report, column 315W, on correspondence, what estimate she has made of the cost of answering a question; and if she will make a statement. [82637]

Hilary Armstrong: It is not possible to separately identify the average cost of officials' time in replying to letters from hon. Members and members of the public. Such correspondence is often of a varied and complex nature. Therefore any exercise to determine the average cost in officials' time in responding to letters would incur disproportionate cost.

It is not possible to separately identify stationery and postage costs for the Department when replying to correspondence from hon. Members and members of the public.

Departmental Publications

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if she will list the unnumbered command papers produced by her Department in each session since 1976; by what means (a) hon. Members and (b) members of the public can (i) inspect and (ii) obtain copies; and if she will make a statement. [81257]

David Miliband: Documents which are laid before Parliament as unnumbered command papers are generally restricted to Explanatory Notes to Treaties, Explanatory Memorandums to Statutory Instruments and some Treasury Minutes. All other documents are published in the numbered command papers series.

A complete list of unnumbered command papers is not collected centrally.

Ministers/Civil Servants

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many (a) Ministers and (b) civil servants work in (i) Admiralty House, (ii) Admiralty Arch, (iii) the Ripley Building, (iv) Old Admiralty Building and (v) Admiralty Citadel. [83002]

Mr. McFadden: The number of Ministers and civil servants working in Admiralty House, Admiralty Arch and the Ripley Building is shown in the table.

Building	Ministers	Civil servants
Admiralty House	0	1
Admiralty Arch	0	237
Ripley Building	1	69

The Cabinet Office does not occupy Old Admiralty Building and the Admiralty Citadel. These buildings are owned by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

Office of Public Services Reform

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the reasons were for the abolition of the Office of Public Services Reform. [83579]

Mr. McFadden: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my hon. Friend, the then Parliamentary Secretary for the Cabinet Office (Mr. Murphy) to the hon. Member for Lewes (Norman Baker) on 25 April 2006, Official Report, column 1052W.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what guidance she produces for other Government Departments on answering a similar or identical question tabled to each Government Department; what criteria she uses in selecting the questions to provide guidance on; and if she will make a statement. [83428]

Hilary Armstrong: The Government made clear in their response to the Third Report of Session 2003-04 from the Public Administration Select Committee, that while Government Departments may liaise with each other when they receive the same question, this co-ordination

"does not cut across the line of ministerial accountability which is that it is for individual Ministers to decide on the final content of an answer to a parliamentary question".[1]

Regulatory Impact Assessments

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what written guidance for Departments has been produced regarding the publication of preliminary regulatory impact assessments. [82034]

Mr. McFadden: The Government have provided written guidance for Departments regarding the publication of regulatory impact assessments. This guidance is publicly available on the Cabinet Office website at http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/regulation/ria/ and will be placed in the Library for the reference of Members.

Written Answers to Questions

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Millennium Development Goals

6. Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress has been made on the millennium development goals since the last G8 summit. [84332]

Hilary Benn: It is too early to say what specific impact the commitments agreed to by the G8 at Gleneagles have had on progress towards the millennium development goals. There has, however, been progress in the last 12 months on debt cancellation, increased aid, a new humanitarian fund and action to get AIDS treatment to more people, and all of these will help in the fight to end extreme poverty by 2015.

Sustainable Forestry (Africa)

7. Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking to promote sustainable forestry in Africa. [84333]

Mr. Thomas: Poor governance and weak law enforcement hinder the achievement of sustainable forestry in Africa. Earlier this year, we committed £11 million over the next four years to the Forest Governance Support Programme in Cameroon. In addition we committed £12 million over the next five years in support of Partnership Agreements with African countries under the European Union's Forest Law Enforcement, Governance and Trade (FLEGT) Action Plan.

Kashmir/Pakistan Earthquake

8. Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what support his Department is making available for people affected by the earthquake in Kashmir and Pakistan; and if he will make a statement. [84334]

Hilary Benn: Following the Earthquake the UK pledged £129 million for relief and reconstruction in Pakistan, including Pakistan-administered Kashmir.

£54 million has been committed to relief activities, including direct support to the relief effort led by the Government of Pakistan and funds channelled through UN agencies and non-government agencies. We flew out 86 search and rescue experts and funded over 70 relief flights, three Chinook helicopters and a Royal Engineers squadron.

We have already provided £5 million for health, education and infrastructure reconstruction, and a further £65 million is committed.

Gaza

9. Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of the humanitarian situation in Gaza. [84335]

Hilary Benn: I have been following the humanitarian situation closely and with growing concern. Following damage to Gaza power station, households are receiving only six to 12 hours of electricity per day. Fuel supplies are limited. United Nations agencies report that water supplies, health services and sanitation are all being affected. Some foodstuffs are running low due to difficulty in supplies entering Gaza.

Nigeria

10. John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what financial support his Department is making available to Nigeria in 2006-07 to assist poverty reduction and increase educational opportunities. [84336]

Hilary Benn: The Department for International Development (DFID) has allocated £80 million in bilateral expenditure to assist poverty reduction in Nigeria in 2006-07. Of this, £8 million will go to programmes which directly support the education sector, but many other DFID activities in Nigeria, including work at state level to improve the management of public expenditure, have an impact on education outcomes.

Western Balkans

11. Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the Department's programmes in the Western Balkans following the Government's recognition of Montenegro as a sovereign state. [84337]

Mr. Thomas: Our approach to supporting countries in the Balkans places a high priority on enhancing the effectiveness of the international community's assistance to the region. This will continue. The estimated UK share of multilateral assistance to Serbia and Montenegro in 2003 (the most recent official statistics available) was £37 million. Our programme to Montenegro ended in March 2005 and we currently have no plans to reconsider this decision.

2006 G8 Summit

12. Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what discussions he has had with his G8 counterparts on the agenda for the 2006 G8 Summit. [84338]

Hilary Benn: The agenda for the 2006 G8 Summit in St. Petersburg is decided by the Russian Presidency in consultation with other G8 heads. The Russian priorities are energy security, infectious diseases and education. A priority for DFID is to make sure that the G8 leaders continue to focus on delivering the commitments they made at Gleneagles last year on support to Africa and climate change. President Putin has asked the Prime Minister to lead a discussion on progress against the Gleneagles commitments to reduce poverty and support sustainable development in Africa.

Doha Round

13. Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the implications for the developing world of the Doha Round of trade negotiations. [84339]

Mr. Thomas: The UK is working hard to ensure a successful round that delivers real improvements and opportunities for developing countries. We recognise that reducing trade tariffs alone will tend to favour only the more advanced developing countries in the immediate term. We have therefore been promoting a "development package", containing short-term changes to trade rules, medium-term adjustment measures, and support for longer-term supply side capacity building.

EU Aid Programme

14. Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of aid delivered through the EU's aid programme; and if he will make a statement. [84340]

Mr. Thomas: The European Commission has improved the effectiveness of its aid substantially since 2000, when a major reform programme commenced. Today, delivery is faster and is implemented by a dedicated delivery agency (EuropeAid). Field offices are stronger, with better skilled staff. Projects are delivering more effective results, as shown by regular on-site assessments by independent experts. Nevertheless, there is still a case for further reform to improve aid effectiveness.

Vietnam

15. Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what support his Department is giving to Vietnam in 2006-07. [84341]

Mr. Thomas: In 2006-07 DFID will provide £50 million of grant aid to the Government of Vietnam to improve education, tackle HIV and support programmes targeting the poorest regions. DFID also provides support to other Government of Vietnam priorities including:

improving public finance management and anti-corruption, infrastructure and Vietnam's commitments for WTO accession.

Clean Water

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent discussions his Department has had with the World Health Organisation on access to clean water and sanitation in (a) Tunisia, (b) Cameroon and (c) Tanzania. [83970]

Hilary Benn: I have not had recent discussions with WHO on water and sanitation in Tunisia or Cameroon. DFID does not have a bilateral aid programme in Tunisia, though we make a significant contribution to development in Tunisia through the European Commission's programmes. In Cameroon, DFID's focus is on forestry and governance and we do not have a bilateral water and sanitation programme.

In Tanzania, DFID works with the Government and a number of development partners in the water sector, including WHO, to help strengthen policies and review their implementation. DFID has a particular focus on increasing the amount of money reaching local government to fund basic rural water supply and sanitation.

DFID is committed to expanding access to safe drinking water and basic sanitation in poor countries across the world. On World Water Day 2005, I committed to double UK spending on water supply and sanitation in Africa, bringing our spend to £95 million a year by 2008.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Sir Alistair Graham

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to her answer of 15 June 2006, Official Report, columns 1378-9W, on Sir Alistair Graham, how much was claimed by Sir Alistair from each of the bodies for which he was entitled to as (a) per diem and (b) per appeal remuneration. [80515]

Hilary Armstrong: [pursuant to the reply, 15 June 2006, Official Report, c. 1379W]: I regret that the date on which Sir Alistair, as chairman of the Committee on Standards in Public Life, began receiving £380 per day was incorrect. The date given was 26 April 2005.

The correct date is 26 April 2004.

In respect of the Committee on Standards in Public Life, a public body sponsored by the Cabinet Office, Sir Alistair was a member between 1 October 2003 and 25 April 2004, and was appointed chairman with effect from 26 April 2004. As a member, Sir Alistair's time commitment was on average two days per month for which he received £180 per day. As chairman, Sir Alistair's time commitment has on average been two days per week. From 26 April 2004 to 5 May 2005 he received £380 per day and from 6 May 2005 to date he has received £440 per day. The information requested in respect of the other public appointments held by Sir Alistair is not held by my Department.

TRANSPORT

Biometrics

David Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what (a) planned and (b) existing projects in his Department involve the use of biometric technology. [82579]

Gillian Merron: The Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) is examining the possible use of biometrics to help ensure greater security of the driving licence. This could include whether use can be made of the growing number of photographs held on its database to assist with the 10-yearly renewal cycle commencing in 2008. Investigations are in their early stages. The Agency is also piloting biometrics for security and access control purposes at its base in Swansea using fingerprint readers.

In addition, the Transport Security Directorate is currently working with the aviation industry to develop standards for the use of biometric systems in airport access control.

Cycling

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what support his Department is giving to (a) Oxfordshire and (b) other local authorities to help encourage children to cycle to school. [82268]

Gillian Merron: The Department has provided £270,000 to date to help fund five cycle routes in Oxfordshire which link six schools to the National Cycle Network. Some £12 million in central Government funds have been invested in this scheme, generating significant match funding from local authorities resulting in overall investment of over £30 million. Over 330 cycle routes to schools have been built or are under construction.

In addition, a joint Department for Transport and Department for Education and Science capital grants scheme has allocated just over £750,000 to 128 schools in Oxfordshire with travel plans, for infrastructure such as secure cycle parking.

Nationally, around £57 million of grant has been awarded to over 10,000 schools in England, through this scheme.

The Secretary of State for Transport announced recently a doubling of Cycling England's annual budget from £5 million to £10 million per annum over the next three years. The extra money will be targeted at providing even more links for schools to the National Cycle Network and to provide more cycle training in schools.

FIFA World Cup

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which matches (a) he and (b) other Ministers in his Department attended at the FIFA World Cup 2006 in Germany in their ministerial capacity; at what cost to public funds; and with what contributions from third party organisations. [83626]

Gillian Merron: No Ministers in the Department for Transport attended the FIFA World Cup 2006 in their ministerial capacity.

Local Transport Authorities

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects to announce which local transport authorities will become centres of excellence; and how much each will receive as a consequence. [82213]

Gillian Merron: Authorities in 17 local transport plan areas were awarded centres of excellence status for local transport delivery in February 2005. A total of £100,000 per year is available to support them in providing peer-led activities. The distribution of this funding between the authorities is related to exactly what particular authorities do as centres of excellence.

Centres of excellence status will be reviewed in 2007.

There are more details about the centres of excellence, including a list of the designated authorities, in a Department for Transport release dated 25 February 2005, available on the Government News Network website (www.gnn.gov.uk).

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how the success of the local transport authorities centres of excellence programme was measured. [82214]

Gillian Merron: The centres of excellence programme is a part of the Local Transport Plan policy. Work is under way to evaluate the success of the policy as a whole.

An interim report is published on the Department for Transport website (www.dft.gov.uk)—under research, within the local transport plan subsection of the regional and local transport section of the site.

Private Finance Initiative Projects

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport by what total amount private finance initiative projects for which his Department is responsible which went over budget did so in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [83650]

Gillian Merron: A key aspect of the private finance initiative (PFI) is risk transfer on projects going over budget. This means overruns on PFI projects that the Department is responsible for will normally be carried by the private sector provider and not the Department for Transport.

Unitary charge payments do not commence until the service is operational. If a private sector budget overrun influences the service standard provided, PFI contract terms include a right for the public sector to make performance deductions from the unitary charge payment made to the private sector provider.

Railways

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what changes in (a) legislation and (b) guidance issued by his Department or its agencies there have been since the publication of the Strategic Rail Authority's review of rail fares policy. [84686]

Derek Twigg: There have been no changes to legislation or guidance. The review considered the fares regulation policy contained in the franchise agreements between the Strategic Rail Authority (SRA) and train operators. Franchise agreements were changed with effect from January 2004 to reflect the new fares policy.

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what improvements to train services are proposed as part of (a) the West Midlands franchise from 2007 and (b) the 2008 timetable following increased capacity at Milton Keynes in terms of reinstatement of direct Milton Keynes to Birmingham services in addition to inter-city services. [81950]

Derek Twigg: From November 2007, when the West Midlands franchise commences, there will be no changes to the existing overall pattern of services between Milton Keynes and Birmingham. There will be an hourly direct inter-city service but no regular direct "local" West Midlands franchise service via Northampton.

Network Rail is currently undertaking the detailed development of the December 2008 timetable. From this date, as set out in the West Coast Main Line Strategy, there will continue to be an hourly direct inter-city service between Milton Keynes and Birmingham. It is also possible that certain local London-Northampton and Northampton-Birmingham services to be operated by the West Midlands franchise may be linked at Northampton, thus providing additional direct services between Milton Keynes and Birmingham. However, this cannot be confirmed until Network Rail's timetable development work is completed later in 2006.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on progress towards a new high speed railway link between England and Scotland. [84518]

Derek Twigg: The Government made a manifesto commitment to look at the feasibility and affordability of a new north-south high-speed link. The Government have committed to take this forward in the development of a long term strategy for the railways, drawing on Sir Rod Eddington's advice on the long-term impact of transport decisions on the UK's productivity, stability and growth. This work will report when the rail strategy is published in summer 2007.

Fares Policy

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he last discussed fares policy with First Great Western; and if he will intervene to seek a review of this policy. [83265]

Derek Twigg: The Department has regular discussions with First Great Western about a range of issues. First Great Western is subject to the Department for Transport's standard fares policy in respect of regulated fares. Unregulated fares are a matter for First Great Western.

Road Traffic Accidents

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) road traffic accidents, (b) road traffic fatalities, (c) accidents involving motorcyclists, (d) fatalities involving motorcyclists, (e) accidents involving bicyclists and (f) fatalities involving bicyclists there were in (i) Hampshire, (ii) Southampton, (iii) Portsmouth and (iv) Eastleigh in each year since 1990. [84343]

Dr. Ladyman: The total number of personal injury road accidents, the number of personal injury accidents involving a two wheeled motor vehicle (TWMV), and the number of personal injury accidents involving cyclists reported to the police, as well as the resulting fatalities for (i) county of Hampshire, (ii) Southampton, (iii) Portsmouth and (iv) Eastleigh from 1990 to 2005 are given in the following tables.

Road Traffic Offences

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what powers are available to order an individual convicted of a road traffic offence to undergo treatment to overcome sleep deprivation symptoms. [84163]

Dr. Ladyman: There are no such specific powers. However, section 94(1) of the Road Traffic Act 1988 requires any person diagnosed with any condition that may make them unfit to drive, including sleep-related disorders and irrespective of whether they have been convicted of an offence, to inform the DVLA. Section 22 of The Road Traffic Offenders Act also places an obligation on the court to notify DVLA, if in any proceedings for a motoring offence it appears that the accused may be suffering from a medical condition that affects his ability to drive.

On notification, an assessment will be made of the person's fitness to continue to hold a driving licence. As part of the supporting information needed to retain or reinstate a licence, evidence of symptom improvement (usually as the result of treatment) is required.

Transport Projects (South West)

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much money was made available for transport-related projects in the South West in 2005-06. [82124]

Gillian Merron: Figures for the total identifiable planned public expenditure (current and capital) for the South West region on transport in 2005-06 are contained in the Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses 2006, published on the Treasury website (hm-treasury.gov.uk) and available in the House Library.

The document identifies a planned total of £541 million of capital public expenditure on transport for the South West region in 2005-06. It identifies a planned total of £515 million of current public expenditure on transport for the South West region in 2005-06.

TREASURY

Agricultural Support Sector

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate his Department has made of the number of people employed in (a) farm machinery and (b) agricultural feed businesses; and if he will make a statement. [84614]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl dated 12 July 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your parliamentary question about employment in farm machinery and agriculture feed business. I am replying in her absence. (84614)

It is estimated from the 2004 annual business inquiry that in Great Britain there were8,000 employee jobs in the manufacture of agricultural machinery and 10,000 in the manufacture of feeds for farm animals.

As with any sample survey these estimates are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Allergies (Deaths)

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people died from (a) nut allergies and (b) other allergies in each of the last five years. [84267]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the national statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl dated 12 July 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many people died from (a) nut allergies and (b) other allergies in each of the last five years. I am replying in her absence. (84267)

Figures on deaths from nut allergies in particular are not available as there is no single specific code in the ICD for nut allergies. Figures given in the attached table relate to deaths where one or more of the conditions mentioned on the death certificate was classified as allergic according to the International Classification of Diseases (ICD). Conditions classified to ICD codes which cover both allergic and non-allergic conditions were excluded from this analysis. The latest year for which data are available is 2004.

Deaths where the underlying or one of the contributory causes of death was classified as an allergic reaction,[1] England and Wales, 2000 to 2004[2]

Calendar year	Number of deaths
2000[3]	50
2001	46
2002	43
2004	79

[1] Causes of death were classified as allergic reactions for the year 2000 using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) codes
477.0—Allergic rhinitis due to pollen
477.8—Allergic rhinitis due to other allergen
477.9—Allergic rhinitis, cause unspecified
493.0—Extrinsic asthma
693—Dermatitis due to substances taken internally
995.0—Anaphylactic shock
995.3—Allergy, unspecified
999.4—Anaphylactic shock due to serum and for the years 2001 to 2004 using the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes
J30.1—Allergic rhinitis due to pollen
J30.2—Other seasonal allergic rhinitis
J30.3—Other allergic rhinitis
J30.4—Allergic rhinitis, unspecified
J45.0—Predominately allergic asthma
L27—Dermatitis due to substances taken internally
T78.0—Anaphylactic shock due to adverse food reaction
T78.1—Other adverse food reactions, not elsewhere specified
T78.2—Anaphylactic shock, unspecified
T78.4—Allergy unspecified
T80.5—Anaphylactic shock due to serum
T88.6—Anaphylactic shock due to adverse effect of correct drug or medicament properly administered.
[2] Figures are based on deaths occurring each calendar year.
[3] The introduction of ICD-10 for coding cause of death in 2001 means that data for allergic reactions may not be completely comparable with data for years before this date. The data should therefore be interpreted with caution.

Bacteria-related Deaths

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many deaths were recorded where (a) clostridium difficile associated disease, (b) MRSA, (c) vancomycin resistant enterocci, (d) multi-resistant acinetobacter spp and (e) penicillin resistant streptococcus pneumoniae was mentioned on the death certificate in the last year for which figures are available, broken down by deaths recorded in (i) rural and (ii) non-rural areas; and in how many cases it was also the underlying cause of death. [84626]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl dated 12 July 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many deaths have been recorded where (a) clostridium difficile associated disease, (b) MRSA, (c) vancomycin resistant enterococci, (d) multi-resistant streptococcus pneumoniae was mentioned on the death certificate in the last year for which figures are available; broken down by deaths recorded in (i) rural and (ii) non rural areas; and in how many cases it was also the underlying cause. I am replying in her absence. (84262)

A breakdown of the figures requested by rural and non-rural area is not available. However, an answer to an almost identical question in respect of the whole of England and Wales from Mr. Paul Burstow MP, was published in the Official Report, No. 176, page 828W.

Carbon Emissions

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent estimate he has made of the carbon emissions of his Department; what commitment he has made to reducing such emissions; and if he will make a statement. [81051]

John Healey: The carbon footprint of the Treasury building at 1 Horse Guards road has been estimated by the Carbon Trust. Subsequent investment has been made in building management systems designed to deliver significant annual savings in carbon dioxide in line with their recommendations.

Correspondence

Mr. Baron: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects the Financial Secretary to provide a substantive response to the letter from the hon. Member for Billericay, dated 2 February 2006, regarding his constituent, Mr. Scoot. [84711]

John Healey: I replied to the hon. Member on the 27 February confirming that the issues raised by his constituent were being actively looked at. The rules of taxpayer confidentiality preclude any further comment on the issues raised by the correspondence.

Counterfeit Tobacco

Mr. Breed: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of under-age smokers purchasing smuggled and counterfeit tobacco products. [84087]

John Healey: HM Revenue and Customs current estimate of the share of illicit tobacco is published in "Measuring Indirect Tax Losses" which is available on their website at www.hmrc.gov.uk/pbr2005/mitl2005.pdf

However HM Revenue and Customs have made no estimate of the number or proportion of smokers who are under age and purchase smuggled and counterfeit tobacco.

Drug and Alcohol-related Deaths

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) males and (b) females aged 16 to 24 years died as a result of accidental (i) drug and (ii) alcohol misuse, excluding suicide in each year since 1990. [84664]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl dated 12 July 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many (a) males and (b) females aged 16 to 24 years died as a result of accidental (i) drug and (ii) alcohol misuse, excluding suicide in each year since 1990. I am replying in her absence. (84664).

Available figures relate to the number of deaths from accidental drug-related and alcohol-related poisoning. The most recent year for which figures are available is 2004. The table shows the number of deaths in males and females aged 16-24 years for which the underlying cause was accidental poisoning from drugs or alcohol, for the years 1990 to 2004.

Deaths from accidental poisoning by drugs[1] or alcohol[2] by sex aged 16 to 24, England and Wales, 1990 to 2004[3,4]

	Accidental drug-related poisoning		Accidental poisoning by exposure to alcohol
	Males	Females	Males	Females
1990	45	16	6	1
1991	58	26	3	2
1992	74	18	2	0
1993	107	27	7	3
1994	125	34	1	0
1995	134	32	6	0
1996	130	31	3	1
1997	152	27	8	0
1998	108	38	7	0
1999	95	24	4	0
2000	91	32	7	0
2001	103	27	10	1
2002	80	24	2	1
2004	67	26	3	0

[1] Cause of death was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) codes E850-E858 for the years 1990 to 2000, and the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes X40-X44 from 2001 onwards.

[2] Cause of death was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) codes E860for the years 1990 to 2000, and the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes X454 from 2001 onwards.

[3] Figures are for deaths registered in each calendar year from 1990 to 1992 and for deaths occurring in each calendar year from 1993 onwards.

[4] Where both drug and alcohol poisoning are mentioned on the death certificate, international coding rules state that the death should be coded to the drug.

Electricity Transmission

Lynne Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effects of the climate change levy on levels of carbon dioxide emissions attributable to electricity transmission and distribution losses; and if he will make a statement. [84530]

John Healey: No direct assessment has been made of the effect of CCL on electricity transmission and distribution losses. However, the review of CCL by Cambridge Econometrics (published at Budget 2005) concluded that the levy is effective and should save over 3.5 million tonnes of carbon per annum by 2010, which includes savings from electricity generation and distribution (although the latter is not identified separately).

Global Economic Growth

Mr. Vara: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he has had with his G8 colleagues on prospects for global economic growth. [83635]

Ed Balls: The Chancellor recently met his G8 colleagues at the pre-G8 Summit Finance Ministers meeting in St. Petersburg 9-10 June 2006. Ministers judged that global growth remains strong, although downside risks from high and volatile energy prices and widening global imbalances remain. They reiterated their commitment to addressing global imbalances and underlined that global economic adjustment is a shared responsibility. They further recognised the importance for global growth of an ambitious outcome from the Doha Development Round and committed to fighting protectionism.

Life Expectancy

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average life expectancy is for (a) men, (b) women and (c) all people in each primary care trust area. [84021]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 12 July 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking what the average life expectancy is for (a) men, (b) women and (c) all people in each primary care trust area. I am replying in her absence. (84021)

The most recently available figures for primary care trusts on life expectancy at birth are for 2001-2003 and are provided in the attached table, copies of which are being placed in the House of Commons Library.

Light Bulbs

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many light bulbs there are in his Department; and how many are energy efficient. [83511]

John Healey: The lighting system in the Treasury building at 1 Horse Guards road uses low energy fluorescent tubes. There are some 200 light bulbs used in the heritage lighting fittings, all of which are energy efficient.

Melanoma

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many patients were diagnosed with melanoma in each of the last 10 years. [84095]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the national statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 12 July 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many patients were diagnosed with melanoma in each of the last 10 years. I am replying in her absence. [84095]

The latest available figures for the incidence of melanoma skin cancer are for the year 2003. Registrations of newly diagnosed cases of cancer for 1994 for England and Wales, and from 1995 to 2003 for England, are available in Table 1 of the annual reference volumes, Cancer statistics: Registrations, Series MB1. These are available on the National Statistics website:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk=8843&Pos=&ColRank=1&Rank=224

Mesothelioma

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the likely impact of the House of Lords judgment in the case of Barker v. Corus UK Ltd. on future plans for public expenditure in respect of compensation payments for those suffering from mesothelioma. [75767]

Mr. Timms: Mesothelioma cancer is a terrible disease that afflicts many families in this country. The disease can manifest many years after exposure, and once diagnosed the individual's condition can rapidly deteriorate. In acknowledging the acute distress that this disease places upon families, the Government recognise the need for compensation to be paid in a timely manner.

In light of this the Government have been examining the implications for all those affected by the recent Law Lords ruling. The Prime Minister announced on 21 June that we have decided to amend the Compensation Bill. Officials in DCA are working at this moment to develop the right clause for the Bill.

National Minimum Wage

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people aged (a) over 22, (b) 18 to 21 and (c) under 18 years received the national minimum wage in (i) Thameside metropolitan borough, (ii) Stockport metropolitan borough and (iii) Denton and Reddish constituency in the most recent period for which figures are available. [84082]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 12 July 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question to ask how many people aged (a) 22 years and over, (b) 18 to 21 years and (c) under 18 years are receiving the minimum wage in (i) Tameside metropolitan borough, (ii) Stockport metropolitan borough and (iii) Denton and Reddish constituency in the most recent period available. I am replying in her absence. (84082)

Estimates for the number of jobs paid at the minimum wage for Parliamentary Constituencies and Local Authorities are not available. However the Office for National Statistics calculates estimates of the number of jobs paid less than national minimum wage rates for the United Kingdom and Government Office Regions. A guide to measuring low pay and associated articles and data can be found on the National Statistics website at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk=5837&Pos=1&ColRank=1&Rank=272

Nuclear Deterrent

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he plans to allocate funding additional to the current defence budget to meet the cost of a new generation of the nuclear deterrent. [82376]

Mr. Timms: Decisions on departmental funding beyond 2007-08 will be made in the CSR and published in summer 2007.

Official Residences

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the official residences for which his Department is responsible; who occupies each one; what the annual cost is of running each property; what contribution the occupants of each make towards running costs; what the total capital and refurbishment expenditure was on those properties in 2004-05; how much was spent in each property on (a) flowers and plants, (b) wine and entertaining, (c) food, (d) telephone bills and (e) electricity and gas in 2004-05; how many (i) domestic and (ii) maintenance staff are employed at each property, broken down by post; and what the total cost of staff employment was in 2004-05. [50880]

Ed Balls: The Treasury is responsible for the upkeep of No. 11 Downing street and for the flat at No. 10 Downing street. No notable capital and refurbishment expenses were incurred in 2004-05. Electricity is estimated at £3,153, gas at £532 and water at £410.

The share of overall security costs is £26,204 and of maintenance is £14,773.

Information on the Treasury's expenditure on official entertainment for 2004-05, the year in which Britain held the G8 Presidency, was given to the hon. Member by my colleague, the Under-Secretary of State for Health, the hon. Member for Bury, South (Mr. Lewis) on 14 February 2006, Official Report, column 1834. Further analysis in relation to food, alcohol, staff and accommodation could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

All expenditure on official entertainment is made in accordance with published departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety, based on the principles set out in "Government Accounting".

Telephone calls are included as part of the overall Downing street exchange.

Cleaning staff are part of the whole Downing street complex. There is one member of staff allocated to managing No.11 Downing street.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will answer Question 50880 tabled by the hon. Member for North East Hertfordshire on 7 February 2006, on official residences. [83032]

Ed Balls: I have done so.

Oil Prices

John Hemming: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what oil price his Department predicts for each of the next 10 years. [84271]

John Healey: The Treasury does not make detailed predictions of future prices. In projecting the public finances, the Treasury adopts an oil price assumption based on the average of independent forecasts, which is set out in PBR and Budget documents. This assumption was audited by the Comptroller and Auditor General in December 2005, when he concluded that:

"There is no clearly better method available for use in the future, though large uncertainties in predicted oil prices remain"

Personal Debt

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the total amount of personal debt was in (a) the UK, (b) Stockport metropolitan borough, (c) Tameside metropolitan borough and (d) Denton and Reddish constituency in the most recent period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [84083]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 12 July 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question on what the total amount of personal debt was in (a) the UK, (b) Stockport metropolitan borough, (c) Tameside metropolitan borough and (d) Denton and Reddish constituency in the most recent period for which figures are available. I am replying in her absence. (84083)

We are unable to provide levels of personal debt by region.

The total amount of personal debt in the UK in 2005 (end-year) is £1,275,740 million.

The estimate for total personal debt is a national accounts series for the combined household and non-profit institutions serving households (NPISH) sectors. Estimates for households alone are not available. NPISHs are legal entities which are principally engaged in the production of non-market services for households and whose main resources are voluntary contributions by households. For example, charities; relief and aid organisations; educational establishments; trade unions, professional associations, political parties and religious organisations, and sports clubs and associations.

Further data are available from table A64 in United Kingdom Economic Accounts which is available at the following address:

Note: When using Table 64 of United Kingdom Economic Accounts (web link given below) the database identifier is NNPP

Research and Development Tax Credits

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many companies have been investigated for fraud in the claiming of (a) research and development tax credits and (b) vaccines research relief since their inception; how many were found to be claiming fraudulently in each case; and if he will make a statement. [82155]

John Healey: Information regarding the underlying reasons for individual investigations and penalties is held locally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Published in December 2005, "Supporting growth in innovation: next steps for the R and D credit" announced that HMRC will set up specialist R and D units, which will develop expertise to ensure a more consistent handling of claims, together with an effective focus on non-compliance.

Stamp Duty

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people were calculated as being liable for payment of stamp duty in 2005-06; and if he will make a statement. [83648]

Ed Balls: There were estimated to be 930,000 UK residential transactions in 2005-06 where the price was above the normal stamp duty threshold of £120,000. The number of transactions where stamp duty was payable will be lower due to the use of reliefs, e.g. disadvantaged area relief.

Unemployment

Rosemary McKenna: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people were unemployed in Cumbernauld, Kilsyth and Kirkintilloch East (a) in each year since 1997 and (b) in the latest period for which figures are available. [83826]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 12 July 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about unemployment. I am replying in her absence. (83826)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles statistics of unemployment for local areas from the annual local area Labour Force Survey (LFS) and Annual Population Survey (APS) following International Labour Organisation definitions.

Table 1 shows the number of unemployed persons, aged 16 and over, resident in the Cumbernauld, Kilsyth and Kirkintilloch East Parliamentary Constituency for the 12 months ending February 2004, from the annual local area LFS, and for the 12-month periods ending in December from 2004 to 2005, from the APS. Data are not available for earlier years for the Scottish constituencies introduced in May 2005.

These estimates, as with any from sample surveys, are subject to a margin of uncertainty. Changes in the estimates from year to year should be treated with particular caution.

ONS also compiles statistics for local areas of people claiming Jobseeker's Allowance (ISA). The only available figures for the new Scottish constituencies on an annual average basis are for 2005 when there were 1,347 claimants of ISA resident in the Cumbernauld, Kilsyth and Kirkintilloch East Parliamentary Constituency. Table 2 shows the figures for this constituency on a single month basis for May 2004 to 2006.

VAT Exemptions

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether special VAT exemptions have been allowed to any non-profit-making organisations not registered as a charity in the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [83967]

Dawn Primarolo: The VAT rules contain a range of exemptions and other reliefs for charities and non-profit making organisations, including those bodies not registered with the appropriate charity regulators and registrars.

Wages

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his most recent estimate is of the (a) mean, and (b) median wage in (i) rural areas and (ii) non-rural areas; and if he will make a statement. [84617]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 12 July 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question to ask what the most recent estimate is of the (a) mean and (b) median wage in (i) rural and (ii) non rural areas. I am replying in her absence.

Average earnings by rural and non rural classifications are at present not available. New geographical methodologies mean, however, that following the publication of 2006 Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings (ASHE) results in October 2006 such analysis may be possible. The Office for National Statistics (ONS) will be considering this further in the autumn of 2006.

ONS does have analysis by Local Authority and Parliamentary Constituency published on the internet at:

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Animal Care Apprenticeships

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the Minister for Animal Welfare will reply to the letters of 12 April 2006 and 1 June 2006 from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire on animal care apprenticeships. [83537]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 10 July 2006]: I apologise for the long delay. A reply was sent on 28 June 2006.

Asda

Mr. Davidson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on what date meetings have taken place between the Department and representatives of Asda, including Asda's parent company Wal-Mart, in the last 12 months; and if she will list the participants. [59959]

Barry Gardiner: Pursuant to the answer given to the hon. Member on 24 April, Official Report, Column 813w, the answer stated that a meeting was held on 11 November 2005. Due to an administrative error this was incorrect. The date should have read 8 November 2005. The rest of the answer remains correct and is detailed in full in the following paragraph.

Because of the very wide range of goods and outlets involved, the retail sector is affected by more regulations than any other sector. Consequently, major retailers will have regular contact with many departments and may also be involved in working and consultative groups. To list every meeting would involve disproportionate cost, so the following information relates to key meetings only. In the last 12 months, meetings between Defra officials and Asda/Wal-Mart took place on: 22 July 2005; 11 November 2005; 11 February 2006; and 3 March 2006. In addition, a meeting with DEFRA Ministers took place on 8 December 2005. Data privacy legislation makes it inappropriate to list participants in those meetings.

Avian Influenza

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the potential threat of H5N1 avian influenza to the British agriculture industry. [84612]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department regularly carries out qualitative risk assessments of the potential threat of H5N1 avian influenza to the UK. These assessments are published on the Defra website:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/animalh/diseases/monitoring/riskassess.htm.

Defra has robust disease control plans and instructions to address an avian influenza epidemic in birds. These are set out in our Exotic Animal Disease Generic Contingency Plan, which is available on the Defra website:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/animalh/diseases/notifiable/disease/avianinfluenza-contplan.htm

These plans and procedures were tested recently during the national avian influenza exercise, Exercise Hawthorn, and used effectively to deal with the incident of H5N1 in Cellardyke and the outbreak of H7N3 in Norfolk.

Brixham Fish Market

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what decision was taken by his Department within the panel meeting on 25 May 2006 in relation to Torbay council's application for public funds for Brixham Fish Market; and what estimate he has made of the percentage of the total cost of the project the proposed funding from his Department would constitute. [83536]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 10 July 2006]: Torbay council's application for public funds for Brixham Fish Market was approved in principle, at the panel meeting on the 25 May 2006, and has subsequently been finalised as noted in my answer to the hon. Gentlemen's previous question to me on this matter.

The Financial Instrument for Fisheries Guidance (FIFG) funding granted for the project constitutes 29 per cent. of the overall cost of the project, based on current estimates from Torbay council.

Carbon Emissions

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent estimate he has made of the carbon emissions of his Department; what commitment he has made to reducing such emissions; and if he will make a statement. [81060]

Ian Pearson: Government departments submit data on their carbon emissions for annual Sustainable Development in Government Reports. The last report published by the Sustainable Development Commission in December 2005, covering the reporting period April 2004 to March 2005, is available at: http://www.sd-commission.org.uk/watchdog

DEFRA reported a 3 per cent. increase in absolute carbon emissions since 1999-2000, against a target of a 12.5 per cent. reduction by 2010-11 for central Government departments. It should be noted that due to machinery of government changes, the area occupied by the Department and its Executive Agencies increased by almost 9 per cent. during this period.

On 12 June 2006, the Prime Minister and the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs announced new sustainable operations targets for the Government Estate, replacing those in place since 2004. They focus on key areas such as carbon neutrality and emissions, energy efficiency, waste and water consumption.

They require all central Government departments to: reverse the current upward trend in carbon emissions by April 2007; reduce carbon emissions by 12.5 per cent. by 2010-11, (relative to 1999-2000 levels); reduce carbon emissions by 30 per cent. by 2020; have a carbon neutral office estate by 2012; and reduce carbon emissions from road vehicles used for Government administrative operations by 15 per cent. by 2010-11, (relative to 2005-06 levels).

Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many prosecutions under the Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act 2005 there have been for (a) crime and disorder, (b) fixed penalty notices, (c) nuisance and abandoned vehicles, (d) litter, (e) graffiti and fly-posting, (f) waste, (g) dogs and (h) noise in (i) each local authority and (ii) each police authority, broken down by basic command unit in each region of England and Wales since the introduction of the powers. [83764]

Mr. Bradshaw: Prosecutions cannot be brought under Part 1 of the Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act (CNEA) (Crime and Disorder).

The number of prosecutions for littering offences in relation to antisocial behaviour, and the number of penalty notices for disorder issued for littering offences, are shown in the following tables.

The measures involving prosecutions under the CNEA or the Environmental Protection Act 1990 (EPA) (as amended by the CNEA) on fixed penalty notices, graffiti and fly posting, waste, dogs, and noise were not commenced until 6 April 2006. Therefore, comprehensive figures for prosecutions under these sections will not be available until 2007. Similarly, figures relating to prosecutions pursued for nuisance parking offences under Sections 3 and 4 of the Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act are not available until the autumn.

From 6 June 2005, Section 18 of the CNEA extended the offence of littering under Section 87 of the EPA to all open spaces. However, data on prosecutions under Section 87 will not include the specifics of the offence, for example, if the case was being brought for the offence of littering in a watercourse.

Number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts for littering offences related to antisocial behaviour, by police force area, England and Wales, 2003 and 2004[1]

Cypermethrin

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what assessment he has made of the environmental impact of cypermethrin; [83788]

(2) what the reasons are for the delay in banning cypermethrin; [83789]

(3) when he expects all existing on-farm stocks of cypermethrin to be exhausted; [83790]

(4) what assessment he has made of the environmental impact of not implementing an immediate ban on cypermethrin. [83792]

Mr. Bradshaw: The environmental fate and effects of cypermethrin have been known for many years. A comprehensive monograph on the subject has been published by the World Heath Organisation under the auspices of the International Programme on Chemical Safety: Environmental Heath Criteria 82, Cypermethrin, WHO, Geneva 1989.

The impact assessments for the cypermethrin sheep dip products were performed in accordance with the legislation pertaining at the time of approval of the marketing authorisations. In order to gain approval of the marketing authorisation the applications would have had to meet the required standards of quality, safety and efficacy. Environmental impact is only one part of the overall risk/benefit balance for an individual product.

Cypermethrin-based sheep dip products are important for the control of sheep scab, blow fly strike and a number of other ectoparasites, all of which have serious welfare implications for affected animals. Therefore, the suspension was made on a precautionary basis. Before the future of these products can be considered, the veterinary medicines directorate needs to receive and assess further information on the environmental risks presented by their use and how these can be managed. The Marketing Authorisation Holders have been asked to provide such information.

Additionally, the VMD and the Environment Agency have commissioned an R and D project on environmental exposure to cypermethrin released to the farmyard and the impact of recently dipped sheep crossing watercourses. The results of this project should be available by the end of the summer and will be included in the assessments.

The existing stocks of the cypermethrin sheep dip products would have been the remnant of the products made for the 2005 dipping season. Therefore, the likelihood is that these will be used during the 2006 dipping season.

We have been working with farming groups to produce further information for farmers on the risks of environmental pollution from the use of cypermethrin sheep dips and the need to use the products carefully to avoid any pollution. The VMD, EA and SEPA have produced a public notice that is on their websites and will be made available to farmers through NFUs and agricultural merchants.

The EA continues to monitor for sheep dip pollution using the same approach that has detected and reported previous incidents. In addition, further investigative monitoring for sheep dip pollution will also be undertaken by the Environment Agency during 2006. This will provide a detailed picture of levels of pollution across England and Wales and highlight any misuse of existing stocks of cypermethrin sheep dip products.

Diseases of Fish (Control) Regulations

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what recent discussions he has had with the Scottish Executive Rural Affairs Department on changes to the Diseases of Fish (Control) Regulations 1994; [83384]

(2) what recent discussions he has had with the Scottish Executive Rural Affairs Department on (a) mitigation measures and (b) compensation in relation to aquaculture industries in circumstances where compulsory slaughter is ordered following an outbreak of a List 2 disease. [83385]

Mr. Bradshaw: Following the recent outbreak of viral haemorrhagic septicaemia on a trout farm in the River Ouse catchment area, officials from my Department are holding regular discussions with their counterparts in the Scottish Executive Rural Affairs Department on a range of matters relating to the control of the disease, including the application of risk mitigation measures.

The discussions have included consideration of changes that may be necessary to the Diseases of Fish (Control) Regulations 1994 (as amended), in the light of experience gained from dealing with the current outbreak. The discussions have also confirmed the Department's policy of not compensating for the compulsory slaughter of fish due to a serious disease outbreak.

Farmers (Retraining)

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding has been allocated to Suffolk in each of the past five years for retraining of farmers. [82728]

Barry Gardiner: The principal mechanism for funding the retraining of farmers is the Vocational Training Scheme (VTS), set up as part of the England Rural Development Programme and administered by DEFRA's Rural Development Service. Under this scheme, applications are accepted from either training organisers, or eligible individuals.

VTS funding has been awarded to projects focusing on general transferable business skills, diversification opportunities, or skills development related to specific farming activities, in order to maximise returns. The information given in the following table shows the money awarded by year to VTS projects sited in the county of Suffolk.

2001	120,00
2002	0
2003	131,000
2004	19,072
2006	0

However, a significant amount of VTS funding has been awarded to projects not based in Suffolk, but from which Suffolk's farmers have still benefited. Also, the figures above do not take account of National VTS projects, funded from the National budget, which may have included some Suffolk-based beneficiaries.

Flooding

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent representations he has received about the membership of the West Midlands Regional Flood Defence Committee; and if he will appoint a member who will represent Shropshire only. [82800]

Ian Pearson: The Severn Trent Regional Flood Defence Committee, which covers the Midlands Region of the Environment Agency, comprises a Chair and seven members appointed by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs; two members appointed by the Environment Agency; and 11 members appointed by county and unitary councils in the area of the Committee.

I have received no recent representations about membership of the Committee. In making appointments to the Committee my right hon. Friend has regard more to the experience and skills of prospective members than their geographical location. However, one of the DEFRA appointed members does live in Shropshire. Also, we recently advertised a number of DEFRA member vacancies in the Shropshire Star newspaper.

With regard to council appointees, the Committee's area encompasses 32 local authorities and clearly not all can be represented individually if we are to keep the Committee to a manageable size. We have therefore made provision for membership to be shared between some councils; one seat is shared between Shropshire, Telford and Wrekin and Worcestershire.

The arrangement for sharing of seats was based on advice from the Committee themselves on the best strategic alliances and representation based on population and properties at risk from flooding. Within those groupings, councils will agree between themselves who should provide the Committee member at any one time and clearly we would expect that person to ensure that they properly represent issues of concern to the other councils.

Hydro Electricity

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which organisation undertook the technical assessment of the hydro-electric potential of the River Cam on the Littlecombe site in Dursley; how the decision that hydro-electric power from this source was not a viable proposition was communicated to the Environment Agency; and what the basis was for this conclusion. [81084]

Ian Pearson: An agent acting on behalf of the owner of the site undertook the technical assessment.

The Environment Agency does not know how the decision was taken. They have not received any technical assessment or report relating to this site. At a meeting to discuss the development proposals, an Environment Agency officer was informed by the agent that the joint planning applicants for this site, St. Modwens Developments Limited and the South West of England Regional Development Agency, will not be proceeding with any hydro-electric power scheme. They did not give a reason for this.

Meat Imports

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much beef was imported into the UK from Brazil in (a) May, (b) June, (c) July and (d) August of each year since 2000. [82899]

Mr. Bradshaw: The following table shows imports of beef and beef products into the UK from Brazil for the months May to August for the years 2000 to 2005.

Plastic Bags

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the environmental impact of disposable plastic bags; and what support he is giving to research into bio-degradable alternatives. [81156]

Mr. Bradshaw: Plastic carrier bags make up 0.3 per cent. of the domestic waste stream and between 0.1 per cent. and 1 per cent. of visible litter. These figures are derived from municipal waste statistics and a visible litter survey conducted by INCPEN in 2004.

The Environment Agency is currently carrying out a study to consider the environmental impacts of a range of carrier bags (including disposable plastic carrier bags and bio-degradable alternatives) over their entire life-cycle, from raw material extraction through to product manufacture, use and final disposal. The study is due to report by the end of 2006.

The National Non-Food Crops Centre has also started work on Life Cycle Analysis comparison of plastic, oxodegradable and biodegradable bags, which will be available by March 2007. They have established a Thematic Working Group on Biopolymers which aims to promote and facilitate the expansion of this sector. Biopolymers are derived from renewable sources and can be used in a range of products including bags, which helps to develop a sustainable supply chain.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the impact on the environment of the (a) production and (b) use of plastic bags; and if he will make a statement. [82363]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 4 July 2006]: Plastic carrier bags make up 0.3 per cent. of the domestic waste stream and between 0.1 per cent. and 1 per cent. of visible litter. These figures are derived from municipal waste statistics and a visible litter survey conducted by the Industry Council for Packaging and the Environment (INCPEN) in 2004.

DEFRA is working closely with the Waste and Resources Action programme (WRAP) and the industry to promote re-usable bags and encourage other sustainable schemes that will reduce the number of plastic bags produced and discarded.

The Environment Agency is currently carrying out a study to consider the environmental impacts of a range of carrier bags (including disposable plastic carrier bags and bio-degradable alternatives) over their entire life-cycle, from raw material extraction through to product manufacture, use and final disposal. The study is due to report by the end of 2006.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what recent discussions he has had with supermarkets about the production and use of plastic bags; and if he will make a statement; [82364]

(2) what steps he is taking (a) to reduce the production and use of and (b) to encourage the recycling of plastic bags; and if he will make a statement; [82365]

Mr. Bradshaw: DEFRA, the Welsh Assembly Government and the Scottish Executive have asked the Waste and Resources Action programme (WRAP) to carry out research on voluntary ways of reducing the number of free carrier bags taken by consumers from shops and supermarkets.

WRAP has recently conducted a pilot "Choose to Reuse" campaign to encourage consumers to reuse bags, whether they choose to purchase a "Bag for Life" made available through retailer schemes, or to bring their own bag with them each time they shop. The campaign was set up with a particular emphasis on supermarket shopping since the vast majority of disposable free carrier bags are dispensed from these stores, and the frequency of visits enabled a more focused campaign with the aim of having the greatest impact on the consumer.

The pilots took place in two areas—Edinburgh and Bristol—running from mid-September until the end of November 2005. Retailers were invited to join in the campaign by WRAP and also encouraged by the British Retail Consortium, Scottish Retail Consortium and the Scottish Executive (in Edinburgh). The supermarket chains that decided to take part included ASDA, Tesco, Somerfield, Co-op, Scotmid and Waitrose.

The results will be published soon, and we will then look at how this work can be developed further.

Research Centre Closures

Mr. Ian Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to be able to respond to the letter of 30 January 2006 to the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State at the Home Office on proposals to close research centres under the Science and Innovation Strategy 2005 to 2008 which was subsequently transferred to the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State in his Department in April 2006. [82677]

Mr. Bradshaw: I apologise for the delay in replying to the hon. Member's letter. A response will be issued shortly.

Rural Enterprise Scheme

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the Rural Enterprise scheme programme was ended; and how many applications were outstanding at that date, including those to which funding had been committed. [79686]

Barry Gardiner: The Rural Enterprise scheme (RES) closed to new applications on Friday 30 June 2006.

As of 6 July 2006, and across the whole country, some 641 applications for funding were undergoing validity and eligibility checks and technical assessment, or had completed those stages and were awaiting the next regional appraisal panel for them to be considered for funding.

Not all of these applications will ultimately be eligible for funding, and of those that are, Rural Development Service staff will have to consider which best meet the criteria of the scheme and offer best value for the limited funding that remains, in the context of regional priorities.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs why Business Link was advertising the Rural Enterprise scheme after all the relevant funds had been committed. [80020]

Barry Gardiner: The Rural Enterprise scheme (RES) closed to new applications on Friday 30 June 2006. All eligible applications received by DEFRA's Rural Development Service up till that date are now being considered for the remaining funding on their merits and in competition with other projects.

DEFRA officials will work with Business Link to ensure that information on the scheme is updated appropriately.

Single Farm Payments

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many single farm payments (a) are outstanding and (b) have been made in each English region by the Rural Payments Agency; and if he will make a statement. [74636]

Barry Gardiner: The total number of Single Payment Scheme customers is approximately 120,000. As at 30 June, an estimated 8,500 claimants have yet to receive a payment. Approximately 460 currently have a claim value of more than €1,000.

Details of payments made in England up to 30 June 2006, including by constituency and county, will be published in due course.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many people have yet to be paid any of their single farm payment; why the Rural Payments Agency computer was shut down between 27 May and 5 June; and for what reasons payments have yet to be made to eligible claimants. [77814]

Barry Gardiner: By close of business on 13 June 2006, 107,888 customers had received a full or partial payment. This means approximately 8,500 customers are yet to receive any payment. However, the vast majority of these claims are worth less than €1,000.

The computer system used by the Rural Payments Agency needed to be upgraded. This work was timed over the Bank Holiday weekend to minimise the impact on the business, but work carried on offline to continue processing and validation.

The reasons why customers have not received their payment yet vary widely between individuals but include customer registration issues, outstanding dual claims and Rural Land Register discrepancies.

Mr. Osten: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farmers who have (a) valid claims, (b) part paid claims and (c) queried claims have yet to receive their full single farm payment. [77653]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 15 June 2006]: The Rural Payments Agency is responsible for the administration of the Single Payment Scheme. As of 4 July 2006, 24,723 of an estimated claim population of 116,474 had not received their 2005 scheme payment in full. Some 16,176 farmers had received a partial payment and are awaiting the balance payment. The vast majority of the remaining 24,723 claims still have queries to resolve.

Veterinary Surgeons

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to encourage recruitment of veterinary surgeons to large animal veterinary practices; and how this is incorporated into the Government's animal health strategy. [83270]

Mr. Bradshaw: We are working in partnership with the veterinary profession to ensure that we have a sustainable large animal veterinary sector, which is able to play a full and effective part in the implementation of the animal health and welfare strategy. There are a range of challenges facing large animal veterinary practice and many of these are principally for the veterinary profession to address. I therefore welcome the recent Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons' (RCVS) symposium "Postcards from the Future", as a very helpful contribution to the ongoing dialogue.

We are training more veterinary surgeons than ever before and there is evidence that large animal work is still attractive to students. However, there are issues about the retention of newly qualified vets which were identified by research jointly funded by DEFRA and the RCVS. The RCVS's initiatives on professional development phase and practice standards are examples of steps taken by the profession to help ensure that farm animal veterinary work provides a challenging and rewarding career for new graduates.

We are also working with the profession to better understand the trends within large animal veterinary practice and contributed to the RCVS 2006 Manpower survey. This information will help establish a stronger evidence base which should help keep the profession informed on key issues like recruitment and retention.

Water Companies

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make it his policy to bring all water companies back into public ownership; and if he will make a statement. [84286]

Ian Pearson: No. Since the English and Welsh water and sewerage companies were privatised in 1989 they have become much more efficient and have greatly improved our drinking water quality and the water environment.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

EU Legislation

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Leader of the House what plans he has to improve the scrutiny of EU legislation. [83424]

Mr. Straw: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Leicester, East (Keith Vaz) on 10 July 2006, Official Report, column 1560W.

Official Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Leader of the House on how many occasions he has visited each region in an official capacity in the last 12 months. [84006]

Mr. Straw: Since being appointed on 5 May 2006, I have made no official visits to the regions in my capacity as Leader of the House. However, as Chair of the Select Committee on Modernisation, I visited the National Assembly for Wales in Cardiff on 7 June, with other committee members, as part of the Committee's inquiry into the legislative process.

Parliamentary and Health Ombudsman

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Leader of the House if he will allocate a slot during oral question time for an hon. Member appointed to take questions on the work of the parliamentary and health ombudsman. [82978]

Mr. Straw: I have no plans to do so.

Issues relating to the work and the office of the Parliamentary Commissioner for Administration can be raised with relevant departmental Ministers.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Khabra: To ask the Leader of the House what the cost to the Government was of administering written questions to Ministers in 2005-06. [83824]

Mr. Straw: The cost of answering a written question as notified to the House by the former Financial Secretary to the Treasury (Mr. Timms) on 22 March 2005, Official Report, column 47WS, is £134.00.

The cost to Government of answering the total of 78,152 written questions (ordinary and named day) tabled from the start of the current session until 30 June 2006 is estimated to be £10,472,368. This sum does not include costs of printing and those of the House.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Foreign Language Courses

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what research the Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the merits for students studying English language to be able to compare it with foreign languages. [82755]

Jim Knight: The Department is currently in the process of commissioning research which, through case studies, will assess the impact of modern foreign language learning on Key Stage 2 pupils over three years. This will include exploring whether language learning impacts on the attainment levels of other subjects such as English. The research is expected to report in the autumn 2009.

Free School Meals

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many secondary school pupils were eligible for free school meals in each local authority listed in ascending order in (a) the last year for which figures are available and (b) 1997; and what percentage of secondary school pupils took up free school meals in each year. [82664]

Jim Knight: The available information is shown in the following tables.

Maintained secondary schools: number and percentage of pupils by school meal arrangements. Position in January each year 1997 and 2006 (provisional). By local authority area. (In ascending order of the percentage of pupils who were known to be eligible for free school meals as at January 2006).

Physical Education

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many and what proportion of children aged five to 16-years-old in the East Riding of Yorkshire take part in at least two hours of high-quality physical education and school sport each week; and if he will make a statement. [84655]

Jim Knight: Data from the 2004/05 survey of schools in school sport partnerships found that 80 per cent. of five to 16-year-olds in East Riding of Yorkshire took part in at least two hours-high-quality PE and school sport each week.

School Attendance

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the rate of school attendance was in the East Riding of Yorkshire for 11 to 16 year olds in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [84656]

Jim Knight: Figures for the proportion of half days missed due to absence in maintained mainstream secondary schools in East Riding of Yorkshire local authority are given in the following table:

Unauthorised absence is absence without leave from a teacher or other authorised representative of the school. This includes all unexplained or unjustified absences, such as lateness, holidays during term time not authorised by the school, absence where reason is not yet established and truancy.

School Closures

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) primary and (b) secondary schools have closed in (i) rural and (ii) non-rural areas in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [84636]

Jim Knight: Local authorities are responsible for balancing the supply and demand of places in their areas to ensure schools serve the needs of their local communities and provide good quality education in the most cost effective way. As part of this, they need to determine the numbers of schools they need, taking into account the views and aspirations of parents and other stakeholders. Since February 1998 there has been a presumption against the closure of rural schools. Although this does not mean that no rural school will ever close, the case for closure needs to be strong and clearly in the best interests of education provision in the area.

The numbers of primary and secondary schools that have closed in rural and urban areas each year since 1997 are listed in the following table.

	Urban		Rural[1]
	Primary	Secondary	Primary	Secondary
1997	125	11	6	0
1998	115	11	5	0
1999	182	35	2	0
2000	99	7	2	0
2001	188	19	3	0
2002	189	18	5	0
2003	201	17	10	2
2004	205	31	7	2
2005	227	15	8	0
2006[2]	224	21	6	0

[1] The rural figures exclude amalgamations where two schools have been replaced by one new school on the same site.
[2] The 2006 figures include schools that have been approved for closure during the current calendar year.

School Orchestras

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of secondary schools have a school orchestra. [84523]

Jim Knight: This information is not collected centrally.

Pupils (West Lancashire)

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) primary and (b) secondary school age children normally resident in the West Lancashire district council area are being educated outside the local education authority area. [83566]

Jim Knight: The information requested has been provided in the following table.

	Number of pupils[1] residing within West Lancashire Local Authority District	Number of pupils[1] residing within West Lancashire Local Authority Attending schools outside of the Local Authority District	Percentage of pupils[1] residing within West Lancashire Local Authority Attending schools outside of the Local Authority District

Sure Start

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the performance of the Sure Start programme in West Lancashire in reaching new families and children in the relevant local area. [83636]

Beverley Hughes: There are three Sure Start children's centres up and running in West Lancashire offering services to 1,037 children under five and their families including 217 childcare places. We do not currently collect data on the number of families and children accessing children's centre services.

One of the Sure Start Children's centres in the West Lancashire constituency was based on the Tanhouse and Digmoor Sure Start Local Programme (SSLP) and data returns provided by the SSLP show the following information. The programme offers services to 520 children under four and their families. Between July 2002 and June 2003 the SSLP submitted monthly data returns reporting significant contact (that is, a home visit or attendance at a centre-based activity) with 200[1] new children. Between July 2003 and December 2004 the SSLP reported significant contact with an additional 75[2] children.

[1] Sure Start Local Programme data returns July 2002 to June 2003.

[2] Source: Sure Start Local Programme data returns July 2003 to December 2004. During this period data was collected quarterly and the figure records only new children seen in the months in which returns were submitted.

Teachers (Bristol)

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the pupil to teacher ratio was for (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in Bristol local education authority in (i) 1996-97 and (ii) the most recent school year for which figures are available. [84608]

Jim Knight: The following table shows the pupil to teacher ratio in maintained primary and secondary schools in Bristol local authority, January 1997 and January 2005 (the latest year for which information is available at local authority level). Information for England is also given to enable comparison.

It is anticipated that local authority level pupil to teacher ratios for January 2006 will become available in September.

Pupil:teacher ratios[1] in maintained primary and secondary schools in Bristol local authority and England, January 1997 and 2005

	Pupil:teacher ratio

Annual School Census

Vocational Training

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what links exist between his Department and the European Centre for the Development of Vocational Training; and if he will make a statement. [84288]

Phil Hope: The Department's links with the European Centre for the Development of Vocational Training (CEDEFOP) are at the following levels:

(i) Occupying the UK seat on the CEDEFOP management board

(ii) Chairing the steering group of the UK Refernet steering group, which brings together key stakeholders to manage research and exchange of information for CEDEFOP in the UK

(iii) Co-ordinating the CEDEFOP study visits programme in the UK

These roles are carried out by DfES officials.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what projects are funded by the EU in the UK to develop credit systems for vocational education and training, as advertised in Official Journal C144 20 June 2006 p.19; and what his policy is on UK participation in this project. [84293]

Phil Hope: The Official Journal reference constitutes a call for proposals, with a deadline of 16 August, so as yet there are no funded projects.

We are committed to the development of a flexible European credit system to recognise learners' achievements, and to participating actively in this project. To that end, the UK is represented on a Technical Working Group, set up by the European Commission, to explore all relevant issues.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the threat posed by non-Iraqi insurgent veterans of the Iraq conflict entering Helmand Province. [83702]

Des Browne: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 3 July 2006, Official Report, column 698W.

Colombia

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his answer of 10 May 2006, Official Report, column 298W, on Colombia, if he will list the Colombian military units whose personnel have been provided with UK bespoke counter narcotics training. [83816]

Mr. Ingram: I refer my hon. Friend to my answer of 10 May 2006, Official Report, column 298W.

I am withholding information on the details of this bespoke training because its disclosure would be to the detriment of the safety of individuals, the prevention and detection of crime and international relations.

Defence Analytical Services Agency

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence why the Defence Analytical Services Agency has suspended its statistics on global deployment of service personnel (TSP 06). [83968]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 11 July 2006]: TSP 6: Global location of UK regular forces is a DASA publication which shows the distribution of service personnel posted overseas. The publication was suspended at the end of 2002 when conflicts were identified with data from other sources in the department.

TSP 6 was reinstated on the 12 September 2005. This showed the posted location of UK regular forces at the 1 April 2005. TSP 6 is published quarterly and copies are available in the Library of the House and at; www.dasa.mod.uk.

Defence Medical Services

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what measures he will take to attract and retain (a) medical officers and (b) healthcare professionals in the Defence Medical Services. [84482]

Mr. Watson: Manning levels in the Defence Medical Services (DMS) vary across different specialities and services. In some areas we are very well manned, while in others we are experiencing shortfalls.

The Ministry of Defence is taking active steps to address shortfalls through a package of pay and non-remunerative measures, including such schemes as "Golden Hellos" targeted at enhancing direct recruitment in areas of shortfall. In terms of overall remuneration, we aim to ensure that DMS pay is comparable with the NHS. The Government are currently considering the recommendations of the independent armed forces pay review body's (AFPRB) 2006 supplementary report on the pay of Service Medical and dental officers, and an announcement on the pay award will be made once this process is complete.

Nurses and Allied Health Professionals in the DMS are currently covered by the main armed forces 2006 pay award of three per cent., which was implemented from 1 April 2006. As recommended by the AFPRB, we are now in the process of examining the scope for changing Nursed and Allied Health Professionals pay structures to ensure that military pay remains comparable with the new NHS agenda for change pay structure.

Pay can only go some way towards addressing manning shortfalls. Non-remunerative measures are equally as important. Examples of non-remunerative initiatives include: the introduction of new pension arrangements which are designed to encourage retention; looking at alternative means of meeting operational commitments (for example, by working closely with allies and partners on operations overseas and by using DMS civilian medical and dental practitioners and agency staff); and development of the Ministry of Defence hospital unit concept to build a stronger military ethos.

Draft Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what draft Bills have been produced by his Department since October 2005; how many were (a) examined and (b) are planned to be examined by (i) a Departmental Select Committee and (ii) a Joint Committee; which draft Bills are still to be produced by his Department; when each is expected to be published; how many clauses each has; and if he will make a statement. [81286]

Mr. Watson: The Ministry of Defence has produced no draft Bills since October 2005.

Announcements on future legislation and future draft legislation which will be subject to pre-legislative scrutiny will be included in the Queen's Speech.

Helicopters

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how long it would take to train a qualified (a) civilian and (b) army helicopter pilot to the level where he or she is competent to fly patrols in hostile environments in light commercial helicopters; [83637]

(2) how long it takes to train (a) an RAF, (b) a Royal Navy and (c) an Army helicopter pilot to full operational status; [83638]

(3) whether there is scope for training an Army helicopter pilot to full operational status where he or she is competent to fly patrols in hostile environments in a light commercial helicopter in a shorter period of time than normal in periods of high urgent demand for such pilots. [84309]

Mr. Watson: Military helicopter pilots undergo different phases of training, which vary in type and duration according to which service and type of aircraft is involved. All military helicopter pilots undergo an initial period of elementary fixed-wing training. This is followed by basic and advanced rotary-wing training at the Defence Helicopter Flying School at RAF Shawbury. The final phase of training involves pilots undertaking operational conversion flying at their single-service front-line or training units.

The average number of weeks taken to train helicopter pilots of each service from start to until they are able to fly operationally, including initial fixed-wing training, is as follows:

Service	Weeks
Royal Navy	87
Roy al Air Force	110

Professionally qualified civilian helicopter pilots would need to develop the relevant low-level flying and tactical skills in order to attain the required competence for operational flying in hostile environments. It is estimated that such training would take approximately 20 weeks.

Army helicopter pilots are always trained to full operational status. They do not operate light commercial helicopters but are trained to fly military light utility helicopters, such as the Lynx, in hostile environments as part of the mandated training programme described. Military helicopter training is not shortened or hastened to meet operational demands. It is vital that each training phase is completed and that the syllabus is fully achieved in order to produce the high standards that military flying demands.

Hospital Ships

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what frontline hospital ship capacity (a) is available and (b) is planned to be available to the fleet. [83613]

Mr. Ingram: RFA Argus is designated as the frontline Primary Casualty Reception Ship. She is equipped with a hospital complex which includes two operating theatres and has up to 100 beds for casualties. No decisions have been made on the future provision of a deployed maritime medical capability.

HQ Land Forces/Adjutant-General

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) service and (b) civilian manning levels in (i) HQ Land Forces and (ii) Adjutant-General's Department are, broken down by function; and what the planned manning levels after merger and relocation to Andover are. [83697]

Mr. Ingram: There are currently 597 military and 759 civilian posts at HQ Land Command in Wilton and 325 military and 470 civilian posts at the Adjutant-General's headquarters in Upavon, of which approximately 250 are support staff across both sites. It is expected that 677 military and 837 civilian posts will transfer from Wilton and Upavon to the new Land Forces headquarters. In addition, we expect that 103 military and 51 civilian posts currently based at other sites will move to the new headquarters, and that 140 military and 152 civilian posts currently based at Wilton and Upavon will move to other sites. On current plans, 105 military and 240 civilian posts will be removed.

I will write to the hon. Member with a breakdown of current military and civilian posts at HQ Land Command and the Adjutant-General's headquarters and place a copy of the letter in the Library of the House.

Injured British Servicemen (Treatment)

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British troops are being treated for injuries sustained in Iraq in (a) Al Udeid, (b) Baghdad, (c) Basra Air Station, (d) Seeb Tallil, (e) Al Muthanna, (f) Al Amarah, (g) the Princess Mary Hospital, RAF Akrotiri, (h) the Royal Centre for Defence Medicine at Selly Oak Hospital, Birmingham, (i) the Defence Medical Rehabilitation Centre, Headley Court and (j) each of the regional rehabilitation units in the UK. [82051]

Des Browne: Information on the number of people treated at each of the facilities requested is not routinely collected and held centrally, and to do so would involve disproportionate cost. However each facility was requested to make a specific report for the purpose of answering this question. Please see the following table, which shows the number of personnel who received treatment in each facility on the date shown for injuries sustained in Iraq.

Medical facility/location	Date data collected	Number of personnel
Al Udeid	29 June 2006	0
Basra Air Station	29 June 2006	0

[1] Lichfield is not shown since it is a Multi-injury Assessment Clinic and does not provide treatment.

Iraq

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which units have remained in Iraq longer than their planned deployment because of shortages of air transport in the last 12 months; how long each has remained in Iraq; and if he will make a statement. [81134]

Des Browne: No units have remained in Iraq longer than their planned deployment because of shortages of air transport in the last 12 months. Scheduled routine flights may however be delayed for a variety of reasons, including adverse weather, technical difficulties, ground handling problems, de-conflicting aircraft movements and force protection of airfields.

RAF Complaints Process

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what complaint process is available to RAF personnel who experience administrative errors in the payment of wages and salary; and how complaints under the process are dealt with. [84386]

Mr. Watson: Complaints from RAF personnel concerning payment of salary may be routed via mail, e-mail or fax to the Armed Forces Personnel Administration Agency (AFPAA), as set out in a customer care charter. Alternatively, a complaint may be raised via the Unit Personnel Services Flight who will pass it to AFPAA.

Each complaint is logged and given a unique reference number enabling it to be tracked, and an acknowledgement sent. The complaint is then passed to the appropriate operations area for investigation and response. Where the individual remains dissatisfied with the response, they are able to invoke the general formal P.AF Redress to complaint procedure.

Royal Fleet Auxiliary Ships

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his policy is for (a) the retention in service and (b) the upgrading of Royal Fleet Auxiliary Argus. [83612]

Mr. Ingram: On current plans Royal Fleet Auxiliary Argus will be withdrawn from service in 2020. No decisions have been taken on the upgrading of RFA Argus, though we are considering our options for the future provision of a Joint Casualty Treatment Ship capability.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) additions and (b) deletions have been made within the past 12 months to the list of Royal Navy and Royal Fleet Auxiliary ships scheduled for refitting and upgrading. [83614]

Mr. Ingram: During the twelve months from 30 June 2005 to 1 July 2006, there were no additions or deletions to forward plans to the refit of Royal Navy (RN) and Royal Fleet Auxiliary (RFA) ships. Refits are, however, part of a wider upkeep programme, from which there have been seventeen deletions, but no additions. These deletions, which remove projects between 2006 and 2020, are listed in the following table:

	Ship	Reason for the deletion
2008	HMS Illustrious	Replaced with alternative maintenance
2010	HMS Illustrious	Replaced with alternative maintenance
2006	RFA Sir Tristram	Reviewed and no longer required
2012	HMS Ark Royal	Reviewed and no longer required
2015	HMS Ocean	Reviewed and no longer required
2007	HMS Endurance	Revised maintenance cycle
2008	HMS Roebuck	Revised maintenance cycle
2011	HMS Scott	Revised maintenance cycle
2012	HMS Endurance	Revised maintenance cycle
2014	HMS Endurance	Revised maintenance cycle
2014	HMS Roebuck	Revised maintenance cycle
2017	HMS Quorn	Revised maintenance cycle
2017	HMS Scott	Revised maintenance cycle
2018	HMS Chiddingfold	Revised maintenance cycle
2019	HMS Middleton	Revised maintenance cycle
2020	HMS Hurworth	Revised maintenance cycle
2020	HMS Scott	Revised maintenance cycle

RN and RFA ships are not specifically scheduled for upgrades, since equipment is upgraded when the opportunity arises, usually as part of an upkeep period. Opportunities to undertake upgrades are kept under regular review and can change for operational reasons.

Tour Intervals

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on progress in his Department's measurement of tour intervals of personnel in the (a) Royal Navy and (b) Royal Air Force. [81136]

Mr. Ingram: Harmony guidelines are measured in two ways: unit harmony, which is expressed in tour intervals, and individual harmony through separated service, which is the length of time individuals spend away from their home base. The former is relatively easy to measure but can mask the actual effect of deployments on individuals. Work is therefore in progress to develop a common and effective system of separated service measurement. Currently, each service has its own procedures for measuring harmony. These take account of the different service regimes for manning and career management, training requirements and patterns of deployment. The different systems do not allow straightforward comparisons of the impact of separation on people to be made between services.

A common definition of separated service has now been developed and the service rules for recording have been harmonised. These harmonised rules take effect, for each service in turn, with the roll out of the Joint Personnel Administration system. This is now in operation for the Royal Air Force and, when complete for the Royal Navy (anticipated in November 2006) and Army (anticipated in March 2007), will allow accurate measurement of separated service across the armed forces.

Welfare Services

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the effect on morale of servicewomen of using Nell McAndrew to advertise the Confidential Support Line. [83915]

Mr. Watson: One of Nell McAndrew's chosen charities is the Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen and Families Association, which operates the Confidential Support Line. We are very grateful for her support for Service personnel and its positive effect on morale.

HEALTH

Food (Nutritional Content)

Mr. McGovern: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will assess the merits of banning the sale of food containing hydrogenated fats. [84713]

Caroline Flint: The Government have no plans to ban the sale of foods containing hydrogenated fats. There have been concerns expressed about hydrogenated fats due to their high level of trans fatty acids (TFA). The average consumption of TFA is below the maximum level recommended by the Committee on Medical Aspects of Food Policy in 1994.

Mr. McGovern: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will introduce regulations requiring fast food outlets to publish nutritional information about their products in an easily accessible and public form. [84715]

Caroline Flint: There are no plans to introduce regulations of this sort. The Food Standards Agency encourages catering establishments, including fast food outlets, to voluntarily provide information about the nutritional content of the food they serve to help consumers who wish to use such information to inform their choices.

Mr. McGovern: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will assess the merits of making the traffic light system for nutritional information on food packaging compulsory for all forms of packaged food. [84716]

Caroline Flint: The Government currently have no plans to make front of pack signpost nutritional labelling compulsory. Responsibility for food labelling lies with the European Union and the rules are harmonised across Europe. The European Commission wishes to update the existing nutrition labelling legislation and recognises the need for simpler nutritional information which will help the consumer to make healthier choices. Formal proposals are expected from the Commission next year.

Mr. McGovern: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the voluntary traffic light system for nutritional information on food packaging. [84717]

Caroline Flint: Comprehensive consumer research with more than 2,500 participants conducted by the Foods Standards Agency (FSA) has shown that the Government-endorsed approach recommended by the FSA helps consumers across all population groups make healthier choices. The vast majority of consumers (96 per cent.) thought a simplified front of pack nutritional signposting scheme would help them make healthier choices.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Energy Efficiency

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the Government's strategy is for encouraging energy efficiency measures for those living in fuel poverty. [79695]

Ian Pearson: I have been asked to reply.

A range of schemes and policies are in place to help tackle fuel poverty. It was announced in the 2005 pre-Budget report that an additional £300 million would be made available to tackle fuel poverty across the UK over the 2005-08 period.

The main tool for eradicating fuel poverty in England is the Warm Front scheme which provides a range of energy efficiency measures and advice to vulnerable households. Warm Front has already assisted more than one million vulnerable households. Similar schemes exist in each of the devolved administrations.

There are a range of other schemes and policies in place to improve the energy efficiency of domestic properties, such as the Energy Efficiency Commitment and the Decent Homes Standard. These have provision to target assistance at the most vulnerable low-income families and pensioner households.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Departmental Costs

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what costs arising from setting up her Department have been allocated to the corporate communications budgets. [79381]

Angela E. Smith: To date the total costs that have been allocated to the corporate communications budget come to £12,000. This has come from existing budgets.

Departmental Discussions

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions she has had with (a) the Treasury and (b) the Cabinet Office regarding the pre-comprehensive spending review report; and if she will make a statement. [82848]

Angela E. Smith: The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government has had and will continue to have wide ranging and regular discussions with the chief secretary about preparations for the 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review, as a matter of key importance to the Department for Communities and Local Government's medium and long term planning.

FIFA World Cup

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which matches (a) she and (b) other Ministers in her Department attended at the FIFA World Cup 2006 in Germany in their ministerial capacity; at what cost to public funds; and with what contributions from third party organisations. [83618]

Angela E. Smith: No Minister from this Department has attended any of the FIFA World Cup 2006 matches in Germany, but we did watch them on T.V.

Fire Service

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on the planned regionalisation of fire service control rooms. [80248]

Angela E. Smith: Independent reviews have consistently shown that creating an integrated system of nine regional control centres will provide a more resilient, effective and efficient service. The current 46 fire control centres were not designed to deal in a co-ordinated way with major, regional or national incidents. The new system will offer more reliable fallback in times of peak demand or external threats such as flooding, and more effective response to all incidents, particularly those of substantial scale or complexity.

Private Finance Initiative Projects

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government by what total amount Private Finance Initiative projects for which her Department is responsible which went over budget did so in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [83652]

Angela E. Smith: Responsibility for the Department for Communities and Local Government's Private Finance Initiative (PFI) projects rest with individual local authorities taking forward PFI projects. To date the Department has not been informed of any PFI projects going over budget.

The risk of PFI projects going over budget is normally transferred to the private sector. If a cost overrun affects the delivery of the service being provided, the public sector has the right to make performance deductions from the unitary charge. Furthermore, unitary charge payments do not commence until the service is operational and meets agreed standards.

Swindon Borough Council

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what purposes funding was allocated to Swindon borough council under the category of building capacity in (a) 2004-05 and (b) 2005-06. [84730]

Angela E. Smith: The information requested is set out in the following table.

Headline project and date approved	Grant approved (£)	Headline project and date approved	Grant approved (£)
Peer support grant (April 2004)	10,400	Leadership support grant (September 2005)	3,95.0
Leadership support grant (July 2004)	21,200	Public protection grant (September 2005)	11,000
Peer support grant (September 2004)	38,400	Programme and Project Management (August 2005)	271,000
Public protection grant (January 2005)	15,000	Workforce Development and Human Resources (August 2005)	130,000
		Member Development (August 2005)	15,000
		Communications and Information Technology Communications (August 2005)	182,000
		Strategy and Efficiency Review (August 2005)	146,000
		Local Area Agreements (August2005)	20,000
		Corporate Management recruitment (August 2005)	136,000
		Revenues and Benefits service (August 2005)	100,000
Total	85,000	Total	1,014,950

In addition, Swindon received approval for a grant of £1,000,000 in March 2005 to establish a partnership between Kent county council and Swindon borough council in order to improve the social services provided to the people of Swindon. The Department of Health met £180,000 of the £1,000,000.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Clissold Road Swimming Pool

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when the Clissold Road swimming pool will re-open. [84165]

Mr. Caborn: I understand that Clissold Leisure Centre is now expected to re-open in July 2007. Sport England will continue to monitor the time scales and milestones towards the re-opening.

Football

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many football coaches have been funded from public funds in Crewe and Nantwich constituency in the last two years for (a) ethnic minorities, (b) women and girls and (c) children with learning difficulties; where these sessions were held; how many sessions were held for each group; how many primary and after school sessions have been arranged; where; by whom; and at what cost. [83359]

Mr. Caborn: Through its Whole Sport Plan, the FA provides coaching in the Crewe and Nantwich area. Detailed information in the requested format is not available. However, I can confirm that 15 Community Sports Coaches are employed within the Cheshire and Warrington Sports Partnership to provide coaching sessions, including in primary schools and after school. Three of these coaches spend a proportion of their coaching time in Crewe and Nantwich. Two of the Community Sports Coaches coach football, although not in Crewe and Nantwich. However, the local authority in Crewe and Nantwich has recruited a part-time football Community Sports Coach who will focus on females, ethnic minorities and people with disabilities.

According to Sport England figures, between April 2005 and March 2006, there were 108,209 attendances at coaching sessions provided by Community Sports Coaches in the Cheshire and Warrington Sports Partnership area. Of these, 36,428 were female, 2,632 had a disability and 2,306 were from black, Asian or other minority ethnic group.

London Olympics

Mr. Khabra: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps the Government is taking to extend the benefits of the 2012 London Olympics to (a) Ealing, Southall and (b) West London. [83825]

Mr. Caborn: The Government are determined that the whole of London and the UK will benefit from the games in 2012.

The Greater London Authority, which is the body responsible for co-ordinating the delivery of the legacy and benefits of the 2012 Olympic Games and Paralympics Games for London, is working closely with the London Development Agency and local and sub-regional partnerships to ensure that people and businesses all over London have the information and skills they need to take advantage of the full range of opportunities arising from hosting the games.

Specifically, the London borough of Ealing has been working at a local level through the West London Alliance Olympic Officers Group, to develop an action plan to maximise benefits to Ealing and West London as a whole.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much the 2012 London Olympic park is expected to cost. [84240]

Mr. Caborn: The Olympic Delivery Authority is currently procuring the delivery partner that will help the ODA to deliver the Olympic and legacy construction. One element of the delivery partner's role will be to examine the programme for the Olympic Park and costs associated with it. We expect this assessment to be completed within six to nine months of the appointment.

Lottery Funding (School Facilities)

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much national lottery funding has been made available for local sports facilities over the past five years. [84643]

Mr. Caborn: Since the start of 2001, 17,689 lottery awards worth a total value of £1.3 billion have been made by the five sports lottery distributors.

Local sports facilities are not identified as a category on the Department's lottery grants database. The information could therefore be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Information on all lottery awards is available from the database, searchable at www.lottery.culture.gov.uk, which uses information supplied by the lottery distributors.

Royal Parks Agency

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was given in grants by her Department to the Royal Parks Agency in each of the past five financial years. [84121]

Mr. Lammy: The table shows the funding received by the Royal Parks from the Department for the periods shown.

	Amount of public funding given by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport (£)
Financial year	Resource	Capital
2002-03	25.6 million	1.4 million
2003-04	25.4 million	5.1 million
2004-05	26.7 million	2.7 million
2005-06	26.2 million	[1]900,000
2006-07	26.2 million	[1]900,000

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Comprehensive Spending Review

Dr. Cable: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what discussions the Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs has had with (a) the Treasury and (b) the Cabinet Office regarding the pre-comprehensive spending review report; and if she will make a statement. [82841]

Bridget Prentice: The Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs had a formal discussion (bi-lateral) on the Comprehensive Spending Review (CSR) with the Chief Secretary HM Treasury in June 2006. All other discussions between the Department of Constitutional Affairs and (a) HM Treasury and (b) Cabinet Office on the CSR have been at official level.

No discussions regarding the CSR have been had by the Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs with the Cabinet Office.

Electoral Registration

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what steps she plans to take to increase voter registration in inner city areas. [84552]

Bridget Prentice: The Government have embarked on a number of initiatives to increase voter registration and promote participation in democracy.

The 1824 collective campaign, promoted awareness of voter registration amongst London's urban youth in the run up to local London election in May this year.

We are funding seven local authorities, working with community organisations and education institutions to explore new methods of encouraging people to register to vote and participate in elections.

The Electoral Administration Bill makes a number of changes to improve the registration process. These include a new duty setting out the minimum steps that the ERO will be expected to take to ensure a comprehensive register and enable people to register after an election has been called. The Bill also provides a new power for returning officers to promote participation at elections, and the Government have made available £2.5 million to support the new power.

Mr. Betts: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what powers will be available to local electoral registration officers under the Electoral Registration Bill to share data in drawing up election registers; if she will provide a list of the sources of data which will be able to be used under powers contained within the Bill; and if she will make a statement. [83524]

Bridget Prentice: Electoral registration officers are currently able to inspect and take copies of any records kept by their own council, and to inspect and take copies of records kept by any registrar of births and deaths.

The Electoral Administration Bill does not change this. However, it does require electoral registration officers, when compiling the electoral register, to make full use of their powers to inspect those records which they are permitted to inspect.

We are also looking at whether there are records which are not covered by existing powers, but which could be covered by secondary legislation, if it were appropriate to do so.

Mr. Betts: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what powers are available to local electoral registration officers to share data in drawing-up election registers; if she will provide a list of sources of data which can be used; and if she will make a statement. [83525]

Bridget Prentice: Electoral registration officers are currently able to inspect and take copies of any records kept by their own council, and to inspect and take copies of records kept by any registrar of births and deaths.

Family Visitor Appeals

Mr. Binley: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many family visitor appeals were lodged in 2005-06; and how many are awaiting a decision. [84607]

Bridget Prentice: In the period from 1 April 2005 to 31 March 2006, a total of 59,047 family visitor appeals were received by the Asylum and Immigration Tribunal. Of those appeals, 18,063 remain to be decided and are currently either listed for a hearing before, or awaiting a decision from, an Immigration Judge.

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs pursuant to the answer to Question 80303, what meetings she has held with Ministers in the Department for Work and Pensions to discuss their response to the president of the tribunal's reports on their standards in making incapacity benefit decisions; and if she will make a statement on (a) resulting initiatives and (b) the expected levels of tribunal workload over the next two years. [83883]

Bridget Prentice: No meetings have been held with Ministers in the Department for Work and Pensions on this subject since responsibility for appeal tribunals transferred to this Department on 1 April 2006. The president of appeal tribunals' sixth report on the standard of decisions made on behalf of the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions in cases which come before appeal tribunals was published on 6 July 2006, Official Report, Column 52WS.

A Joint Steering Committee has been established between the Tribunals Service and Jobcentre Plus, the agency which administers Incapacity Benefit, to provide feedback on cases considered by appeal tribunals and to look for ways to avoid customers having to go through the appeals process.

Legal Profession (Consumer Demands)

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs (1) what plans she has to ensure the legal profession is more responsive to consumer demands; [84564]

(2) what progress she has made in increasing consumer choice in legal services. [84565]

Bridget Prentice: The draft Legal Services Bill, which was published on 24 May 2006, builds on recommendations made by Sir David Clementi following his independent review of the regulatory framework for legal services in England and Wales which was published in December 2004. Both Sir David and the Government have been keen to ensure wide engagement with stakeholders in developing these proposals.

The proposals in the draft Bill respond to consumer demands. They provide for a new and independent oversight regulator, the Legal Services Board, and a single and independent Office for Legal Complaints. They also provide, through the licensing of alternative business structures, for legal services to be delivered in new ways. The Government are committed to putting the consumer at the heart of these reforms, and there is also a statutory duty on the Legal Services Board to establish a consumer panel to advise it.

Taken together, these proposals will provide for greater independence in regulation and complaints handling, and increased competition through a more flexible approach to the delivery of legal services.

Subject to robust safeguards, lawyers and non-lawyers will be able to work together on an equal footing to deliver legal and other services. External investment will also be possible. These arrangements will provide practitioners with flexibility to respond to market demands by providing consumers with the services they want, when they want them, and in the packages they want them.

The draft Bill is currently undergoing pre-legislative scrutiny by a Joint Committee. The Joint Committee is due to report by 25 July. After considering the Committee's report, the Government intend to introduce legislation as soon as Parliamentary time allows.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Access to Work Scheme

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the implications for (a) central Government Departments' budgets and (b) disabled people of the ending of Access to Work funding in October. [79932]

Mrs. McGuire: The Secretary of State is not in a position to assess the implications for other Government Departments' budgets. However, the large majority of these workplace adjustments are inexpensive.

Our intention is that disabled staff should continue to receive the support they need as now, including obtaining advice from specialist staff in Jobcentre Plus. However, instead of their support being paid for by the Access to Work programme, it will be funded out of departmental running costs. Officials will be working with those in other Government Departments to help them implement this requirement.

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent changes to the Access to Work Scheme have applied to employees of (a) central Government departments and agencies, (b) large private sector employers and (c) other employers; and if he will make a statement. [81941]

Mrs. McGuire: Access to Work funding will be removed from employees working in central government departments from October 2006. Our intention is that disabled staff should continue to receive the support they need as now, including obtaining advice from specialist staff in Jobcentre Plus. However, instead of their support being paid for by the Access to Work programme, it will be funded out of departmental running costs. Officials from the Office of Disability Issues will be working with those in other Government Departments to help them implement this requirement.

No changes have been made to Access to Work which affect people working for large private sector employers or other employers.

Carer's Allowance

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the annual cost of removing the 21-hour study rule for carer's allowance. [80550]

Mrs. McGuire: We estimate that the annual cost of removing the 21-hour full-time education rule for carer's allowance would amount to approximately £30 million for the first full year following its removal. This total is made up of £16 million for carer's allowance, and £14 million in respect of income-related benefits.

Child Support Agency

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what criteria were used to determine performance-related bonus payments for senior civil servants at the Child Support Agency in each of the last four years. [77976]

Mrs. McGuire: For each of the last four years decisions have been made by relatively assessing individuals in relation to others in the same senior civil service pay band. When determining performance-related bonus payments the following criteria were used:

2004-05 and 2005-06

Performance against agreed priority business objectives or targets;

Total delivery record over the year;

Relative stretch;

Response to unforeseen events which affected the performance.

2003-04 and 2004-05

How successful staff were in meeting their objectives;

How difficult/challenging the objectives were, given available resources, foreseen and unforeseen factors;

How the success had been achieved taking account of the Departmental Aims and Values.

Disability Living Allowance

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether he plans to review the requirement for those with lifelong disabilities to make periodic reapplications for disability living allowance. [82665]

Mrs. McGuire: The administration of disability living allowance is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Disability and Carers Service, Mr. Terry Moran. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Terry Moran:

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, whether he plans to review the requirement for those with lifelong disabilities to make periodic reapplications for disability living allowance.

The Minister for Disabled People, Anne McGuire MP, promised you a substantive reply from the Chief Executive of the Disability and Carers Service.

There is no specific requirement for those with lifelong disabilities to make periodic reapplications for disability living allowance (DLA). As you may be aware, entitlement to DLA does not depend on the diagnosis of a condition but on how that condition affects a person on a daily basis. It is entirely possible for a person with permanent disability not to satisfy the conditions for an award of DLA. There is a wide variation in the amount of help required by people with similar disabilities and for this reason entitlement to DLA is based on needs rather than diagnosis.

Where a Decision Maker concludes that a customer is entitled to DLA, and in their judgment there is unlikely to be any change in the way the customer's disabling condition affects their mobility or ability to self-care, an indefinite award would be the expected outcome. Such customers would not be required to renew their claims at intervals.

However, even where entitlement to benefit is awarded indefinitely, it can be affected by a change in the disabled person's circumstances. There is a statutory obligation for the customer to report relevant changes of circumstances that may affect entitlement.

Awards for a limited period are made where the Decision Maker judges that there might be some material change, affecting either the entitlement or the rate of benefit as a person adapts to their disability or their condition improves or worsens over a period of time. The customer would be invited to make a renewal claim at the appropriate time.

As part of the Government's plans to modernise the Welfare State we introduced the "periodic inquiry" procedures to ensure that our customers are receiving the correct level of benefit. These involve the random selection of cases where checks are made upon a customer's continuing entitlement to benefit. Accurate, up to date information about a customer's needs is collected to make sure that the benefit entitlement is correct. It is applied fairly giving people the opportunity to have their award increased as well as decreased in line with entitlement.

I hope this is helpful.

Incapacity Benefit

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of incapacity benefit claims in West Lancashire which have been turned down on the basis of insufficient national insurance contributions (NIC) as a result of the time taken in updating NIC records. [83543]

Mrs. McGuire: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave the hon. Member for Hereford (Mr. Keetch) on 28 February 2006, Official Report, column 688W.

London Olympics

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which officials in his Department (a) are responsible for Olympics-related activity and (b) sit on the Inter-Departmental Steering Group for the Olympics. [81569]

Mrs. McGuire: Bill Wells, the divisional manager in the economy and labour market division represents the Department for Work and Pensions on the Inter-Departmental Steering Group for the Olympics. He, together with Chris Hayes, Jobcentre Plus field director for London, is responsible for Olympics-related activity within DWP and Jobcentre Plus.

The Department for Culture, Media and Sport are leading for the Government on this work.

Pensioners Abroad

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what (a) bilateral and (b) multilateral arrangements the United Kingdom has with the Czech Republic to ensure the provision of (i) state and (ii) private pensions to UK pensioners resident in that country; [83140]

(2) what (a) bilateral and (b) multilateral arrangements the United Kingdom has with Denmark to ensure the provision of benefits to support UK pensioners resident in that country; [83142]

(3) what (a) bilateral and (b) multilateral arrangements the United Kingdom has with Denmark to ensure the provision of (i) state and (ii) private pensions to UK pensioners resident in that country; [83143]

(4) what (a) bilateral and (b) multilateral arrangements the United Kingdom has with the Czech Republic to ensure the provision of benefits to support UK pensioners resident in that country; [83146]

(5) what (a) bilateral and (b) multilateral arrangements the United Kingdom has with Austria to ensure the provision of (i) state and (ii) private pensions to UK pensioners resident in that country; [83147]

(6) what (a) bilateral and (b) multilateral arrangements the United Kingdom has with Austria to ensure the provision of benefits to support UK pensioners resident in that country; [83148]

(7) what (a) bilateral and (b) multilateral arrangements the United Kingdom has with Belgium to ensure the provision of benefits to support UK pensioners resident in that country; [83149]

(8) what (a) bilateral and (b) multilateral arrangements the United Kingdom has with Belgium to ensure the provision of (i) state and (ii) private pensions to UK pensioners resident in that country; [83150]

(9) what (a) bilateral and (b) multilateral arrangements the United Kingdom has with Cyprus to ensure the provision of benefits to support UK pensioners resident in that country; [83152]

(10) what (a) bilateral and (b) multilateral arrangements the United Kingdom has with Cyprus to ensure the provision of (i) state and (ii) private pensions to UK pensioners resident in that country; [83153]

(11) what (a) bilateral and (b) multilateral arrangements the United Kingdom has with (i) Finland, (ii) Estonia, (iii) France, (iv) Germany, (v) Greece, (vi) Hungary, (vii) Ireland, (viii) Italy, (ix) Latvia, (x) Lithuania, (xi) Luxembourg, (xii) Malta, (xiii) Netherlands, (xiv) Poland, (xv) Portugal, (xvi) Slovakia, (xvii) Slovenia, (xviii) Spain and (xix) Sweden to ensure the provision of (A) (1) state and (2) private pensions and (B) benefits to UK pensioners resident in that country. [84398]

Mr. Plaskitt: The social security schemes of all the member states of the European Union are co-ordinated by EC Regulation 1408/71. It provides for member states to pay their state pensions to pensioners resident in other member states at the same rate as if they were living in the paying state. The UK also makes winter fuel payments to people aged 60 or over living in other member states provided they qualified for a payment before leaving the UK.

The UK maintains bilateral social security agreements with many EU member states, including Denmark, Austria, Belgium and Cyprus. They were entered into before the application of Regulation 1408/71 and continue to be of relevance to the Crown Dependencies, where they also apply, as their social security schemes are outside the scope of co-ordination under the EC Regulation.

The EC legislation relating to private pensions is council directive 98/49/EC on safeguarding the supplementary pension rights of employed and self-employed persons moving within the community. The directive ensures that the occupational pension rights of scheme members who move from one EU member state to another are protected. The provisions of the directive have been implemented in the UK through an amendment to the Pensions Act 1995. Section 66A of the Act ensures that occupational pension schemes cannot have different rules for members who have accrued pension rights in the UK but who now reside overseas.

Pre-CSR Report

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what discussions he has had with the (a) Treasury and (b) Cabinet Office regarding the pre-comprehensive spending review report; and if he will make a statement. [82751]

Mrs. McGuire: The Secretary of State has had and will continue to have wide-ranging and regular discussions with the chief secretary about the 2007 comprehensive spending review, as a matter of key importance to the Department for Work and Pensions medium and long-term planning.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Carriage of Dangerous Goods Regulations

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been prosecuted under the Carriage of Dangerous Goods and Use of Transportable Pressure Equipment Regulations in the last five years. [81074]

Mrs. McGuire: I have been asked to reply.

The Carriage of Dangerous Goods and Use of Transportable Pressure Equipment Regulations 2004 is enforced by the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) and the police on behalf of the Department for Transport which has the policy lead.

HSE has taken seven prosecutions under the Carriage of Dangerous Goods and Use of Transportable Pressure Equipment Regulations 2004 and predecessor legislation.

One further prosecution has been taken under the Health and Safety at Work etc. Act 1974. This prosecution related to the 2004 Regulations.

One of these prosecutions was taken against an individual person.

One of these prosecutions was taken against a partnership.

Information on police prosecutions is unavailable; the Court Proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform holds information on all prosecutions including police prosecutions but does not separately identify the offences requested.

Debt Collectors

Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether (a) his Department and (b) its (i) executive agencies and (ii) non-departmental public bodies use the services of private debt collectors. [71062]

Mr. Coaker: The Security Industry Authority, a non-departmental public body of the Home Office, is the only part of the Home Department that uses private debt collectors. They are employed for the recovery of licence debts and court costs only

Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act

Emily Thornberry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when sections (a) one and (b) four of the Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act 2004 will be implemented. [75062]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Domestic Violence Crime and Victims Act 2004 is the biggest overhaul of domestic violence legislation for 35 years. It is a key part of the Government's aim of putting victims at the heart of the criminal justice system. The Act has been rolling out in stages since January 2005. The remaining provisions will be implemented as appropriate.

Foreign Prisoners

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research his Department has conducted on the causes of the increase in the number of foreign nationals in prisons in England and Wales over the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [68872]

John Reid: The Home Office regularly monitors the size and make-up of the foreign national prisoner population and trends within it. Information on this is published in Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2004, a copy of which is available in the House of Commons Library.

Home Detention Curfews

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of prisoners sentenced for crimes involving violence have been granted home detention curfews in the last 12 months. [46395]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 30 January 2006]: Prisoners who are subject to the registration requirements of the Sexual Offences Act 2003 and those serving extended sentences for serious violent or sexual offences are statutorily ineligible for HDC. Furthermore, prisoners with any history of sexual offending and those serving sentences for certain serious offences such as manslaughter, child cruelty, possession of an offensive weapon, possession of a firearm with intent, certain explosives offences and racially aggravated offences are presumed unsuitable for release unless there are exceptional circumstances. All eligible prisoners must pass a careful risk assessment before release on HDC is possible. No prisoner who is considered to present a significant risk to public safety or of re-offending during the curfew period is released on HDC. The information requested, as recorded on the prison IT system, is provided in the following table.

Home detention curfew releases in 2005

	Violent offences[2]
Prisoners with sentences of 3 months to less than 4 years with an HDC eligibility date in the period	12,828
Number released on HDC during 2005[1]	4,105
Percentage who received HDC during 2005	32

[1] These figures are based are based on information recorded on the central prison IT system at 22 May 2006. Further updates and amendments may be made to records on this system in future resulting in revised figures.

[2] Offence recorded on prison IT system. Covers violence against the person and robbery. Investigations suggest that around 5 per cent. of offence types recorded on this system do not relate to the offence they were released on HDC for but relate to offences committed after release from prison and before the licence expiry date for their sentence.

Human Trafficking

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will set up a (a) specialised immigration status for trafficking victims and (b) shelter capacity for trafficking victims; and if he will make a statement. [80352]

Mr. Byrne: The Secretary of State already has the discretion to grant periods of leave to trafficking victims, or to defer removal while the facts of the case are established. There are currently no plans to create a specialised immigration status for trafficking victims.

Immigration and Nationality Directorate

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many employees of the Immigration and Nationality Directorate have been granted British citizenship in (a) the last 12 months, (b) the last five years and (c) the last 10 years; and what the country of origin of each such employee is. [77117]

John Reid: The information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how long Mr. Dawute has been employed by the Immigration and Nationality Directorate; how long Mr. Dawute has been employed at Lunar House in Croydon; and whether Mr. Dawute continues to carry out his duties. [73686]

John Reid: James Dawute was employed by the Immigration and Nationality Directorate from 12 August 2002 to 1 June 2006. He was employed at Lunar House in Croydon from 22 December 2003 to June 2006. Mr. Dawute was dismissed on 1 June 2006.

National Offender Management Service

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department who the head of Prisoner Escort and Custody Services at the National Offender Management Service is; how many people have held the position (a) permanently and (b) temporarily in the last four years; and if he will make a statement. [78166]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The current head of the Prisoner Escort and Custody Service is a senior Prison Service manager on loan to the National Offender Management Service. Two other people have held this post in the last four years. There was a short temporary appointment between May and October 2002, and a permanent appointment from then until August 2005.

Operation Safeguard

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on what date prisoners were last held in police cells under Operation Safeguard; in which criminal justice areas they were held; and what the status of the prisoners was. [75433]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Prisoners were last held under Operation Safeguard on 20 December 2002. Details of prisoners held under operation Safeguard were only recorded by police constabulary area. The following forces held prisoners: Cheshire, Cleveland, Cumbria, Derbyshire, Dorset, Durham, Dyfed Powys .Essex, Greater Manchester, Hertfordshire, Humberside, Kent, Lancashire, Leicestershire, Lincolnshire, Metropolitan, North Yorkshire, Northumbria, Nottinghamshire, Staffordshire, Surrey, Sussex, West Mercia, West Midlands, West Yorkshire and Wiltshire.

Information on the status of the prisoners held is not available.

Parliamentary Questions

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will reply to question (a) 76539 and (b) 76540, on oxycodone hydrochloride, tabled by the hon. Member for Castle Point for answer on 12 June. [84114]

Mr. Coaker: The two questions 76539 and 76540 on oxycodone hydrochloride were answered on 6 July 2006, Official Report, column 1330W.

Prison Service

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of staff employed in the London area office of HM Prison Service receive the RHS allowance; and if he will make a statement. [74016]

Mr. Sutcliffe: It is assumed the hon. Member is referring to Required Hours Addition (RHA). Of the 29 staff employed in the London area office, four are currently in receipt of RHA.

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what funding charities have received from the Prison Service in each of the last 10 years; and what proportion of the total prison service budget this represented in each year. [84402]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Prison Service works with many charities that provide a service to the Prison Service for which they are remunerated. However, the accounting system does not identify charitable organisations and the total paid to these organisations could be provided only at a disproportionate cost to the benefit. The following table shows the donations made by the Prison Service in the last five years.

Donations to charities by the Prison Servia: 2001-06

	Donation	Percentage of spend (less than)
2005-06	115,197	0.1
2004-05	101,518	0.1
2003-04	150,027	0.1
2002-03	45,133	0.1
2001-02	21,066	0.1

Note:
As a result of changes to the accounting systems to obtain information for earlier years could be done only at a disproportionate cost.

Prisons

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many deaths in prison were deemed to have (a) been caused by and (b) involved (i) other inmates and (ii) prison officers in each prison, in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [82927]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The number of apparent homicides in prisons in England and Wales, 2001-2005, and where they occurred, is shown in the following table. The perpetrator in each case was another prisoner.

Number of apparent homicides

Prison	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many times illegal drugs have been found in each of the prisons in Wales in each of the past five years, broken down by (a) type of drug and (b) quantity of drugs. [73728]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 5 June 2006]: The table details drug finds in prisons in Wales during the last five years. Centrally available data does not record the quantity of drugs found.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what obligation is placed on the Prison Service to establish the nationality of prisoners during the reception process under Prison Service Order 0500. [78170]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Prison Service Order 0500 requires prison reception staff to interview all incoming prisoners and note their stated nationality in the prisoner's core record. Prisons will report the details of all prisoners who state that they are foreign nationals or dual nationals, all those whose nationality is initially unclear and all those who refuse to give their nationality to the immigration service who will then establish their immigration status. As the Home Secretary outlined in his ministerial statement of 23 May, officials are now looking at the possibility of placing a legal obligation on those suspected, charged or convicted to declare their nationality.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many women were imprisoned in each year since 1997; how many of them served their sentences in open prisons; how many women in prison are serving sentences in excess of three years; and if he will make a statement. [82357]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information on the numbers of females received into prison establishments between 1997 and 2004 is given in table 7.1 of Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2004. Similar information on the number of females in prison as at June each year is given in table 8.1. Information on the numbers of females in open prison, including those in open young offender prison establishments and semi-open prisons, is given in the first part of the following table. Information on female prisoners whose sentence is more than three years is provided in the second part of the following table.

Female prisoners in open prisons and young offender institutions since 1997: As at June 30

	Total
1997	507
1998	498
1999	418
2000	345

2004	1,720

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance his Department has issued on minimum and maximum temperatures for cells in (a) prisons, (b) young offender institutions and (c) juvenile custody in England and Wales for each month of the year. [83341]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The National Offender Management Services (NOMS) takes seriously its responsibility to treat prisoners decently. Guidance has been issued to all custodial establishments, including those in the juvenile estate that defines the standard of prisoner accommodation including the capability of the heating system and ventilation requirements in Prison Service order "Certified Prisoner Accommodation" and its supporting Prison Service standard "Accommodation". The Youth Justice Board (YJB) contracts with the Secure Training Centre (STC) providers stipulate specific requirements for ranges of temperatures which must be met. These ranges vary depending on the type and usage of the accommodation. Within the Secure Children's Homes contracts the YJB requires that the provider will ensure that all parts of the premises are adequately ventilated, heated and lit in keeping with the type of usage to which they are put.

Probation Service

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) legal advisers and (b) social services advisers have been employed or seconded to work in the Probation Service in each of the last eight years. [79953]

John Reid: The current data collection process for workforce information does not provide data in sufficient detail to provide the information requested. Senior Circuit Judges are appointed by the Department of Constitutional Affairs to sit on Local Probation Boards and advise them on legal matters, as the appointments are made by DCA the National Probation Directorate does not keep records of how many Judges have taken post over the last eight years.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the total number of (a) operational and (b) non-operational officers employed in the Probation Service was in each of the last eight years. [79954]

John Reid: Information is not available for the full period requested. Data collected prior to one April 2003 is unreliable, and is not directly comparable with the more accurate figures collected since that time. The figures presented in the table show the proportion of staff, in terms of full time equivalent value, employed in an operational capacity at the close of each quarter from one April 2003 to 31 March 2006. Operational staff in the National Probation Service operate in multi-disciplinary teams including dedicated support staff. For this reason the figures provided include both the number of operational staff, and the number of support staff dedicated to operational service teams. The total of these two staff groups gives an accurate representation of the total resource applied to operational services. The non-operational staff in the National Probation Service are all other staff who provide non operational support services.

Rape Charge/Sentencing

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations he has received about the potential to be able to charge with rape clients who use the services of a woman who has been forced into prostitution. [81614]

Mr. Coaker: In response to its consultation document on trafficking for the purposes of sexual exploitation, the Home Office received a number of representations which expressed support for the "Swedish model" whereby the purchase of sex is made a criminal offence. A summary of the responses received can be found on the Home Office website.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average sentence was for (a) rape and (b) date rape in each of the last five years. [77160]

Mr. Coaker: The average sentence length of those given custodial sentences for rape, excluding those sentenced to life imprisonment, from 2000 to 2004 is in the following table. The Sexual Offences Act 2003, introduced on 1 May 2004, altered the definition and coverage of sexual offences. It redefined rape to include the non-consensual penetration of a male. 'Date rape' is not classified as a separate offence to rape.

Average length of determinate custodial sentences for rape all courts England and Wales 2000-04.

Rape[1]	Average sentence length (months)
2000	85.4
2001	84.6
2002	87.7
2003	90.5
2004	87.9

[1] On 1 May 2004 the law changed to include rape of a male.

Vulnerable Witnesses

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the national roll-out of the intermediaries scheme for vulnerable witnesses will be implemented; and if he will make a statement. [83895]

Mr. Sutcliffe: We will make a statement following consideration of the final report from the evaluation of the intermediary scheme in the six pathfinder areas.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what estimate she has made of the (a) area and (b) yield of this year's opium crop in the Helmand province; [80429]

(2) what recent assessment she has made of the effectiveness of opium eradication programmes in the Helmand Province of Afghanistan. [80436]

Dr. Howells: It is too early to provide accurate figures on the area and yield of this year's opium crop in Helmand Province. However, the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime's (UNODC) Rapid Assessment Survey of March 2006 suggests that following a 21 per cent. reduction in overall cultivation last year, planting may increase in 13 of Afghanistan's 32 provinces, including Helmand. Research commissioned by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office has shown that in areas with better security, governance and access to resources, there may be further reductions this year.

Eradication was carried out in Helmand by the Afghan Government, at the request of and under the control of the Provincial Governor. The UNODC is currently in the process of verifying levels of eradication delivered, both in Helmand and in Afghanistan as a whole. Final figures for both eradication and cultivation should be available in the autumn. Eradication is a useful deterrent where there is access to legal livelihoods, tackling the drugs problem requires a range of activities including arresting and convicting the traffickers who profit from the trade, and putting in place the development programmes which enable fanners to move away from growing poppy. That is why the UK is spending £270 million over a three-year period on supporting the Government of Afghanistan's National Drug Control Strategy.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many officials from her Department are based in each province in Afghanistan, broken down by job function. [82734]

Dr. Howells: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office currently has 34 staff serving in Afghanistan. For reasons of personnel security and safety it is not possible to give details of locations or specific functions of staff deployed in Afghanistan.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 9 February 2006, Official Report, column 1448W, on Afghanistan, what progress the Afghan/UN/US forum in Kabul is making in respect of each of the five pillars of Security Sector Reform. [83288]

Dr. Howells: The London conference on Afghanistan launched the Afghanistan Compact. This provides the framework for continued international engagement in Afghanistan over the next five years. The Joint

Co-ordination and Monitoring Board (JCMB) was established by the Compact to co-ordinate the international effort more effectively and to measure progress against the benchmarks and timelines set out in the Compact. Consultative Groups focussing on the eight sectors and five cross-cutting themes covered in the Compact have met and will report to the next JCMB's meeting at the end of July.

Alcoholic Beverages

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the estimated value is of central Government's stock of alcoholic beverages; and how many bottles of (a) wine, (b) beer, (c) spirits and (d) other alcoholic beverages are held by the Government. [82816]

Mr. Hoon: Pursuant to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Member for Blackburn (Mr. Straw) the then Foreign Secretary to the hon. Member for Chipping Barnet (Mrs Villiers) on 17 March 2006, Official Report, columns 2529-30W. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office is responsible for the administration of the Government hospitality wine cellar. The cellar contains a mixture of fine and beverage wines, spirits, liqueurs and beers. The current estimated value is approximately £674,000, based on cost price. The cellar contains just over 36,500 bottles, of which fewer than 300 are spirits and liqueurs. Beer is not held in large quantities and is bought on an ad hoc basis, depending on requirements.

Balkan States

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with her counterparts in the Balkan states on the way that the recent history of the region is taught in schools; and if she will make a statement. [83433]

Mr. Hoon: Neither my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary, nor I have yet raised this with our counterparts. However, education is part of the reform agenda that officials regularly discuss with Balkan states. We recognise the importance of this issue as a means to tackling inter-ethnic tension in the region. It is a vital element of longer-term stability. We have funded a range of projects to support this, including part funding the book 'Clio in the Balkans—The Politics of History Education'. Our Embassy in Sarajevo is also involved in supporting educational reform. 'Education and Youth' was the theme of our local EU presidency and the ambassador in Sarajevo has co- chaired the Education Reform Committee.

Bulgaria/Romania

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what support the European Union is providing to (a) Bulgaria and (b) Romania to strengthen the border security of those countries. [82120]

Mr. Hoon: The EU offers assistance to Romania and Bulgaria on strengthening border security through a range of projects designed to help both countries comply with EU standards. In particular, through the European Commission's 2005 Phare programme, we have provided assistance to Romania to the value of €41 million for nine projects covering training and the provision of equipment, such as "Upgrading the Surveillance Capacity of Romanian Border Police Special Surveillance Vehicles". Similar capacity building was provided to Bulgaria amounting to almost €17 million for "Development of Centralised Information Systems and Introduction of EU Best Practices and Standards in the Field of Border Control". Many other EU projects on other aspects of accession preparations also touch on border security, e.g. customs, veterinary controls and police training.

Comprehensive Spending Review

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with (a) the Treasury and (b) the Cabinet Office regarding the pre-comprehensive spending review report; and if she will make a statement. [82839]

Mr. Hoon: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has had and will continue to have wide ranging and regular discussions with my right hon. Friend the Chief Secretary about preparations for the 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review, as a matter of key importance to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's medium and long term planning.

Cuba

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what response her Department has made to the United States Commission for Assistance to a Free Cuba's recent call for a democracy fund for Cuba. [82989]

Mr. Hoon: We understand that the US Commission for Assistance to a Free Cuba is due to issue its latest report this week.

UK and EU policy towards Cuba continues to be based on constructive engagement with both the Government and civil society in order to encourage a peaceful transition to pluralist democracy.

Departmental Premises (Security)

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether her Department has (a) directly and (b) indirectly employed illegal immigrants as security guards. [80816]

Mr. Hoon: Security guards at Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) premises in the UK are employed indirectly via the contractor Pegasus Security. Pegasus Security has assured the FCO that illegal immigrants have not been employed as security guards at premises in the UK. Applicants must provide proof of British nationality during the recruitment process.

Deposited Papers

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make it her policy to make copies of Deposited Papers available in (a) the Vote Office and (b) Printed Paper Office at the same time as copies are deposited in the Library; and if she will make a statement. [82466]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) regularly deposits papers in the Libraries of the House for the reference of hon. Members and noble Lords. The FCO assesses the level of interest in the deposited paper and in cases where there is likely to be wide interest provides copies of the document to the Vote Office and Printed Paper Office accordingly.

The FCO is always happy to provide copies of deposited papers to hon. Members and noble Lords on request.

Drugs

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the work of the British embassy's drugs team in Kabul in co-ordinating anti-narcotics operations with International Security Assistance Force and the United States Operation Enduring Freedom. [83241]

Dr. Howells: The Government of Afghanistan rather than the British embassy drugs team in Kabul is responsible for co-ordinating the counter narcotics campaign in Afghanistan. Afghan Ministries are also responsible for implementation of the campaign. Co-ordination of assistance takes place nationally via the Afghan Ministry of Counter Narcotics (MCN) and the Counter Narcotics Cabinet Sub-Committee, which brings together all relevant Ministries to oversee and monitor the implementation of the National Drug Control Strategy (NDCS). With support from the British embassy drugs team in Kabul, the MCN also chairs a series of working groups to take forward detailed implementation planning for all aspects of the NDCS. International partners including the military take part in the working groups and structures are also in place to ensure Afghan counter narcotics law enforcement operations are co-ordinated and deconflicted with the International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) and US Operation Enduring Freedom operations. As partner nation for counter narcotics, the UK continues to encourage international partners including all ISAF troop contributors to provide support to the Afghan counter narcotics campaign in line with the commitments identified in the Afghanistan Compact and with agreed ISAF policy.

Government Wine Cellar

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to her answer of 11 July 2005, Official Report, column 664W, on the Government wine cellar, how many bottles of wine are held in the Government wine cellar; what the latest estimate is of the value of the collection; how much was spent on the Government wine cellar in 2005-06; how many staff work in the wine cellar; what their salaries are; and under what circumstances Ministers have access to the wine cellar. [83668]

Mr. Hoon: As has been made clear in the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Bath (Mr. Foster) today (UIN 82816) the Government Hospitality wine cellar contains just over 36,500 bottles. The most recent valuation, at the end of March 2006, placed on the stock is £674,000. In 2005-06, Government Hospitality spent a little over £95,000 on new stock for the cellar. The cellar is administered by Government Hospitality, under the guidance of the Government Hospitality Advisory Committee for the Purchase of Wine. Three civil servants assist in the administration of the cellar, among other duties. Ministers do not have access to the cellar; wines from the cellar are supplied to events hosted by Ministers as part of the service offered by Government Hospitality.

Illegal Immigration (North Africa)

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with her counterparts in (a) Libya, (b) Tunisia and (c) Algeria on their plans to tackle illegal immigration from North Africa to Europe. [80333]

Mr. Hoon: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not as yet had discussions with her counterparts in these countries. I raised migration with my Algerian counterpart when I visited on 7-8 June and my Libyan counterpart in Tripoli on 25-27 June.

Migration from Africa to Europe has also been discussed this week at a meeting of African and European countries in Rabat.

Israel

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what monitoring is being undertaken by the Government to ascertain whether components subject to an export licence which are supplied to a third country and were known either to be intended for re-export to Israel, or where there was a known risk of diversion to Israel, are being used in the military incursions by Israel into Gaza and the West Bank which commenced on 27 June; and what the results have been of any such monitoring. [84048]

Dr. Howells: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave him on 5 July 2006, Official Report, column1158W and the reply given to him by my right hon. Friend the Minister of State for Trade, Investment and Foreign affairs, (Mr. McCartney) on 6 July 2006, Official Report, column 1340W. All licences, including for incorporation, are assessed against the consolidated criteria and prevailing circumstances at the time of application. This would include the risk that equipment could be diverted to an undesirable end-user or end-use.

Nigeria

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what date her Department received a letter from the Chancellor of the Exchequer informing her of the plans for his trip to Nigeria on 22 May 2006. [83336]

Mr. McCartney: Arrangements were in line with normal procedures.

Sudan

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans she has (a) to encourage further peace talks at Abuja to try to resolve the Darfur crisis and (b) to make further appeals to the opponents of the Darfur Peace Agreement to sign up to the agreement. [84504]

Mr. Hoon: We welcome the signature of the Darfur Peace Agreement (DPA) on 5 May. We believe that if successfully implemented it will constitute a good basis for the resolution of the crisis in Darfur. Neither we nor the African Union envisage further talks at Abuja: reopening the text of the DPA would threaten the agreement that has been reached. We continue to urge all parties in Darfur to support the DPA and are pushing for its rapid implementation.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the impact on the North-South Comprehensive Peace Agreement in Sudan of the continuing conflict in Darfur. [84505]

Mr. Hoon: Continued conflict and instability in Darfur risks undermining the successful implementation of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA) in Sudan. And failure to implement fully and effectively the CPA risks exacerbating the conflict in Darfur. That is why the UK is doing all it can to secure both peace in Darfur and rapid implementation of the CPA.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress she has made in persuading the unified Government of Sudan on the need for UN involvement; and what assessment she has made of the prospect for chapter 8 agreement. [84507]

Mr. Hoon: Security Council Resolution 1679 called for a UN force for Darfur. The African Union (AU) reaffirmed its support for a UN force at its recent summit in the Gambia, President Bashir continues to oppose this. But, there are signs of different views within his Government on this issue. His own coalition partners, the Sudan People's Liberation Movement, have said that they accept a UN force for Darfur, We will continue to urge the Government of Sudan to admit a UN force.

Chapter 8 of the UN charter provides for the UN to support peacekeeping operations by regional organisations. We believe that, even with substantial UN or other support, the current AU force in Darfur would struggle to meet the substantial new demands placed on it by the Darfur Peace Agreement, and thus that full transition to a UN force needs to occur as soon as possible.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of (a) the objectives of organisations opposed to the Darfur Peace Agreement and (b) their treatment of (i) internally displaced peoples and (ii) their views on compensation to those affected by the conflict. [84508]

Mr. Hoon: Abdul Wahid's faction of the Sudan People's Liberation Movement (SPLM) and the Justice and Equality Movement (JEM) refused to sign the Darfur Peace Agreement (DPA). They asserted that the DPA provided insufficient representation for Darfuris in Government and insufficient compensation for those affected by the war. They have been rallying opposition to the DPA in the Internally Displaced Person (IDP) camps.

We disagree. We believe that the DPA offers a good deal for the people of Darfur, including a say for the rebels in Government at the national and Darfur levels, and a substantial reconstruction package. If implemented properly, the DPA will provide the basis for the return of the IDPs to their homes. Those who oppose the DPA are delaying the day when such returns can take place.

Uganda

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she has made to President Museveni of Uganda about the international implications of offering amnesty to the leadership of the Lords Resistance Army. [84506]

Mr. Hoon: We are following the Government of southern Sudan's current mediation process closely and we welcome all efforts to bring the long-running conflict in northern Uganda to an end. Such efforts should focus on securing a permanent end to the conflict and encouraging Lord's Resistance Army (LRA) foot-soldiers out of the bush to seek amnesty and reintegration into their communities.

President Museveni has recently said that he will offer an amnesty to the five LRA commanders facing International Criminal Court (ICC) arrest warrants if the talks process is successful The ICC has indicated that the arrest warrants still stand and reminded Uganda of its obligation as a state party to the Rome statute to effect the arrest warrants.

We endorse this—the UK is a strong supporter, in principle and in practice, of the work of the ICC. We are committed to seeing an end to impunity for the worst human rights abuses and criminal acts. My noble Friend, the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Lord Triesman of Tottenham, made this point most recently to the Uganda Foreign Minister when they met in the margins of the African Union summit in Banjul earlier this month.

Yemen

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of (a) the security situation and (b) political stability in Yemen; and if she will make a statement. [84200]

Dr. Howells: We have concerns about the security situation in Yemen and judge there is a continuing high threat from terrorism. During my visit to Yemen in January, I emphasised to Government Ministers that determined action against terrorist threats was vital. The UK provides practical counter terrorism support to Yemen.

This is a key year for Yemen's political and democratic systems with presidential elections in September. We will closely monitor the election process.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Delegations

Mr. Dismore: To ask the honourable Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission pursuant to the answer of 5 July 2006, Official Report, column 1082W, on delegations, how many overseas visits the eight members of staff referred to undertook in total between 1 June 2005 and 31 May 2006; and at what cost. [84452]

Nick Harvey: In the year 1 June 2005 to 31 May 2006, the total number of overseas visits undertaken by the eight members of staff referred to in the answer of 5 July 2006, Official Report, column 1082W, was 38, to 19 separate sessions or meetings of international parliamentary assemblies. The total cost of subsistence and travel payments for those overseas visits was £53,946.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Cervical Cancer

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the most recent survival rate is for patients in the Province diagnosed with cervical cancer. [83725]

Paul Goggins: The survival time for a cancer patient is defined as the time elapsed between diagnosis and death The following table details information on the incidence of cervical cancer (ICD-10 C53) in Northern Ireland for the last period for which data was available.

Relative survival for cervical cancer in Northern Ireland

Diagnosis Period 1996-99
1-Year (95 % CI)	85.9 % (81.4, 89.4)
5-Year (95% CI)	71.9 % (65.9, 77.0)

Source:
NI Cancer Registry.

Survival from cervical cancer is highly dependent upon the stage at which the disease is diagnosed. The five-year survival rate for stage I cervical cancer was 82 per cent. for patients diagnosed between 1996 and 1999, compared to 2 per cent. for Stage IV disease.

This information has been provided by the Northern Ireland Cancer Registry and is the most up to date currently available.

Notes:

1. Figures in brackets represent the 95 per cent. confidence interval, which is the range of values within which there is a 95 per cent. probability of finding the true value for the survival rate.

2. The estimation of patient survival is complicated by the fact that some patients die of causes unrelated to the cancer of interest. To allow for the deaths due to other diseases, survival is expressed as relative survival rate (RSR). Relative survival is the ratio of the observed survival divided by the survival that the patients would have experienced if they had the same probability of dying as the general population having the same age and sex.

Child Services

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans are in place to manage the process of change between existing health boards and trusts in the Province and the new Health and Social Services Authority in relation to services for children, young people and families. [83686]

Paul Goggins: By April 2007 the 18 existing trusts will be formally dissolved and the five new Health and Social Care trusts will become fully operational. The new Health and Social Services Authority will subsequently be established by April 2008. The new authority will have a role in commissioning the full range of services, including those for children, young people and families, either centrally or through the Local Commissioning Groups. The services will be delivered by the five new trusts and, where appropriate, the community and voluntary sector.

Specific plans are being developed to ensure that continuity and appropriate governance and accountability arrangements are maintained for services to children and families and, where necessary, strengthened in the move to the new commissioning and service provision arrangements. This work is being taken forward collaboratively by the Department, boards, trusts and the Northern Ireland Social Care Council with input from representatives of service users and carers.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what expenditure is planned on each of the measures contained in Theme 3 of the Children and Young People Funding Package on improving education provision and support for looked-after children and vulnerable young adults in 2006-07; and on what timetable. [83687]

Paul Goggins: The information is as follows;

1. Supporting and equipping foster carers to discharge their role effectively as "First Educators" of the children in their care:

The planned expenditure for this initiative in 2006-07 is £1.04 million. The service will be provided by a voluntary organisation (or consortia), selected in the autumn following a public tender process. Interim arrangements are currently being finalised to deliver the scheme in the meantime.

2. Supporting staff in residential care settings to promote improved educational outcomes for the children in their care:

An outreach worker will be employed in each of the education and library board areas to support staff in residential care settings to promote improved educational outcomes for the children in their care. Expenditure in 2006-07 is expected to be some £200,000.

A further one-off figure of £0.1 million is available in 2006-07 to refresh computer equipment in children's homes. Expenditure in the Western health and social services board has been approved and its trusts are currently purchasing equipment. The other three boards are finalising their costs. The boards have been asked to implement this initiative as quickly as possible.

3. Enabling young people who are not yet ready for independence to remain living with their foster carers, and to encourage more young people leaving care to continue in education or training up to age 21:

The planned expenditure for this initiative in 2006-07 is £0.75 million. At the end of June 2006, this funding has supported 80 young people in foster placements. By March 2007, we expect this initiative will enable a further 70 young people to benefit from this scheme.

4. Empowering children and young people in care to engage actively in the process of ensuring the system works in their best interests:

The planned expenditure for this initiative in 2006-07 is £0.66 million. The service will be provided by a voluntary organisation (or consortia), selected in September following a public tender process. Interim arrangements are being finalised to deliver the scheme in the meantime.

Child Worker Vetting

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what measures are in place for co-ordination between authorities in Northern Ireland and (a) the UK and (b) the Republic of Ireland to ensure that people deemed unsuitable for work with children in one jurisdiction are unable to secure such employment in the other. [83023]

Paul Goggins: With effect from 1 April 2005, the Protection of Children and Vulnerable Adults (NI) Order 2003 (POCVA) introduced a statutory requirement for childcare organisations to carry out a vetting check on prospective employees wishing to work with children in a paid or unpaid capacity in Northern Ireland. As part of the services introduced under POCVA, employers in Northern Ireland can check to confirm that a prospective employee or volunteer is not disqualified from working with children.

Where previous addresses indicate that an individual may have resided in:

England or Wales, a criminal records check is carried out with the relevant police forces for that jurisdiction and a check is also carried out against the relevant Disqualification Lists for that jurisdiction;

Scotland, a criminal records check is carried out. Discussions are ongoing to allow Northern Ireland access to Scotland's Disqualification Lists;

Republic of Ireland, a criminal records check will be requested from the Garda Vetting Unit by the PSNI.

Where an individual resides in England/Wales or Scotland and wishes to work or volunteer to work with children, the onus will be on the prospective employer to carry out a vetting check through the Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) or Disclosure Scotland respectively. If the individual has a previous address in Northern Ireland CRB or Disclosure Scotland will request a criminal records check from the PSNI. PSNI will also check if individuals have been listed on the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety (DHSSPS) and the Department of Education (DE) Disqualification Lists.

Employers in Republic of Ireland (ROI) can also register with the DHSSPS to ascertain whether prospective employees resident in ROI but with previous addresses in Northern Ireland are included on the DHSSPS Disqualification list.

Correspondence

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average cost to his Department was of replying to a letter written (a) by an hon. Member and (b) by a member of the public in the latest period for which figures are available; and how much of that sum is accounted for by (i) officials' time, (ii) cost of stationery and (iii) postage costs. [80489]

Mr. Hain: The information requested is not recorded centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

However, on an annual basis the Cabinet Office publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of departments in replying to Members/Peers correspondence. The report for 2005 was published on 30 March 2006, Official Report, columns 76-78WS.

Dentistry

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what percentage of (a) children, (b) adults and (c) the population in Northern Ireland were registered with a dentist in each of the last five years (i) in total and (ii) by board. [83945]

Paul Goggins: The information requested is detailed in the following table. Registration figures by Health and Social Services Board for 2000 are not available.

Percentage of population registered with general dental practitioners

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) fillings and (b) extractions were carried out on children's teeth in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years (i) in total and (ii) in each board area. [83946]

Paul Goggins: The information requested is detailed in the following table:

	EHSSB	NHSSB	SHSSB	WHSSB	Total

Departmental Publications

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list in date order the (a) Green and (b) White papers produced by his Department since October 2005. [81635]

Mr. Hain: My Department has published two numbered Command Papers since October 2005. Details are as follows:

(i) Autumn Report (Cm. No. 6720) published on 5 December 2005; and

(ii) Departmental Report (Cm. No. 6836) published on 19 April 2006.

The Northern Ireland Office does not keep central records of unnumbered Command Papers that have been published.

Foetal Alcohol Syndrome

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the merits of creating a database of people in the Province with foetal alcohol syndrome or other alcohol-related complications of pregnancy. [83779]

Paul Goggins: A formal assessment has not been made of the merits of creating a database or registry of people in the Province with foetal alcohol syndrome or other alcohol-related complications of pregnancy. Foetal alcohol spectrum disorder is a difficult condition to diagnose accurately because of the wide range of symptoms with which it can present, signs and symptoms which themselves can be indicative of other conditions e.g. behavioural problems. In addition there are also the difficulties associated with ascertaining or establishing the mother's alcohol intake before and during pregnancy.

Genital Warts

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will estimate the number of patients in the Province who suffer from genital warts; how many new cases of genital warts have been diagnosed amongst (a) males and (b) females in the Province in each of the last five years; and if he will estimate the cost arising from management of (i) new and (ii) existing cases of genital warts in the Province in 2005-06. [83724]

Paul Goggins: An estimate of the number of patients in the Province who suffer from genital warts is not available.

The number of new cases of genital warts that have been seen at Genito-Urinary Medicine clinics in Northern Ireland, broken down by gender, in the Province in each of the last five years is detailed in the following table.

	(a) Males	(b) Females
2001	1,107	1,023
2002	1,147	1,029
2003	1,111	1,065
2004	1,059	1,042
2005	1,208	1,098

Notes:
1. Figures refer to calendar years.
2. The number of new cases of genital warts only includes the condition anogenital warts—first attack.
Source:
Communicable Disease Surveillance Centre Northern Ireland (CDSC (NI)).

Information is not readily available on costs of treating new and existing cases of genital warts due to the relatively small numbers of cases involved. For the year 2005-06 the planned expenditure for this area fell under the Genito-Urinary Medicine specialty, which was expected to cost, excluding capital, £4.7 million Province-wide.

Health Expenditure

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what percentage of health expenditure in the Province in each of the last five years was allocated to (a) acute hospitals, (b) community-based health care and (c) primary care. [83778]

2000-01	47	10	27	17	100
2001-02	47	10	27	17	100
2002-03	43	10	26	22	100
2003-04	42	10	26	23	100
2004-05	42	10	25	23	100

The percentages quoted relate to the whole of the integrated health and personal social services (HPSS) budget. It should be noted that there was a reclassification of costs in the financial year 2002-03, which resulted in a decrease in recorded spend under the acute hospitals head and an equivalent increase under primary care.

Health Service Employees (Absence)

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many days sick leave were taken in Northern Ireland by (a) doctors, (b) nurses, (c) other health professionals and (d) other health service employees in each of the last three years, broken down by health trust area. [83777]

Paul Goggins: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 5 June 2006, Official Report, column 470W.

Hospital-acquired Infections

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment has been made of the effectiveness of the Northern Ireland regional strategy to fight infections acquired in hospital launched on 20 June 2005. [83963]

Paul Goggins: The Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety launched its action plan for the prevention and control of healthcare associated infections at a major infection control conference in Belfast on 13 March 2006. Entitled "Changing the Culture", the plan took forward the proposals in the June 2005 strategy after due consideration of the responses made during the consultation period. It is a three-year plan and it is intended that its effectiveness will be assessed on its conclusion in 2009. A multi-disciplinary steering group is in place to monitor implementation during this period.

Lakewood Centre

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will meet a delegation of North Down constituents to discuss the relocation of facilities from the Lakewood Centre in Bangor to Childhaven in Millisle. [81813]

Paul Goggins: I will write to the hon. Member with the specifics of this case and place a copy in the library.

Medical Services

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what percentage of all GP practices in Northern Ireland were single-handed in each of the last five years. [83941]

Paul Goggins: The information requested is provided in the following table:

Ministerial Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on how many occasions he has stayed overnight in Northern Ireland since his appointment. [83906]

Mr. Hain: Since my appointment as Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, in May 2005 until the end of June 2006, I have stayed overnight in Northern Ireland on 79 occasions. In the same period I have also spent 130 days in Northern Ireland. The hon. Gentleman will be aware that I also carry out Northern Ireland duties from the NIO Office in London and in Parliament, as every one of my predecessors has done.

Multiple Sclerosis

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 29 June, Official Report, column 600W, on MS treatment, how much of the additional £2 million identified for multiple sclerosis treatment has been allocated to the Western Health and Social Services Board; how much of that it is planned to receive; and what plans the Board has for that money. [84107]

Paul Goggins: The additional £2 million to improve access to disease modifying therapies for people with MS has been allocated to Health and Social Services Boards on a capitation basis. The Western Board's allocation, and the amount it will receive, is £343,000. The Board will use the funding to improve treatment for patients on the waiting list for disease modifying therapies, as well as new patients who come forward.

Obesity

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what initial assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the new guidelines on the treatment of obesity in Northern Ireland. [83957]

Paul Goggins: A guideline on the management of obesity in secondary care, issued by the Clinical Resource and Efficiency Support Team (CREST) in June 2005, has not been assessed for its effectiveness by the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety. CREST is an independent group comprised of local healthcare professionals from a range of backgrounds. The Department does not formally assess the effectiveness of CREST guidance.

The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) is currently developing guidance on the prevention, identification, assessment and management of overweight and obesity in adults and children. This guidance is due to be published in November 2006 and, under the Department's link with the institute, will be assessed for its applicability to the health and personal social services in Northern Ireland, The review of applicability will not include an assessment of the effectiveness of the NICE guidance. In linking with NICE, the Department accepts the professionalism and expertise of the institute's guidance development process and is not seeking to duplicate this process in Northern Ireland.

Organic Farming

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he is taking through the planning process to encourage organic farm development; and if he will make a statement. [83085]

David Cairns: The planning process does not differentiate between organic and non organic farm development. It is recognised that as agriculture continues to change and develop, it is important that the planning process continues to support operational needs.

Under the Planning (General Development) Order (Northern Ireland) 1993, certain development relating to agriculture and forestry is permitted development (PD) i.e. a planning application is not required as permission is deemed to be granted.

Where a proposal is not PD and express permission is required, planning permission will be granted for agricultural and forestry building/works subject to certain criteria and policy requirements. Any application is very much site specific and is treated on its own merits subject to detailed planning and environmental criteria.

Paediatric Cardiology

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average waiting time was for an initial paediatric cardiology assessment in the Province in the last period for which figures are available [74627]

Paul Goggins [pursuant to the reply, 5 June 2006, Official Report, c. 447W]: My initial response has been amended to take account of an error in data provided by Ulster Community and Hospitals Trust.

Waiting list information is collected by time band. It is therefore not possible to calculate the arithmetic mean (average) length of time waiting. It is however possible to identify the median or mid point waiting time band. Current median (average) waiting times for children waiting an initial paediatric cardiology out-patient assessment, in each applicable Health and Social Services Trust, are shown in the following table.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many patients are waiting for an initial paediatric cardiology assessment within the Ulster Community and Hospital Trust area, broken down by the length of time which has been waited. [83781]

Paul Goggins: The number of patients waiting for an initial outpatient assessment in the paediatric cardiology specialty at the Ulster hospital at 31 May 2006 by length of time waiting is provided in the following table.

Respiratory Disease

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what progress has been made on the 10 year strategy to reduce respiratory disease in Northern Ireland announced on 9 June 2005. [83962]

Paul Goggins: A draft strategy for respiratory disease was published for consultation in June 2005. A final document "A Healthier Future: A Strategic Framework for Respiratory Conditions" was formally launched on 15 March 2006 by my hon. Friend, the Member for St. Helens South.

The framework recommends that a network of local multidisciplinary respiratory groups should be established to facilitate and co-ordinate the implementation of the strategy in their area. The work of these local groups will be overseen by a Regional Respiratory Forum which will comprise the lead professionals from each of the local groups. The Health and Social Services Boards are currently taking steps to constitute their local groups and the establishment of the regional forum will follow later this year.

In 2006-07 the Department of Health Social Services and Public Safety has invested an additional £3 million through the QMS Contract in a Directed Enhanced Service to help people with respiratory conditions. These resources will be used to provide effective self-management training to enable people with asthma or chronic obstructive pulmonary disease to manage their own conditions more effectively and to provide care and rehabilitative services to improve the long-term health and wellbeing of these patients.

Waiting Lists/Times

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average waiting time was at each hospital emergency department in the Province in each of the last 12 months. [83780]

Paul Goggins: Information on the time that patients wait to be seen in accident and emergency departments is not collected centrally.

For those trusts who have electronic data systems in place, data extracts have been requested and work is due to begin on merging these extracts in mid-July. Work is in progress to develop an electronic solution for the trusts that currently have manual systems and the development of detailed data definitions is underway, Unvalidated data on accident and emergency waiting times should be available by end September 2006.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Child Care

Mr. Dismore: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, pursuant to the answer of 5 July 2006, Official Report, column 1082W, on child care, how many staff, and at what grades, took advantage of the child care voucher scheme; and what the total annual cost is of the scheme. [84451]

Nick Harvey: Currently 116 House of Commons staff claim child care vouchers. The scheme records do not include details of the pay bands of the staff concerned. The cost of the scheme for the last full year (2005-06) was £215,000.

House Staff

Mr. Dismore: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, pursuant to the answer of 5 July 2006, Official Report, column 1983W, on senior staff, what consideration has been given to (a) positive action and (b) positive discrimination to improve the diversity of House staff, especially at senior levels. [84439]

Nick Harvey: The House administration is taking several actions which are working towards the goals of improving ethnic-minority representation at senior levels and helping staff from all backgrounds to realise their full career potential. A corporate Senior Management Development Programme was introduced in 2005 to prepare managers for more senior positions. The first cohort of the programme has a number of ethnic minority staff participants. The Diversity Forum has as part of its action plan for 2006-07 the aim that talented staff from under-represented groups should actively be encouraged to develop their careers. A proposal will go to the House's Human Resources Group in 2007. On external recruitment, the House's job advertising policy requires that ethnicity of readership should be a priority in the placing of an advertisement. For fast-stream recruitment the House participates in the Cabinet Office's policy of targeting minorities, and specifically the House is involved in a fast-stream summer development programme which includes an open day aimed at ethnic minority applicants. The next open day is on 18 July.

Staff Travel Allowances

Mr. Dismore: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, pursuant to the answer of 5 July 2006, Official Report, column 1083W, on staff travel allowances, what the total cost was of the late night transport service in relation to late sittings for (a) senior House staff and (b) in total in each of the last three years. [84647]

Nick Harvey: The total cost of providing a late night transport service in each of the last three years has been:

	£000 Cost
2003-04	215.7
2004-05	279.6
2005-06	287.8

Costs attributable to senior House staff are not separately identifiable, for the reasons set out in my earlier answer.

WALES

Environmental Management

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales whether his Department (a) is committed to the achievement of environmental management to ISO 14001 standard and (b) has been externally certified as in compliance with that standard; and if he will make a statement. [81193]

Mr. Hain: In June 2003 the Wales Office became a separate entity within the Department of Constitutional Affairs (DCA). The office adopts its own internal controls and monitoring to track energy and water consumption. At a strategic level, we are included within the DCA strategy, which includes a commitment achieving EMSs to ISO 14001 standard for the DCA as a whole.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many parliamentary questions tabled to his Department were awaiting a reply on 10 July 2006; which of those had been waiting longer than (a) two and (b) three weeks for a reply; and what the reason for the delay was in each case. [85210]

Mr. Hain: Four Ordinary Written questions were outstanding as of 10 July 2006 (a) None (b) None.

Statutory Instruments

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales on what occasions a statutory instrument sponsored by his Department has been reported by the Joint Committee on Statutory Instruments as defective since October 2005. [85192]

Mr. Hain: None.

Sustainable Development

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what assessment he has made of the relevance to sustainable energy in Wales of the latest report of the Sustainable Development Commission, From "Pioneer to Delivery". [83671]

Mr. Hain: The Sustainable Development Commission report "From Pioneer to Delivery" makes a number of recommendations relating to the Welsh Assembly Government's policies on sustainable development.

I discuss these matters regularly with the First Minister and share his commitment to the goal of sustainable development.

To that end, the Government of Wales Bill, currently before Parliament, provides for a statutory duty for the Welsh Ministers to produce a sustainable development scheme and provides the Welsh Ministers with additional powers to discharge their duties in relation to sustainable development.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Access to Work Scheme

Roger Berry: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many disabled staff in her Department received support through the Access to Work scheme (a) in each of the last five years and (b) in 2006-07. [82221]

Angela E. Smith: The Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG) was established on 5 May 2006. Staff now working in the Department were formerly employed in the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister (ODPM), the Department of Trade and Industry (DTI), and the Home Office.

(a) In 2005-06 support was provided through Access to Work for 11 disabled members of staff in ODPM. In 2004-05 such support was provided for seven staff, and in 2003-04 for four staff. Comparable figures do not exist for cases supported in ODPM before 2003-04, as during this period this service was provided for disabled staff in ODPM through a shared service based in the Department for Transport.

Figures for staff now in DCLG who used to be employed in DTI and the Home Office would be included in responses from those Departments, where relevant.

(b) In the first three months of 2006-07, support has been provided through Access to Work for five disabled members of staff in the former ODPM who are now employed in DCLG. DCLG has not yet handled any relevant cases for staff who used to be employed in the Home Office or DTI.

The Office for Disability Issues (ODI) will be monitoring the overall situation to ensure that there is no detriment to current and future employees who are disabled.

Canvey Island

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when her Department first notified Castle Point borough council of the decision to allow Canvey Island to establish its own town council. [84927]

Angela E. Smith: Castle Point borough council was notified of the decision to accept, in principle, the petition to create a parish and parish council for Canvey Island on 21 June 2006.

Correspondence

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, pursuant to the answer of 28 June 2006, Official Report, column 416W, on correspondence, what estimate she has made of the cost of answering the question; and if she will make a statement. [82633]

Angela E. Smith: It is not possible to separately identify the average cost of officials' time in replying to letters from hon. Members and members of the public. Such correspondence is often of a varied and complex nature. Therefore any exercise to determine the average cost in officials' time in responding to letters would incur disproportionate cost.

It is not possible to separately identify stationery and postage costs for the Department when replying to correspondence from hon. Members and members of the public.

Council Tax

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the change in the level of council tax between 1997 and 2006; and if she will make a statement. [84521]

Mr. Woolas: The average band D council tax has risen from £688 in 1997-98 to £1,268 in 2006-07. This is an increase of 84 per cent. in actual terms or 40 per cent. in real terms.

Departmental Expenditure

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was spent on telephone calls in the private office of the Deputy Prime Minister in 2004-05. [83019]

Angela E. Smith: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was spent on helicopter hire for the Deputy Prime Minister in 2004-05. [83084]

Angela E. Smith: Nothing.

Deposited Papers

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will list the deposited papers placed in the Library by her Department since 2000; and when each was published. [81271]

Angela E. Smith: The Department for Communities and Local Government was formed on 5 May 2006. The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. A Deposited Papers List is published by the House on the Parliament website at www.deposits.parliament.uk.

Empty Dwellings

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether empty ministerial residences owned by (a) the public sector and (b) a private trust may be subject to an Empty Dwelling Management Order. [83025]

Angela E. Smith: Empty Dwelling Management Orders cannot be made against dwellings owned by the Crown or public-sector bodies such as local housing authorities, registered social landlords and police, fire and health authorities.

A dwelling owned by a private trust or any property owner could only be subject to an Empty Dwelling Management Order if the local authority proposing the order sought and received authorisation from a Residential Property Tribunal. In deciding whether to grant such authorisation, the Tribunal must be satisfied that the dwelling had been wholly unoccupied for more than six months, that it did not come within any of the exceptions set out in the 'Housing (Empty Dwelling Management Orders) (Prescribed Exceptions and Requirements) (England) Order 2006', that there was no reasonable prospect that it would become occupied in the near future and that, if an interim order was made, the local authority would be able to get the dwelling occupied.

The Tribunal must also be satisfied prior to granting such authorisation that the local authority had made reasonable efforts to ascertain what steps the owner had taken or intended to take to secure occupation of the dwelling, and that the local authority had complied with all of the requirements of the Act and the secondary legislation. It and must take into account the interests of the community and the effect the order would have on the rights of the property owner.

Equality and Diversity

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government are taking to promote equality and diversity within local authorities; and what targets it has set in relation to this. [82407]

Mr. Woolas: The Government encourage the promotion of equality and diversity within local authorities in a number of ways, as follows:

There is a Duty to promote race, disability and gender equality.

The Government have introduced the Beacon Scheme for local authorities and their partners.

Government have worked and continue to work with the Improvement and Development Agency and the Regional Centres of Excellence on the improvement programme for local government, including programmes to support embedding equality and diversity.

Best Value Performance Indicators

Examples include:

The level of performance in respect of the authorities' delivery on the Race Equality Duty

Percentage of top-paid 5 per cent. of local authority staff who are women.

The percentage of the top 5 per cent. of local authority staff who are from an ethnic minority.

Percentage of the top paid 5 per cent. of staff who have a disability.

The percentage of local authority employees with a disability.

The percentage of the economically active population in the local authority area who have a disability.

The percentage of local authority employees from ethnic minority communities.

The percentage of the economically active (persons aged 18 to 65) population from ethnic minority communities in the local authority area.

The percentage of authority buildings open to the public in which all public areas are suitable for, and accessible to, disabled people.

Percentage of proposed statements of Special Educational Need issued by the authority in a financial year and prepared within 18 weeks.

Older people helped to live at home per 1,000 population aged 65 or over.

Satisfaction of ethnic minority council housing tenants (excluding white minority) with their opportunities for participation in management and decision-making in relation to housing services provided by their landlord.

Whether the authority follows the Commission for Racial Equality's code of practice in Rented Housing and the Good Practice Standards for Social Landlords on Tackling Harassment included in 'Tackling Racial Harassment: Code of Practice for Social Landlords'.

The percentage of pedestrian crossings with facilities for disabled people, as a proportion of all crossings in the local authority area.

The number of racial incidents reported to the local authority, and subsequently recorded, per 100,000 population.

The percentage of racial incidents reported to the local authority that resulted in further action.

Fires

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many deliberate (a) vehicle fires and (b) fires there were in (i) Ribble Valley and (ii) Lancashire in each of the last 10 years. [84754]

Angela E. Smith: The available information covers part (ii) of the question, deliberate primary fires attended in Lancashire. Information on Ribble Valley constituency is not available centrally.

Angela E. Smith: The available information covers part (b) of the question. Information on Ribble Valley constituency is not available centrally.

IT

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Eastleigh of 15 June 2006, Official Report, column 1369W, on IT, what the purpose is of each IT project sourced externally since May 2002 by her Department and its predecessor. [82980]

Angela E. Smith: I refer the hon. Lady to the answers provided to the hon. Member for Tatton (Mr. Osborne) on 19 January 2005, Official Report, columns 998-99W, and to the hon. Member for Chipping Barnet (Mrs. Villiers) on 19 January 2005, Official Report, columns 1420-421W. One additional project has been completed since the last answer:

System	Purpose
Data and statistics catalogue (it will be launched under the short name of StatSearch)	The catalogue comprises an interface and repository for information (metadata) about data and statistics resources. Its primary benefit is as a discovery tool, allowing users to find and assess sources by searching or browsing.

New Houses

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what building regulations are in place to ensure that new houses built in (a) Milton Keynes and (b) England use environmental protection and conservation techniques. [84893]

Angela E. Smith: There are no building regulations applying specifically in Milton Keynes. The Building Regulations 2000, as amended, apply throughout England and Wales and include requirements for the conservation of fuel and power (which address energy efficiency and hence the emissions of carbon dioxide from buildings) and the avoidance of oil pollution from domestic fuel tanks. We announced in March that consultations would be conducted later this year on new regulations for water efficiency.

Overcrowded Accommodation

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many households are listed as overcrowded in (a) Gloucestershire and (b) Stroud; and how many children are in overcrowded accommodation. [84157]

Yvette Cooper: There are two measures of overcrowding—the statutory definition and the bedroom standard.

Using the bedroom standard, the only recent estimate of the number of overcrowded households in Gloucestershire is 3,000. This is from an ad hoc report based on combined data from both the Survey of English Housing and the Department for Work and Pension's Family Resources Survey for the three years 2000-01, 2001-02 and 2002-03.

Reliable estimates for the number of children living in overcrowded accommodation in Gloucestershire are not available. Separate data for Stroud are also not available.

Estimates based on the statutory standard are not available because the underlying data are not collected systematically. A one-off estimate was made in the autumn of 2001 that there were approximately 25,000 households across the whole of England that were in conditions of overcrowding that breached the statutory standard. This estimate was based on data from the Survey of English Housing for the period 1997-98 to 1999-2000 and from the 1996 "English House Condition Survey". Equivalent estimates for Gloucestershire are not available.

Tomorrow we will be publishing a discussion document entitled on "Tackling Overcrowding in England" which sets out options for revising the outdated definition of overcrowding and developing long-term solutions.

Renewable Energy

Paul Farrelly: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will ask the Government Office for the West Midlands to explain the reasons for the delay in publishing (a) the report on wind energy development in the West Midlands from TNEI Services Ltd commissioned jointly with Advantage West Midlands in 2004 and (b) the appendix to this report. [84923]

Angela E. Smith: The final report was completed in June 2004 and owing to its specialist nature it was considered the demand would be insufficient to warrant publication of a glossy hard copy. Electronic copies were made available on request following the publication of the regional energy strategy in November 2004, which was informed by the study and made specific reference to it. Delays in commissioning the GOWM website resulted in a delay until February this year, when the Environment and Rural pages on the site were redesigned, and a link was placed on the new site to improve public access to the report.

The appendices attached to the final report covering details of wind farm financial models and background to the consultants were made available at the same time as the main report.

DEFENCE

Advertising Campaigns

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Armed Forces advertising campaigns have featured female models in each of the last 10 years. [83917]

Mr. Watson: None, apart from the one recent occasion when Nell McAndrew was featured to help promote the Confidential Support Line.

Afghanistan

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to change the number of (a) fixed wing aircraft, (b) Apache helicopters and (c) infantry troops in Afghanistan. [84241]

Des Browne: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 10 July 2006, Official Report, columns 1131-135, to the hon. Member for Romford (Andrew Rosindell).

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 5 July 2006, Official Report, column 1100W, on Afghanistan, if he will place in the Library a copy of the medical planning guidelines. [84840]

Mr. Ingram: The medical planning guidelines are being withheld on grounds of operational security. To reveal details of the specific policies underpinning UK operations in Afghanistan or elsewhere would be detrimental to the safety of UK forces.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what measures he has taken (a) to assess the influence and (b) to promote the constructive engagement of (i) Iran and (ii) Pakistan in Afghanistan. [84900]

Des Browne: We keep the situation in Afghanistan and the influence of neighbouring countries constantly under review. Pakistan, in particular, remains influential in Afghanistan, notably among the Pashtun communities of the south. Her Majesty's Government maintain frequent contact with the Government of Pakistan on strategic issues, including the need to counter the influence of the Taliban and the drug-trafficking warlords. In addition, British forces deployed to Afghanistan have military liaison with the Pakistani Army.

The United Kingdom and Iran also have a common interest in supporting Afghan efforts to promote stability and economic development and to combat the drugs trade. Iran has said it supports the long-term reconstruction of Afghanistan and the efforts of the Afghan Government and international community to build stability and security. We welcome this commitment and hope to see it demonstrated in practice. Her Majesty's Government have discussed these issues regularly with the Iranian authorities, through the British embassy in Tehran and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in London.

Aircraft

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) if he will list the theatres in which helicopters without fuel tank protection are not deployed; and if he will make a statement; [71152]

(2) if he will take steps to fit fuel tank protection to all helicopters. [71153]

Mr. Ingram: Helicopters are fitted with protection, including for their fuel tanks, according to the operational threats they are likely to face and the characteristics of the aircraft themselves. The level of threat, and any action that needs to be taken, are kept under review.

Defence Purchasing

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he operates a European buying policy in any areas of defence purchasing; and if he will make a statement. [83791]

Mr. Ingram: The Ministry of Defence does not operate a "buy European" policy. In an open competition, any company (European, American or otherwise) can bid for a MOD contract. Contractors are chosen on the basis of best value for money for the UK taxpayer, not the nationality of the bidder.

Defensive Aids Suites

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to the answer of 3 July 2006, Official Report, column 704W, on defensive aids suites, what defensive aids suites were carried by UK Hercules aircraft in Afghanistan in 2002. [83813]

Mr. Ingram: The following defensive aids, in a variety of combinations, were employed on Hercules aircraft in Afghanistan in 2002:

Missile Approach Warning System
Radar Warning Receiver
Countermeasures Dispensing System
Infra Red Counter Measure

Helicopters

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether his Department has carried out an evaluation of deploying (a) the Huger 500 and (b) other light utility helicopters as convoy or patrol escorts in Iraq; and what assessment he has made of the merits of the use of machines of this type in such a manner to enhance force protection for British troops in convoy or patrol in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan. [83639]

Mr. Ingram: British forces in Iraq and Afghanistan have Lynx light utility helicopters which can be used for escort duties if commanders judge that appropriate. The threat to our troops deployed on operations in Iraq and Afghanistan is kept under constant review and our force posture, including the use of helicopters in force protection roles, is adjusted accordingly.

Injured British Servicemen (Treatment)

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many armed forces personnel in (a) the Army, (b) the Royal Air Force and (c) the Royal Navy were medically discharged from the armed services in Iraq owing to (i) an accident, (ii) limb amputation and (iii) psychological problems in each year since March 2003; and if he will make a statement; [82461]

(2) how many armed forces personnel in (a) the Army, (b) the Royal Air Force and (c) the Royal Navy have been medically discharged from the armed services in Afghanistan owing to (i) an accident, (ii) limb amputation and (iii) psychological problems in each year since October 2001; and if he will make a statement. [82463]

Des Browne: Details of armed forces personnel who have been discharged as a result of a condition that can be attributed specifically to service in Iraq or Afghanistan could be obtained only by a search of the individual medical records of all personnel discharged from the armed forces since October 2001, which could be done only at disproportionate cost.

In recent years, some 1,500 to 1,700 people have been medically discharged annually from the armed forces for any reason. Even when it is not possible to return an individual to full operational fitness following an injury or illness, it will often be possible to retain them in service in a different role, and it is our policy to do this whenever practical.

Iraq

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of the British armed forces are serving on Operation Telic. [83110]

Mr. Ingram: As the then Secretary of State for Defence set out on 13 March, the total number of UK armed forces personnel serving in Iraq since the last transfer of authority took place on 30 April is now in the region of 7,200. Currently up to 2,800 further service personnel are stationed outside Iraq in support of Operation Telic.

Military Vehicles

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many high mobility multipurpose wheeled vehicles (Humvees) are (a) owned and (b) leased by the Department; and whether any such vehicles have been acquired under the Stormer Programme. [82608]

Mr. Ingram: The Ministry of Defence does not own or lease any high mobility multipurpose wheeled vehicles (Humvees) and there are currently no plans for their procurement.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 29 June 2006, Official Report, column 15WS, on the support vehicle programme, for what reasons MAN ERF UK Ltd was selected as the provider of support vehicles; what process was followed to select the provider; and which other companies bid for the contract. [83775]

Mr. Ingram: MAN ERF UK Ltd was selected to supply the extra 2,077 support vehicles through an option in the existing support vehicle contract. This contract was let on a competitive basis and four companies submitted bids: MAN ERF UK Ltd, Mercedes-Benz UK Defence, the Oshkosh Truck Corporation and Stewart and Stevenson TVS UK. Following a detailed assessment it was concluded that MAN ERF UK Ltd offered the best value for money and it was selected as preferred bidder in October 2004. A detailed negotiation phase was then undertaken before MAN ERF UK Ltd was awarded the contract on 31 March 2005.

Nuclear Weapons

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) range and (b) circular area probability are of the (i) Trident missile system, (ii) Polaris Chevaline missile system and (iii) Polaris missile system. [84025]

Des Browne: The range of the Trident D5 missile is some 6,000 nautical miles. Both Polaris Chevaline and Polaris missiles have a range of up to 2,500 nautical miles.

I am withholding the information on circular error probable, which indicates the accuracy of the missile, as this could enable deductions to be made that could be prejudicial to national security and international relations.

Pre-CSR Review

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with (a) the Treasury and (b) the Cabinet Office regarding the pre-comprehensive spending review report; and if he will make a statement. [82843]

Des Browne: I have and will continue to have wide ranging and regular discussions with my right hon. Friend the Chief Secretary to the Treasury about preparations for the 2007 comprehensive spending review, as a matter of key importance to the Ministry of Defence's medium and long-term planning.

Press Releases

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the releases issued to the media by his Department between 17 July 2003 and 20 July 2003; and at what (a) time and (b) date each was (i) drafted, (ii) cleared for release and (iii) released under embargo to the media. [83604]

Des Browne [holding answer 10 July 2006]: On 19 July 2003, my right hon. Friend, the Member for Ashfield (Mr. Hoon) the then Secretary of State for Defence, released a statement to the media, which explained that the Government had invited Lord Hutton urgently to conduct an investigation of the circumstances surrounding the death of Dr. Kelly. According to our records, this statement was released to the media at 3.20 pm on 19 July 2003.

On 21 July 2003, Lord Hutton issued his own statement to the media through the Department for Constitutional Affairs, which confirmed his appointment and set out his Terms of Reference.

The Ministry of Defence does not hold records of precisely when statements to the media are drafted or cleared for release to the media. It is normal practice that press notices are issued to the media shortly after clearance for release is given.

Two other press releases were issued by the Ministry of Defence between 17 July 2003 and 20 July 2003. The way ahead for Multi Role Armoured Vehicles and Future Command and Liaison Vehicles was released to the media at 12.48 pm on 17 July 2003. The launch of the UK Missile Defence Centre was released to the media at 4.42 pm on 18 July 2003.

School Fees

Peter Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many service personnel on overseas service have experienced delays in the payment of school fees made in respect of members of their families in each of the last five years; and what steps are taken to minimise such delays. [84169]

Mr. Watson: There have been 14 late Continuity of Education Allowance (CEA) (formerly Boarding School Allowance) payments out of 115,000 applications over the last five years. Broken down by year, the CEA late payments are in the following table.

	Royal navy	Army
2003-04	4	0
2005-06	6	0

It is not known which, if any, of these 14 late payments were in respect of personnel serving overseas. Details of how many of the affected service personnel were overseas are not held centrally and even if the source documents still existed, the breakdown could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

All three services issue reminders each term of when the deadline is for submitting applications and unit administrative staff also have a responsibility to remind likely applicants personally of the cut-off dates.

Spectrum Utilisation

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what receipts his Department received for spectrum released for civil use in financial years 1997-98 to 2005-06; and what proportion was appropriated in aid. [83351]

Mr. Ingram: The Ministry of Defence received no direct receipts for spectrum released for civil use in financial years 1997-98 to 2005-06. Where the Department has released spectrum for civil use, Ofcom does not levy a fee to the Department for this released spectrum.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library copies of the information that his Department has released to Ofcom about its prospective spectrum utilisation. [83352]

Mr. Ingram: The Ministry of Defence provided information to Ofcom about its prospective spectrum utilisation in spectrum bands between 137MHz and 17.7GHz in support of the independent audit of public sector spectrum holdings undertaken by Professor Martin Cave for the Chancellor of the Exchequer. A redacted version of the information is publicly available in the independent audit of Spectrum Holdings (December 2005)—Annex B refers. The report, published by HSMO, can also be accessed on the internet at: www.spectrumaudit.org.uk.

Trident

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what studies are being carried out into whether to reuse or replace the Trident warhead pit; and when a decision on pit reuse or replacement is likely to be made. [79089]

Des Browne: The Atomic Weapons Establishment undertakes a range of studies as part of a warhead assurance programme designed to ensure the safety, effectiveness and durability of the UK nuclear warhead stockpile. This process is designed to enable regular assessments of the service life of any particular pit, and ensure that essential capability continues to be maintained at all times.

There is currently no requirement for any replacement warhead; nor is there any programme to develop one.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department has allocated for US contract N00178-04-D-4042 to EG and G, a Trident software support contract for K Development at the Naval Surface Warfare Centre Dahlgren, for the development and testing of (a) UK targeting, (b) reference and simulation models and (c) verifying the removal of US-eyes only items from Trident targeting and fire control software. [82405]

Des Browne: The Ministry of Defence does not allocate funding for individual US Government contracts. Arrangements for support of the UK Fire Control Software and related matters are agreed between the US and UK Governments under the Polaris Sales Agreement (as amended for Trident).

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 5 June 2006, Official Report, column 35W, on Trident, whether he makes a distinction between designing and developing in the context of work on a new warhead for use in Trident missiles. [82426]

Des Browne: We do not draw a distinction between "designing" and "developing" in the context of nuclear warheads. As we said in the 1998 Strategic Defence Review (supporting essay 5 paragraph 14), we maintain a minimum capability at the Atomic Weapons Establishment to design and produce a replacement for the current Trident warhead, should that prove necessary.

There is no programme at the Atomic Weapons Establishment to either develop or design a new nuclear warhead as we currently have no requirement for a new warhead.

Troop Numbers

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what the (a) actual and (b) establishment figures are for each regiment of the (i) Royal Household Cavalry, (ii) Royal Armoured Corps and (iii) Royal Artillery; [84546]

(2) what the (a) actual and (b) establishment figures are for each (i) regiment and (ii) battalion of the (A) Royal Engineers, (B) Royal Corps of Signals, (C) Royal Logistics Corps, (D) Royal Army Medical Corps and (E) Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers. [84547]

Mr. Ingram: Strengths and establishment figures for these Arm/Services, broken down by regiment/battalion, are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. I am able to provide the strengths and liability for these Arm/Services as at 1 May 2006:

Full-time trained strength as at 1 May 2006 and liability

Full-time trained strength (including full-time reserve service (FTRS[1]) Arm/Service	Liability[2]	Strength[3]	Strength as percentage of liability
The Household Cavalry/Royal Armoured Corps	5,760	5,510	96
Royal Regiment of Artillery	7,510	7,300	97
Royal Corps of Engineers	9,180	8,790	96
Royal Corps of Signals	8,500	8,520	100
The Royal Logistics Corps	15,720	15,710	100
Royal Army Medical Corps	3,180	2,860	90
Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers	9,700	9,760	101

[1] FTRS figures include full, limited and home commitment.
[2] Based on Regular Army Liability (RAL 06). This liability is the Army target strength to be achieved by 1 April 2008, following the commencement of Northern Ireland Normalisation (NIN) and the implementation of the Future Army Structure (FAS).
[3] As at 1 May 06
Notes:
1. Figures exclude Home Service battalions of the Royal Irish Regiment, mobilised reserves, Territorial Army and other reserves.
2. Figures are rounded to the nearest 10.

Uniforms

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the procedure is for replacement of ill-fitting uniforms for members of the Armed Forces. [83918]

Mr. Ingram: Uniforms are generally issued through the unit Quartermaster stores. Any ill-fitting pieces of uniform can be exchanged there and then for a better fit. In cases where the individual falls outside of the standard size range, they receive made to measure uniforms. Exceptionally, where an item of uniform is found to have been badly made, the Defence Clothing Integrated Project Team (DCIPT) examines the specification, identifies the problem and ensures that corrective action is taken.

Veterans

Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many veterans living in the Leicester South constituency have (a) applied for and (b) received their veterans lapel badge. [84028]

Mr. Watson: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Accenture

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department paid to the company Accenture in each year since 2002; and what sums his Department owes the company. [78370]

Ian Pearson: From information held centrally the Department has paid Accenture the following sums since 2002:

Financial year	Amount (£ million)
2002-03	3.1
2003-04	14.625
2004-05	10.725
2005-06	22.299

As at 16 June 2006, the sum of £2,301,976 had not been paid to Accenture and this figure represented invoices received since 5 June 2006 which were in the process of being released for payment within the Department's agreed payment terms window.

Advertising Campaigns

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what advertising campaigns his Department has run since July 2004; and what the (a) date and (b) cost was of each. [81914]

Ian Pearson: For the Department's overall advertising expenditure for 2004-05 and 2005-06, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 24 May 2006, Official Report, column 1818W.

The principal advertising campaigns run by DEFRA since July 2004 are in the following table.

Campaign	Objective	Timing	Media spend (£)
Personal food imports	To raise awareness of food restrictions of food imports from outside the EU into the UK's animal disease prevention plans	December 2004-March 2005	92,343
		December 2005-March 2006	94,278
Avian flu/poultry register	To raise awareness of the biosecurity measures poultry keepers should follow in light of the international avian flu outbreaks. To encourage poultry keepers with more than 50 birds to sign up to the Poultry Register as part of the GB's avian flu contingency plans.	October 2005-March 2006	185,976

The Department also undertakes a wide range of recruitment, statutory notice and one-off advertising activities which accounts for the balance in spending. Information on advertising campaigns by non-departmental public bodies, executive agencies, independent statutory bodies and other DEFRA-funded bodies is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Agricultural Support

Mr. O'Hara: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the total budget is in 2006-07 for agricultural support in England; and what the administrative cost is of distributing it. [82445]

Ian Pearson: The amount forecast for agricultural support in England in 2006-07 is approximately £1.6 billion. This will be administered by the Rural Payments Agency (RPA), whose administrative costs are budgeted at £197.1 million in 2006-07.

Air Conditioning

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what information his Department collects on the number of homes in the United Kingdom which have domestic air conditioning installed. [84953]

Ian Pearson: No detailed information is available about the number of air conditioning units in domestic homes or their associated energy consumption.

However, the Government's Market Transformation Programme (MTP) has collected estimates of the amount of energy consumed by air conditioning units in the UK that are subject to the Energy Information (Household Air Conditioners) No.2 Regulations 2005 (that is, units which consume less than 12 kilowatts). The 2005 Regulatory Impact Assessment for those regulations indicates that these appliances, which are used in both domestic and commercial premises, consume about 5.6 terawatt hours of electricity per year. This is equivalent to approximately 672,000 tonnes of carbon. The report is available on the DEFRA website:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/corporate/consult/energylabelling-regsaircon/index.htm

No information is collected for indirect greenhouse gas emissions from these appliances.

Badgers

Ms Angela C. Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether badger body snares had been used by the Central Science Laboratory for (a) ecological and (b) other research work before 2006. [82469]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer my hon. friend to the reply I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Stroud (Mr. Drew) on 5 June 2006, Official Report, column 89W.

Given the real security concerns associated with work of this nature, it is our policy not to comment on any involvement or otherwise of agencies or contractors in relation this topic.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many badgers there are, broken down by region. [83249]

Mr. Bradshaw: Surveys of badger populations in Great Britain were undertaken in the mid-1980s and mid-1990s. In the mid-1980s the badger population was estimated to be 250,000 and in the mid-1990s a survey estimated that the population had increased by 77 per cent.

DEFRA is not aware of any other national surveys which have attempted to estimate badger numbers in England and Wales. We do not have regional breakdowns of these figures.

Bovine TB

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many cattle slaughtered under the TB eradication scheme in each of the last three years were subsequently found on post mortem not to be infected and their carcasses sold into the food chain; and what the financial proceeds were of those sales in each year. [82486]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 4 July 2006]: The number of cattle slaughtered under bovine tuberculosis control measures, and their confirmation status, is set out in the following table:

	Total number of cattle slaughtered under TB control measures in GB[1]	Number of confirmed reactors	Number of unconfirmed cases
2005	30,063	8,657	21,406
2004	23,064	6,422	16,642
2003	23,821	6,308	17,513

[1] Reactors, inconclusive reactors and direct contacts.

Failure to confirm the disease by post-mortem examination at the slaughterhouse, or by culturing Mycobacterium bovis in the laboratory, does not mean that the disease was not present in the animal, or that the animal had not been in contact with bovine TB. In the early stages of the disease, it is not always possible to see lesions with the naked eye, and, owing to the fastidious nature of the organism, it is not possible to culture from samples in every case.

Carcasses and their associated offal are inspected by the Meat Hygiene Service at slaughter and those with signs of generalised infection are fully condemned and declared unfit for human consumption. When localised TB lesions are found in more than one organ or area of a carcass the whole carcass is condemned. Those carcasses with lesions in a single organ or part of the carcass and associated lymph nodes are only passed fit for human consumption once the affected part of the carcass has been cut out and condemned. If no TB lesions are found, the carcass is passed fit for human consumption. If any M. bovis organisms remain these will be killed by thorough cooking of the meat.

Figures for financial proceeds are not available for unconfirmed cattle. However, figures for the financial proceeds from all cattle slaughtered under bovine tuberculosis control measures are set out in the following table:

Financial proceeds from all cattle slaughtered under bovine tuberculosis control measures

	£ million
2005	4.4
2003	3.6

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether an assessment was made of the merits of using weight charts rather than an estimate by the Department or an auctioneer when the system by which farmers are compensated for a cow with bovine TB was changed. [83070]

Mr. Bradshaw: The current arrangements were only introduced after two full, public consultations and, wherever possible, DEFRA reacted to the detailed concerns raised by stakeholders.

Various options were considered before a system based on table valuations was developed, but weight charts were not suggested at any time during the consultation process.

Basing the level of compensation on an animal's weight would not be practical. For example, such a system would work against those farmers with young pedigree stock.

We are working with stakeholders through the Cattle Compensation Advisory Group, which was set up to monitor the introduction of the new system, to consider whether (and what) system enhancements might be needed.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many outbreaks of bovine TB in cattle there were in 2005-06; and if he will make a statement. [83271]

Mr. Bradshaw: There were 1,562 new herd TB incidents between January and May 2006[1]. This indicates a real and substantial reduction in the number of new incidents when compared to the same period in 2005 (1,959).

Given the cyclical nature of the disease, it is too early to draw any conclusions about whether the decrease is a temporary or a more sustained reduction. However, we consider the decrease to be an important and welcome development, and we are working hard to determine its cause. It is likely to be the result of a complex combination of factors, which may take some time to analyse.

[1] Data from DEFRA's Animal Health Database (Vetnet). Provisional statistics, subject to change as more data becomes available.

Chemicals Regulations

Ian Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking to ensure that the Registration, Evaluation, Authorisation and Restriction of Chemicals (REACH) regulations will operate effectively alongside the Control of Substances Hazardous to Health (COSHH) regulations; and if he will undertake an assessment of the risks of REACH undermining COSHH. [83888]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 10 July 2006]: DEFRA is involved in ongoing discussions on the implementation of the new Registration, Evaluation, Authorisation and Restriction of Chemicals (REACH) regulations with the agencies involved in the regulation of chemicals, and with the devolved administrations. The Health and Safety Executive, which acts as the competent authority for the Control of Substances Hazardous to Health (COSHH), has been fully involved throughout this process.

Common Agricultural Policy

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his most recent estimate is of the cost per person per week of the common agricultural policy in the United Kingdom. [82895]

Ian Pearson: The common agricultural policy (CAP) generates costs to both consumers and taxpayers. Consumers' costs arise because of the higher prices that prevail under the CAP. Taxpayers fund both direct subsidies to producers and the cost of operating the market management instruments of the CAP. However, the UK does not contribute to individual EU budget categories; it contributes to the entire EU budget. Therefore, in order to provide an indication of the cost to UK taxpayers we have calculated a notional UK contribution to expenditure on the CAP.

Our provisional estimate of the consumer and taxpayer cost of the CAP person per week in the UK, in 2004, is approximately £2.50.

Environmental Regulation

Mr. Heath: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much and what proportion of the Department's budget was spent directly on environmental regulation in each year since 2000-01, broken down by region. [82753]

Ian Pearson: The Department does not maintain a separate record of expenditure on environmental regulation, which is included in the overall administration costs. This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Flags

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) on how many days since May 1997 the St. George's flag has been flown from his Department's buildings; [77727]

(2) what his Department's policy is on flying the (a) St. George's flag and (b) EU flag from departmental buildings. [77728]

Ian Pearson: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport issues the guidance for flying flags on Government buildings. This includes flying the St. George's flag on St. George's day, 23 April, and the European flag on Europe day, 9 May, on buildings with two or more flag poles provided they are flown alongside the Union flag with the Union flag in the superior position.

The Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs only has one flag pole, and therefore does not fly the St. George's flag or the European flag. On that basis, the St. George's flag has not knowingly been flown from any buildings on the DEFRA estate.

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will ensure the Union flag is flown from his Department's buildings on every day the offices are open. [77729]

Ian Pearson: The Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs follows the rules and guidance on flag flying issued by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport. These rules are approved by the Queen on advice from the Department. There are no plans at present to change the number of days on which flags can be flown from Government buildings.

Outsourcing

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what administrative functions for which his Department is responsible are outsourced overseas; and what assessment he has made of the merits of outsourcing further such functions overseas. [81547]

Ian Pearson: According to information held centrally, no administrative functions for which the Department is responsible have been outsourced overseas. Sourcing decisions are made on the basis of value for money. Any decisions to outsource functions overseas would be taken in the light of that policy and would recognise the Department's emergency preparedness and business continuity requirements.

Post Office Contracts

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for which services (a) his Department and (b) its associated public bodies hold contracts with the Post Office; and what the (i) start and (ii) termination date is of each contract. [81542]

Ian Pearson: According to information held centrally, the Department has no contracts with the Post Office.

Poultry Farmers

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what special EU support is offered to poultry farmers; and what assessment he has made of the impact of such support on the poultry industry in the UK. [82712]

Ian Pearson: Recent amendments to EU Council Regulations 2777/75 and 27771/75 provide legal powers to make special support measures available to member states in the event of a significant decline in consumer confidence in poultry products, as a direct result of avian influenza, causing the market to collapse.

It is a long established Government policy that accommodating market fluctuations is something for the industry to manage. It is principally for this reason that we do not propose to exercise the EC provision to provide these exceptional market support measures.

Private Sewers

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he last reviewed the legislation on private sewers; and if he will make a statement. [83845]

Ian Pearson: The Government are very aware of the problem of private sewers, whereby householders often do not know they have a private sewer until a problem occurs such as a blockage or collapse, which can lead to disputes and consumer resistance to paying for repairs. Local authorities have also traditionally lacked any kind of records of where such sewers are, and the condition that they are in.

Legislation concerning private sewers has been kept under review by the Government since 2001 when a protocol was proposed for the construction of new sewers, enabling them to be built to a standard suitable for adoption by water and sewerage companies. The Government published their "Review of existing private sewers and drains in England and Wales" in July 2003, which sought views on a number of possible solutions to the problem of maintenance of such sewers including their adoption by water and sewerage companies. This report is available on the DEFRA website:

In January 2005, DEFRA held a stakeholder seminar—"Review of Existing Private Sewers in England and Wales: What Next?"—which explored and drew conclusions on sustainable options for the scope and form of any potential transfer of private sewers to water and sewerage companies. There was general consensus at the seminar that transfer provided the most comprehensive solution.

DEFRA has worked hard with stakeholders, including Ofwat, Water UK and the Consumer Council for Water, to examine the scope and form of any potential transfer to water and sewerage companies. This has included its costs and funding, the impact on the drain repair and insurance industries, and public expectation. We intend to publish a decision on existing private sewers in England and Wales in the autumn.

Rural Payments Agency

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking to resolve the applications from applicants for the Entry Level Scheme where applications have been delayed because of disputes over Rural Payments Agency mapping and where payments have consequently been lost for one year; and if he will pay compensation to those affected. [83518]

Ian Pearson: The Rural Development Service (RDS) have implemented a variety of measures to facilitate the earliest possible entry into the Environmental Stewardship (ES) Scheme.

Under the Entry Level Stewardship (ELS) strand of ES in particular, the following steps have been taken:

Monthly, rather than quarterly start dates were implemented in the summer of 2005;

Shortly after the launch of the scheme, a prioritisation list of ELS applicants with outstanding Rural Land Register (RLR) mapping issues was established. This enabled Rural Payment Agency staff to prioritise cases more effectively;

In circumstances where applicants were not able to fully register all of their land on the RLR, applicants could consider either:

applying for an agreement on the land initially registered and then applying for a separate subsequent ELS agreement on the newly registered land; or applying for an agreement on the land initially registered and then once land registration for all land was completed, applying for a new, re-started agreement across the whole of the holding.

It should also be noted that applicants are able to take up a full five-year ELS agreement. Therefore, though payments may be initially delayed for some, the opportunity to participate in an ELS agreement and receive payment for this will not be lost.

Given the steps outlined, and the voluntary nature of the ES scheme rather than its being a regulatory entitlement, I do not believe that there is a sufficiently robust case for compensation, where a later than anticipated entry into the scheme has been experienced.

Sheep (Electronic Tagging)

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make a statement on progress towards the implementation of mandatory electronic tagging for sheep. [84362]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given on 12 June 2006, Official Report, column 903W.

Single Farm Payment

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, pursuant to the answer of 12 June 2006, Official Report, column 902W to the hon. Member for Hereford (Mr. Keetch), on the single farm payment, on what date he will publish details of payments made in England up to 30 June 2006. [82361]

Ian Pearson: In his statement to the House on 5 July 2006 the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs announced the details of payments made in England up to 30 June 2006.

Supermarkets (UK Produce)

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate his Department has made of the amount of UK food produce sold in supermarkets in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [82030]

Ian Pearson: Estimates of the amount of UK food produce sold in supermarkets are not available.

Tallow

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what steps his Department takes to enforce the Waste Incineration Directive in relation to the burning of tallow; what assessment he has made of enforcement levels; and if he will make a statement; [83342]

(2) how many breaches of the Waste Incineration Directive there were in relation to the burning of tallow in each of the last 12 months, broken down by local authority. [83344]

Ian Pearson: The Waste Incineration Directive (WID) applies to all technical units incinerating waste or co-incinerating waste along with non-waste material. As the law currently stands, the burning of waste tallow as fuel is subject to the requirements of the WID and is regulated by local authorities and the Environment Agency depending on the type of rendering unit.

Having received representations—including one from the UK Government—that the application of the stringent requirements of the WID is disproportionate in relation to the burning of tallow, the European Commission has set up a study to help establish whether such controls are appropriate and necessary to the protection of the environment. The study is expected to report by the autumn, and the Government are pressing the Commission for the study to be completed as soon as possible.

Against this background, operators have argued that the continued burning of tallow in rendering plants would be more beneficial for the environment than switching to alternative fossil fuels, which do not require WID-compliant plants. In addition, switching fuels would have damaging cost impacts on the livestock chain.

Recognising these points and the ongoing Commission study, but also the current state of the law, Ministers have encouraged the industry to enter technical discussions with the regulators to determine how best individual plants might plan move over time to comply with the WID.

A plant's failure to comply with WID requirements included in Pollution Prevention Control permits is a matter for the regulator. My Department does not maintain a database of Waste Incineration Directive breaches. Following detection of non-compliance, decisions about enforcement action and/or prosecution are taken in line with the regulator's existing enforcement and prosecution policies. The latter includes consideration of "public interest" in upholding environmental law.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the effects of the use of tallow by the soap production and oleochemical industries on levels of recycling in the context of the Government's policies on waste management and sustainable development; and what research he has commissioned on this. [83345]

Ian Pearson: Approximately 265,000 tonnes of tallow are produced in the UK annually. Approximately 50-65,000 tonnes (including imported tallow) are used by the soap production and oleochemical industry in the UK per year. No assessment of the effects on levels of recycling from the use of tallow has been made, nor has any research been commissioned.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what assessment he has made of the impact of the incentive scheme for the production of biodiesel in the context of competing uses for tallow; and what discussions he has had with the Department (a) of Trade and Industry and (b) for Transport on the impact; [83346]

(2) what assessment he has made of the impact of the incentive scheme in place for the use of tallow in the production of biofuels on levels of (a) recycling and (b) renewable energy production. [83347]

Ian Pearson: The Government are supporting the production of biodiesel through a 20p per litre duty rate cut. This has brought forward biodiesel from a variety of feedstock, including tallow. The forthcoming Renewable Transport Fuels Obligation will require 5 per cent. of road fuel to come from renewable sources by 2010. Tallow-derived biodiesel will qualify under the obligation. Burning tallow for the generation of electricity may also qualify for Renewables Obligation

Certificates (ROCs), although the Government are not aware of any significant burning of tallow which is eligible for ROCs.

We are aware that the oleochemical industry is concerned that the use of tallow for the production of biodiesel and electricity generation will reduce available supplies of tallow for their industry. No formal assessment of this has been made by the Government. However, Defra is in close contact with the Department for Transport and the Department of Trade and Industry, which are engaged in on-going discussions with the oleochemical industry.

Waste Incineration Directive

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what guidance is issued to regulators of the rendering industry in England and Wales on determining whether a rendering plant is working towards compliance with the European Union Waste Incineration Directive. [78044]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 16 June 2006]: The Environment Agency has met the UK Renderers Association on two recent occasions to agree steps to be taken by the sector in moving towards compliance with the waste incineration directive (WID). Those steps include emissions monitoring at two rendering plants. All plants will also investigate the cost and lead times for the supply and installation of suitable continuous emissions monitoring equipment, as well as the engineering feasibility. Relevant local authorities in England and Wales have been made aware of the outcome of the meeting. A third meeting is planned in July.

Guidance on the regulatory and technical requirements of the WID is provided by my Department and the Welsh Assembly in "Guidance on Directive 2000/76/EC on the incineration of waste", available at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/ppc/wasteincin/pdf/wid-guidance.pdf.

Water Companies

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he has made representations to Thames Water about its water leakage rates. [80616]

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what meetings he (a) has held and (b) plans to hold with (i) Thames Water and (ii) Ofwat regarding Thames Water's performance against its leakage reduction targets. [80974]

Ian Pearson: The Secretary of State and I met with representatives of the water industry, including Thames Water, on 1 June to discuss the water supply challenges we face in the short, medium and long term. Leakage levels was one of the issues discussed. I also met Thames Water seperately in May and made clear that its leakage rates were unacceptably high.

I have discussed the issues of leakage and enforcement options available to Ofwat with it. However, I must add that Ofwat carries out its functions independently of Ministers.

On 4 July, Ofwat announced that it had secured a legally binding undertaking, committing Thames Water to £150 million of additional investment in replacing leaking mains. This is more than double the maximum imposable fine and will come from the shareholder, not the bill payer. Ofwat has also set revised leakage targets for the period up to 2010 to get the company's leakage reduction back on track and to take leakage down to 720 rather than 725 megalitres per day by 2009-10. It is right that the consumer does not bear the burden of the increased investment needed for Thames Water to deal with its failure to meet its leakage targets.

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which water companies missed their leakage reduction targets in each year since 2001. [80970]

Ian Pearson: Ofwat has recognised that leakage is affected by severe weather conditions and since 2002-03 it has assessed the water companies' achievement of targets on a 36-month rolling average. Following Ofwat's assessment of the companies, 2004-05 leakage performance, United Utilities and Thames Water were deemed to be operating above their 36-month average targets. Thames Water had targets suspended in 2001-02 and 2002-03 owing to its performance and data problems.

The following water companies missed their single year leakage reduction targets between 2001 and 2005:

2001-02

Anglian Water
Three Valleys Water
Northumbrian Water (South)

2002-03

Anglian Water
Severn Trent Water
United Utilities
Three Valleys Water

2003-04

Anglian Water
Thames Water
United Utilities
Mid Kent Water
Three Valleys Water

2004-05

Thames Water
United Utilities
Cambridge Water

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to review the criteria by which Ofwat (a) reviews and (b) penalises the performance of water companies. [84287]

Ian Pearson: The powers of Ofwat were reviewed as part of the Water Act 2003. There are no proposals for further changes at present.

Water Desalination Plants

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many water desalination plants are (a) in operation, (b) under construction and (c) planned; what the location is of each; and which company is involved in each case. [84054]

Ian Pearson: The water companies' proposals for resource developments, including proposed desalination plants, were set out in their 25 year water resources plans, prepared in 2004. The Environment Agency reported on the appropriateness of those plans in 'Maintaining Water Supply', which is available from its website:

http://www.environment-agency.gov.uk/subjects/waterres/981441/837307/?version=1&lang=_e

Currently, no water company has a desalination plant in operation. South East Water has been testing a pilot plant at Newhaven, although no water from this pilot project has gone into supply. The company is preparing the documentation to support a planning application for a plant at this site. Thames Water is appealing against the refusal of planning permission for a plant at Beckton in the Thames estuary. The company's water resources plan also identifies provision for a second plant in the 2020s. Folkestone and Dover Water plans a small desalination plant at Hythe in 2019 and Southern Water proposes the development of a desalination plant in the 2020s.

Water Services

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many customers were in receipt of the vulnerable groups tariff for each water company over the last three years for which figures are available. [84056]

Ian Pearson: Each year, Ofwat collects information from companies on the number of households applying for, and successfully receiving, assistance offered under the vulnerable groups regulations.

The following table sets out the numbers for 2002-03, 2003-04 and 2004-05.

	Total number of applications			Total number of successful applications
	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05

TREASURY

Affordable Housing

16. Andrew George: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what progress has been made on implementation of the recommendations of the Barker review on affordable housing. [84777]

John Healey: Good progress has been made on implementing the recommendations contained in the Barker Review of Housing Supply.

The Government set out, in the last pre-Budget report, an ambitious agenda to raise the level of house-building to 200,000 new homes a year over the next decade, making housing more affordable.

So far we have succeeded in driving up housing supply, with new house building in England reaching 160,000 in 2005, the highest level since 1990.

We have set out major reforms to encourage housing growth including a new Planning Policy Statement for Housing to bring forward more land in response to demand, and a planning gain supplement to help fund infrastructure to support growth.

Economic Growth

17. James Brokenshire: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he has had with his G8 colleagues regarding prospects for global economic growth. [84778]

Ed Balls: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Preseli Pembrokeshire (Mr. Crabb) on the Floor of the House earlier today.

Stamp Duty

18. Rob Marris: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what forecasts he has made of stamp duty receipts from sales of residential property during the periods between 1 June 2006 and 31 December 2006 and 1 June 2007 and 31 December 2007. [84779]

Ed Balls: Forecasts of yield are made at Budget time on a fiscal year basis. The forecast is published in table C8 which aggregates stamp duty on property with that on shares.

A retrospective analysis of yield from residential and commercial stamp duty land tax (stamp duty on property) is published in the autumn.

23. Mr. Hands: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the future of stamp duty on residential property sales. [84785]

Ed Balls: All taxes are kept under review and announcements are made in the Budget.

Mr. Hands: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to the answer of 26 June 2006, Official Report, column 95W, on stamp duty (1) how much was raised in stamp duty from home sales in (a) the United Kingdom, (b) London, (c) Southend and (d) Wales in 2005-06; [83692]

(2) how much was raised in stamp duty from home sales in (a) each local authority area, (b) the United Kingdom, (c) London, (d) Scotland and (e) Wales in the nearest year to 1997-98 for which figures are available. [83696]

Ed Balls: Estimates of stamp duty raised from home sales in 1997-98 in the United Kingdom, London, Scotland and Northern Ireland (combined) and Wales are available at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/stats/stamp_duty/table15_2_october04.xls

Final figures for 2005-06 have not yet been published.

G8 Summit

19. Mrs. Betty Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the forthcoming G8 meeting in St. Petersburg on 15 to 17 July. [84780]

Ed Balls: The Prime Minister will attend the G8 summit in St. Petersburg this weekend. This is the first Russian G8 Presidency and the UK is working with G8 partners for a successful summit. The Presidency's focus is on energy security, infectious diseases and education. These and other current issues will be discussed at the meeting. The Prime Minister will lead two sessions on Africa at the summit, in recognition of continuing G8 focus on Africa.

Unemployment (Shropshire)

20. Mark Pritchard: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on levels of unemployment in Shropshire between June 2005 and June 2006. [84782]

John Healey: The number of people unemployed and claiming benefit in Shropshire in May 2006 is 2,599. This is 603 higher than the previous year, but it is nearly 1,700 lower than it was in 1997, and nearly 10,000 lower than it was in 1986 under the last Government.

Tax Credits

21. Mr. Vara: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of the level of fraud in the tax credit system in 2005-06. [84783]

Dawn Primarolo: HMRC has published estimates of error and fraud for tax credits from the random enquiry programme on its website at:

www.hmrc.gov.uk.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people are employed in HM Revenue and Customs to handle (a) tax credit complaints and (b) telephone calls about tax credits; and if he will make a statement. [75748]

Dawn Primarolo: On (a), I refer the hon. Member to the answers I gave him on 13 December 2005, Official Report, column 1835W, 18 July 2005, Official Report, column 1333W, and 6 July 2005, Official Report, column 437W.

As to (b), around 3,500 FTE staff were employed on tax credits helplines in May 2006.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what factors were taken into account when deciding that industrial injuries disablement should not be treated as income for tax credit purposes. [81750]

Dawn Primarolo: The child and working tax credits are part of the tax system, so the tax credits income assessment is generally based on income tax rules. Apart from industrial death benefit pensions, industrial injuries benefit is exempt from income tax and, therefore, is not taken into account as income for tax credit purposes.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to his answer of 3 May 2006, Official Report, column 1724W, on tax credits, if he will break down the management information data collected by the period for which it is collected. [81782]

Dawn Primarolo: A wide variety of management information is kept across all the HMRC business areas involved in the administration of tax credits. This is a combination of reports and the extraction of supplementary information as and when required.

Because of the large amount of information produced it is not practicable to provide a comprehensive breakdown. This management information is used to provide data for the Department's annual report.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the results of the proactive contact pilots designed to reduce tax credit overpayments. [82832]

Dawn Primarolo: All three phases of the proactive contact pilot exercise have been completed and the initial results are being evaluated. The impact in terms of helping claimants to avoid an overpayment cannot be determined until after the 2005-06 awards have been finalised later this year.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what recent assessment he has made of the extent of tax credit fraud by migrant workers; and if he will make a statement; [83419]

(2) how many people are receiving tax credits in the UK while living abroad; and if he will make a statement; [83420]

(3) what steps he has taken in the last 12 months to reduce tax credit fraud by migrant workers. [83421]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answers 11 July 2006]: Tax credits are normally only payable to people who are present and ordinarily resident in the UK. The residence rules for eligibility to tax credits are explained on the HMRC website, at www.hmrc.gov.uk/taxcredits/residence-rules.htm

In some cases, recipients of child tax credit may have legitimate foreign correspondence addresses. These include, for example, families of the armed forces or other Crown servants serving abroad.

HMRC takes fraud very seriously and has a range of checks in place throughout the life of each claim. If fraud is suspected, payment is stopped.

International Finance Facility

22. Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the international finance facility; and if he will make a statement. [84784]

Ed Balls: The International Finance Facility for Immunisation (IFFIm) was launched in September 2005 with contributions from France, Italy, Spain and Sweden, as well as the UK. Norway, Brazil and South Africa have since pledged contributions. The first bonds will be issued within a few months, and the IFFIm will begin purchasing vaccines and delivering these to the poorest countries through the Global Alliance for Vaccines and Immunisation (GAVI) before the end of the year. The IFFIm will demonstrate the benefits of frontloading aid using legally binding, long-term commitments from donors through issuing bonds in international capital markets.

The World Health Organisation estimates that in frontloading aid and investing an extra $4 billion in vaccination now, the IFFIm is expected to save a total of 10 million lives, including 5 million children before 2015. The on-going effectiveness of the disbursements will be monitored by GAVI.

Makinson Incentive Scheme

24. Mr. Todd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the evaluation of the Makinson incentive scheme in HM Customs and Excise. [84786]

Dawn Primarolo: Incentive schemes for teams (team bonuses) were trialled within HM Customs and Excise between July 2000 and 31 December 2002 in two phases. The first, from 1 July 2000 to 31 March 2001, involved six teams and a total of 650 staff. A second more extensive trial took place between April 2002 and 31 December 2002. It involved 12 teams ranging in size from 24 to 890. The trials were subject to rigorous evaluation during and at the end of the trials.

Advanced Pricing Agreements

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many advanced pricing agreements (a) have been made and (b) were in force with multinational companies in each year since 2001; and in how many cases in each year (i) enforcement action was taken and (ii) penalties were imposed in transfer pricing disputes. [84887]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave him on 6 July 2006, Official Report, column 1258-59W.

Antique Imports

Mr. Hands: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what VAT regulations apply to importing antiques; and if he will make a statement. [84426]

Dawn Primarolo: The law relating to the import of antiques is covered in the VAT Act 1994 as amended, section 1 and section 21 items (4 and 5(b)).

Financial Literacy

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what research he has commissioned to ascertain the level of financial literacy in the UK; and whether this has sought to ascertain differences in financial literacy in different (a) age groups, (b) genders, (c) classes, (d) ethnic groups and (e) occupations. [84499]

Ed Balls: The Financial Services Authority (FSA), in partnership with the Government, the financial services industry and voluntary organisations, leads the national strategy for financial capability.

The FSA recently published a comprehensive baseline survey[1] to establish the current state of financial capability in the UK. Published on 27 March 2006, the baseline survey identified five separate components of financial capability: making ends meet, keeping track of your finances, planning ahead, choosing financial products and staying informed about financial matters.

The full research report, "consumer research 47 Levels of Financial Capability in the UK: Results of a baseline survey" (available at http://www.fsa.gov.uk/pubs/consumer-research/crpr47.pdf), provides detailed analysis of each component and includes commentary of differences by particular groupings such as age, gender, income, qualifications, ethnicity, employment status and housing tenure.

Information on social class and occupation was not collected but the FSA has incorporated a proxy measure based on a wide range of life-stage characteristics[2] which is undergoing further analysis.

The FSA continues to analyse the data, particularly to understand more about the needs of more vulnerable groups. The survey will be repeated in the next four to five years to assess the impact of initiatives targeted to improve financial capability.

[1] In total 5,328 respondents were interviewed July-September 2005 to provide a robust measurement of financial capability in the UK population.

New Buildings (VAT)

Simon Hughes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what progress has been made on proposals to exempt from value-added tax new buildings for use by youth and educational facilities and the local community. [84770]

John Healey: VAT is chargeable on the construction of all new youth, educational or other community facilities, except those new buildings that will be used at least 90 per cent. for a relevant charitable purpose, such as the provision of free-of-charge education by a charity. In such cases, construction of the building is VAT zero-rated. VAT agreements with our European partners mean that while we can maintain this relief for the construction of charitable buildings, it cannot be extended further.

Pension Tax Relief

Mr. Betts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will estimate the savings to public funds of restricting all pension tax relief to a maximum of 22 per cent.; and what that saving is estimated to be in the first year in which it is intended to implement the proposed new personal pension arrangements; [84230]

(2) if he will estimate the cost to public funds of the 1 per cent. contribution to be made to personal pension arrangements under the Government's recent proposals in the first year in which the arrangement will come into effect. [84231]

Ed Balls: In relation to the savings from restricting tax relief on pension contributions to a maximum of 22 per cent., I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Eastleigh (Chris Huhne) on 26 April 2006, Official Report, column 1175W.

The estimate of the cost to public funds of the tax relief available to individuals in the proposed system of personal accounts is extremely uncertain and will depend on individual levels of participation. The regulatory impact assessment (RIA) published in May 2006 by the Department for Work and Pensions—"Security in retirement: towards a new pensions system", "Regulatory Impact Assessments and technical annexes"—estimates that the increased saving resulting from the proposals could increase tax relief paid on individual contributions by around £1 billion once the scheme is fully operational. On the same central assumption of take-up as the RIA for the first year of personal accounts, the cost of tax relief on individual contributions is estimated to be £350 million, of which £100 million is estimated to be higher rate tax relief. The costs are lower in the first year owing to the proposed three-year phasing of contributions for both employers and employees.

Postage Stamps

Mr. Hands: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether postage stamps are subject to the same VAT regulations as other antiques when they have been imported into the UK. [84416]

Dawn Primarolo: Postage stamps that are no longer legal tender even if of an age of 100 years or over are covered by subsection (c) of section 21(5) of the VAT Act 1994 which states that any collection or collector's piece of philatelic interest qualifies for the reduced rate of VAT at 5 per cent. Antiques are covered by subsection (b) of 21(5) of the VAT Act 1994.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Clissold Road Swimming Pool

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions she has had with members and officers of the London borough of Hackney on the case of the closed Clissold road swimming pool. [84164]

Tessa Jowell: I have had no official discussions. Sport England has continued to monitor developments towards the re-opening of Clissold Leisure Centre, through a project working group established by the London borough of Hackney. Sport England has also instigated a series of meetings between its executive directors and a representative of the Mayor's office, in the London borough of Hackney. The object of these meetings is to provide regular updates and to ensure that the agreed time scales and milestones towards the Centre's re-opening are being met.

Environmental Standards

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether her Department (a) is committed to the achievement of environmental management to ISO 14001 standard and (b) has been externally certified as in compliance with that standard; and if she will make a statement. [81181]

Mr. Woodward: New sustainable operations targets for the Government Estate were launched on 12 June by the Prime Minister and my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs.

The new targets included a commitment that all Government Departments should have an Environmental Management System (EMS) in place, based or modelled upon a recognised system (such as ISO14001, or the European regulation EMAS).

Previous targets for EMSs for the Government Estate (published September 2002) had the same wording as the recently announced commitment.

The Department for Culture, Media and Sport currently has an uncertified EMS based on IS014001 and has a planned timetable to certify its EMS externally in line with the new standards for IS014001 by March 2007.

Departments have submitted data relevant to this question (including external certification) for annual Sustainable Development in Government Reports. The last Report published by the Sustainable Development Commission in December 2005, covering the reporting period April 2004 to March 2005, is available at: http://www.sd-commission.org.uk/watchdog.

Licensing Laws

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what regulations govern the licensing of pubs that offer adult entertainment in the form of strip dancing. [84374]

Mr. Woodward: Public houses offering such forms of entertainment are licensable under the Licensing Act 2003 (the 2003 Act) if they are selling alcohol and if they are putting on regulated entertainment such as the performance of dance. As such, their activities are open to scrutiny in relation to the four licensing objectives: public safety, the prevention of crime and disorder, the protection of children from harm and the prevention of public nuisance.

Pornography, indecent displays, public indecency and obscenity legislation are matters for the Home Office.

London Olympics

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) whether there are plans to allow members of the public to stay overnight in the Royal Parks during the 2012 Olympic games; [84698]

(2) what plans there are for public events in the Royal Parks during the 2012 Olympic games; [84699]

(3) what discussions have been held between her Department and representatives of the Royal Parks on use of those parks by members of the public during the 2012 Olympic games; [84700]

(4) what discussions have been held on the use of Richmond park during the 2012 Olympic games. [84712]

Mr. Lammy [holding answer 12 July 2006]: Richmond park is a Site of Special Scientific Interest and a National Nature Reserve—as well as a candidate European Special Conservation Area—and there are no plans to use it for the Olympic games.

Some of the other Royal Parks—Greenwich park, Hyde park, Regent's park and Horse Guards Parade in St. James's park—will be hosting Olympic events, and these are bound to affect whether, and how, the public will be able to use certain areas of these parks.

Planning for the cultural programme and the details of the role that the Royal Parks will play in it is still at an early stage. However, my officials have already been discussing with the Royal Parks how the games will impact on the parks, and will continue to involve them in the planning of aspects of the games, and their attendant events, which might affect them before during and after the games take place.

There are no plans to make the Royal Parks available for overnight accommodation during the games. There are thousands of hotels, guest houses and hostels in and around London, offering excellent accommodation.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many parliamentary questions tabled to her Department were awaiting a reply on 10 July 2006; which of those had been waiting longer than (a) two and (b) three weeks for a reply; and what the reason for the delay was in each case. [85201]

Mr. Lammy: Forty-two parliamentary questions tabled to DCMS were awaiting a reply on 10 July 2006. None of these had been waiting longer than two weeks for a reply.

Philip Anschutz

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether she was informed of the Deputy Prime Minister's intention to stay with Philip Anschutz during his visit to the US in July 2005. [84174]

Tessa Jowell: I was not informed of the Deputy Prime Minister's intention to stay with Philip Anschutz, nor would I expect to have been.

Public Libraries

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2006, Official Report, columns 1608-9W to the hon. Member for Stroud (Mr. Drew) on library closures, how many libraries (a) closed, (b) were scheduled for closure and (c) opened in (i) rural areas and (ii) non-rural areas in that period; and if she will make a statement. [84615]

Mr. Lammy: The table in the answer to which the hon. Member refers was derived from the Public Library Statistics published annually by the Chartered Institute for Public Finance and Accountancy (CIPFA). These do not break down the numbers of public libraries by rural and non-rural areas, however defined.

Nevertheless, the CIPFA statistics contain year on year figures allowing comparisons to be made between the numbers of libraries operated by the London boroughs (inner, outer and the City), metropolitan districts, counties and unitary authorities. The statistics also offer breakdowns by English region. Copies are held by the House Library.

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment she has made of the (a) performance and (b) popularity of Sutton's self-service public library. [83829]

Mr. Lammy: There has been no such assessment. Day to day operational issues are for the judgment of the 149 library authorities in England.

However, I understand that the self-issue facilities in place at Sutton's libraries have proved popular with the majority of users and, along with other improvements, have contributed to an increased number of visits and issues as well as helping with stock management.

Part of the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council's (MLA's) role is to investigate and disseminate good practice. Some of the improvements at Sutton libraries are featured on the Designing Libraries website, jointly funded by the MLA, at www.designinglibraries.org.uk.

TV Advertising

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what meetings Ofcom has held with organisations and individuals to discuss restrictions on television advertising for food products targeting children; and which meetings were (a) initiated by Ofcom and (b) attended by Ofcom in response to requests from a third party; [85241]

(2) what the length was of each meeting attended by Ofcom to discuss restrictions on television advertising of food products targeting children; and which meetings were with organisations (a) in favour of, (b) opposed to and (c) neutral on restrictions of such advertising. [85244]

Mr. Woodward: The matters raised are the responsibility of the Office of Communications as independent regulator. Accordingly, my officials have asked the Chief Executive of Ofcom to reply. Copies of the Chief Executive's letter will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

TV Licence Savings Card

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what assistance her Department is giving to elderly people to transfer from television licence savings stamps to the new savings card before the deadline of 31 July; and if she will make a statement; [84651]

(2) how many and what proportion of people have transferred from television licence savings stamps to the new savings card to date; and if she will make a statement; [84652]

(3) what estimate she has made of the number of elderly people who will have transferred from television licence savings stamps to the new savings card by 31 July; and if she will make a statement; [84653]

(4) what assessment she has made of the likely impact of the decision to replace television licence savings stamps with a savings card on (a) people residing in rural areas and (b) elderly people; and if she will make a statement. [84654]

Mr. Woodward: The provision of assistance to licence fee payers switching from savings stamps to savings cards is a matter for the BBC, as television licensing authority, rather than the Department for Culture, Media and Sport. The corporation is also responsible for maintaining licensing records. I have asked the BBC's head of revenue management to reply.

The Department's assessment of the impact of replacing savings stamps is likely to be limited. Stamp sales have been falling for several years, being 60 per cent. lower in 2005-06 than in 1999-2000. The introduction of free TV licences for over-75s has relieved some 3.5 million older citizens of the need to pay the licence fee.

TV Licences

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many people (a) received free television licences and (b) evaded payment of a television licence in West Lancashire in each year since 1997. [84892]

Mr. Woodward: TV Licensing, which administers free television licences for people aged 75 or over as agents for the BBC, does not record the number of free licences issued, or the estimated evasion rate, by parliamentary constituency. However, the number of households with at least one person aged 75 or over claiming the winter fuel payment in 2004-05 in the West Lancashire constituency was 4,975, according to Department for Work and Pensions records.

TRANSPORT

Aviation Emissions

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions he has held with his foreign counterparts about measures to reduce carbon dioxide emissions from aviation. [82343]

Gillian Merron: The subject of reducing carbon dioxide emissions from aviation was last discussed by EU Transport Council members in October 2005. Subsequently the December 2005 Environment Council recognised that the inclusion of the aviation sector in the EU Emission Trading Scheme seemed to be the best way forward and urged the Commission to bring forward a legislative proposal by the end of 2006. We intend to work closely with foreign counterparts as the details of this proposal take shape.

Carbon Dioxide Emissions

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, pursuant to his answer of 12 June 2006, Official Report, column 967W, on roads, what modelling has been applied to the road schemes in the Highways Agency targeted programme of improvements on carbon dioxide emissions; whether the estimate from the "Future of Transport" White Paper included such modelling; and why this figure remained unchanged from the original 10-year Transport Plan of 2000 despite the inclusion of additional new schemes. [84685]

Dr. Ladyman: Modelling has been applied at two levels to the road schemes in the targeted programme of improvements (TPI): first at the individual scheme level where carbon dioxide assessments are carried out in accordance with the guidance in the Design Manual of Roads and Bridges (DMRB) volume 11.3.1, and secondly, at the national level (for all schemes) using the Department's National Transport Model.

The road build included in our national modelling is the Highway Agency's illustrative forward programme of schemes. This includes schemes in the targeted programme of improvements (TPI), plus an estimate of schemes that may make their way into the TPI going forward.

The modelling carried out for the "Future of Transport" White Paper included this HA illustrative programme, with it adding around 0.15 million tonnes of carbon in 2010, in England. The carbon added from just the current TPI would, therefore, be somewhat less than this, as my estimate of the 12 June response reflects.

The modelling carried out for the 10-year Transport Plan gave an aggregated figure for the carbon impact of the plan as a whole (including sustainable distribution etc.) and did not split out the road build impact. However, given that the amount of road build in the 10-year plan is of a similar magnitude to that modelled for the White Paper, the carbon impact is likely to be of similar size as well.

Cars

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the (a) number and (b) percentage of households without access to a car (i) in total, (ii) in each region, (iii) in each local authority area, (iv) in each income quintile and (v) in each classification of residential neighbourhoods in (A) the latest year for which figures are available and (B) 1997. [84442]

Dr. Ladyman: Data available from the National Travel Survey on the number of households without access to a car in each region, and the percentage of households without access to a car, (i) in Great Britain, (ii) in each region, (iii) in each income quintile and (iv) by the Office for National Statistics area classification, are given in the following table.

Households without access to a car in Great Britain, by region, income quintile and ONS area classification

Channel Tunnel Rail Link

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many trains per hour will use the Channel Tunnel Rail Link at Stratford during peak hours; how many of these will be (a) domestic and (b) international; and what the full passenger capacity of each train will be. [80823]

Derek Twigg: We will not be in a position to know how many trains per hour will use the CTRL at Stratford during peak hours until the domestic operator (London South Eastern Railways), and the international operator (Eurostar) announce their timetables for these new services.

Subject to final confirmation of the design requirements, the high speed domestic trains are expected to comprise six-car trains with about 350 seats. The six-car trains will be capable of being coupled to run as 12-car trains. The international trains comprise 16 carriages and have 766 seats.

Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency

Jim Dowd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what facilities there are at the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency for the return of original documents by secure delivery. [85163]

Dr. Ladyman: It should be emphasised that identity documents are required with applications for a first photocard driving licence only and where there are personal changes subsequently. As over 25 million drivers now have a photocard licence the requirement for identity documents is diminishing. In addition, arrangements are in place for digitised passports to be checked by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) online with the Identity and Passport Service (IPS). Non digitised UK passports can be checked at Post Offices, with the same facility available at DVLA's 40 Local Offices, which can also check ED passports and those from certain designated countries where licence exchange agreements exist. All these facilities remove the need for submission of a passport to DVLA.

The use of Special/Recorded delivery arrangements for the return of all submitted identity documents to drivers has been examined, but it would involve substantial clerical intervention, which would result in a significant increase in the fees charged for driving licences. The use of plain fit-for-purpose envelopes by DVLA has not revealed any widespread problems. Some drivers send their own special envelopes for return, but this is a matter of personal choice.

Large Goods Vehicles

Mr. David: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will introduce (a) a mandatory register of large goods vehicles instructors and (b) a system of check-testing rather than re-testing for large goods vehicle instructors. [84354]

Dr. Ladyman: Currently we have no powers to introduce a mandatory register of LGV instructors. Parliament is currently considering a Road Safety Bill that includes provision to introduce such a scheme by regulation. Arrangements to assure standards maintenance would be part of the consultation before any scheme was introduced.

Before the voluntary register was established in 1997, the Driving Standards Agency proposed a continuing test of instructional fitness and ability (or 'check-test') as the means to stay on the register. In response to consultation with the road freight industry and its training representatives, the industry argued strongly for re-qualifying exams involving practical assessment of driving as well as instruction as the means to remain qualified.

Nuclear Material (Transportation)

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much nuclear material is typically transported in a nuclear transport vessel; and what assessment he has made of the impact on the marine environment in the event of an accident or attack causing all such material to leak into the sea. [84863]

Dr. Ladyman: All vessels carrying packaged irradiated nuclear fuel, plutonium and high-level radioactive wastes must be certified as complying with the stringent criteria of the International Code for such cargoes known as the INF Code before they are able to be used for such purposes.

It is not possible to quote "typical quantities" transported in a nuclear transport vessel as the quantity of material varies according to the business contract being served.

The International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) published a report in July 2001 to examine the severity, probability and risk of accidents during the maritime transport of radioactive material. In this study the IAEA considered the shipment of radioactive materials including the shipment of irradiated fuel, plutonium, high-level vitrified wastes and fresh mixed oxide (MOX) fuel in a nuclear transport vessel. The study considered a number of issues related to accidents at sea, accident statistics, risk studies and emergency response. The study concluded that all the scientific information available in this area demonstrated that there were very low levels of radiological risk and environmental consequences from the sea transport of radioactive material.

Nuclear Waste Transportation

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which railway lines (a) in and (b) outside London are used for the transportation of nuclear waste. [80463]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 26 June 2006]: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 16 June 2006, Official Report, column 1419W.

Ports

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the processes and procedures are for co-ordination between the port health authorities throughout the UK and the Maritime and Coastguard Agency. [84390]

Dr. Ladyman: The Maritime and Coastguard Agency has a Memorandum of Understanding with the Association of Port Health Authorities, which ensures that procedures are in place and implemented for the public health and safety of seafarers and passengers, and to prevent pollution from ships; ensures the most effective use of resources and expertise, to provide a joined up approach; promotes awareness of food safety and food hygiene and public health standards throughout the Maritime Industry; and allows for the appropriate enforcement of all relevant legislation to ensure that effective systems of food hygiene are maintained aboard ships.

The Government keeps under review arrangements for co-ordination and co-operation between bodies with an interest in port health matters.

Rail Passengers (Overcrowding)

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will visit Castle Point to discuss the overcrowding on the c2c Fenchurch Street Line and the process for obtaining a new terminus rail station on Canvey Island to relieve that overcrowding. [78602]

Derek Twigg: There are no plans by the Department for extending the line to Canvey Island and a new terminus station on Canvey Island would not, in itself, reduce crowding on the route.

The Department would consider any fully-costed business case for proposals for new stations or developments to the national rail network.

c2c has been consulting on proposed December 2006 timetable changes which they say will lead to additional seats in the morning peak.

Reactor Fuel (Shipping)

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether (a) former roll-on-roll-off ferries and (b) other single-hulled, single-engine vessels have been used to transport mixed-oxide reactor fuel in British waters (i) since 1997 and (ii) in the last 30 years. [84865]

Dr. Ladyman: The transportation of mixed oxide reactor fuels is a commercial matter for the suppliers, carriers and owners of the material.

All vessels used to transport mixed-oxide reactor fuel must be certified as complying with the International Code for such cargoes known as the INF Code, before they are able to be used for such purposes.

The criteria needed to be met by the INF Code vessels are stringent and include comprehensive certification, robust damage stability, enhanced fire safety measures, strict management and training of crew and a competent and well tested shipboard emergency plan.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much mixed oxide reactor fuel has passed through British waters in each year since 1997; and from which countries it has come. [84867]

Dr. Ladyman: The amounts of mixed-oxide reactor fuels on board ships is a commercial matter for the suppliers, carriers and owners of the material.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether his maritime pollution contingency plans include how to respond to an accident involving a vessel transporting nuclear fuel. [84868]

Dr. Ladyman: The National Contingency Plan for Marine Pollution from Shipping and Offshore Installations does indeed cover incidents involving a ship carrying radioactive materials.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what changes are planned to the way in which mixed oxide reactor fuel is transported in British waters. [84869]

Dr. Ladyman: The transport of mixed-oxide reactor fuel is in accordance with a comprehensive framework of international regulations and agreements which are reflected in national legislation to ensure that the levels of safety provided by the equipment and its operation meet certain stringent requirements. The UK will continue to meet its obligations to implement the latest edition of these international regulations and agreements.

As part of our continuing assessment of the radiological consequences of transporting radioactive material by sea, studies are carried approximately every 10 years. We will be commissioning the next study within the next three months. Should the findings of this study require changes to the international regulations or agreements, the UK Government will propose those changes by established processes, including consultation with industry and environmental stakeholders.

Speed Limits

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make it his policy to allow a local highways authority to decide not to install a national speed limit sign at the end of a lower speed limit zone if (a) such a decision can be justified by the rural nature of the road and (b) the road concerned is a cul-de-sac. [84369]

Dr. Ladyman: Local highway authorities have the power to set speed limits at an appropriate level. All changes of speed limit are required by law to be clearly signed to allow drivers ample time to adjust their speed accordingly.

Drivers are required to know the speed limit in force at any given time and the Department would not wish to mislead them into thinking a lower speed limit was in force, irrespective of the circumstances. It is also important to retain national consistency.

Tonnage Tax Participants

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much was paid by tonnage tax participants as payment in lieu of training in each of the last five years for which records are available; and how the money was spent. [84391]

Dr. Ladyman: It was agreed when the tonnage tax scheme was devised that the collection of payments in lieu of training (PILOT) and the distribution of moneys would be carried out independently of the Department. PILOT payments are made to the Maritime Training Trust (MTT), a body set up by the Chamber of Shipping and maritime trade unions, and the moneys received are allocated by the Maritime Educational Foundation (MEF), a charity established by the MTT to promote UK seafarer training. My officials have contacted the MTT/MEF, which will provide the requested information direct to the hon. Member.

Traffic Volume

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the (a) total volume and (b) percentage change in traffic was for each year between 1997 and 2006; and what proportion of the change he estimates derived from each (i) income quintile and (ii) classification of residential neighbourhoods. [84444]

Dr. Ladyman: The levels of motor vehicle traffic and the percentage changes each year from 1997 to 2005 are given in the following table.

Motor vehicle traffic estimates, Great Britain, 1997 to 2005

Billion vehicle kilometres and percentage change

	All motor vehicles	Percentage change from previous year
1997	450.3	2.1
1998	458.5	1.8
1999	467.0	1.8
2000	467.1	0.0
2001	474.4	1.6
2002	486.5	2.5
2003	490.4	0.8
2004	498.6	1.7
2005	499.4	0.2

It is not possible to estimate the proportion of the change attributable to each income quintile or according to the classification of residential neighbourhoods.

Vehicle and Operator Services Agency

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the value is of outstanding unpaid claims to the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency in respect of problems MOT garages have experienced with the new MOT computer system. [82439]

Dr. Ladyman: On 30 June 2006, there are unpaid claims totalling £114,300 relating to problems with MOT Computerisation. VOSA is considering each case submitted to determine whether it is justified.

Vehicle Excise Duty

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people his Department calculated as being liable for payment of vehicle excise duty in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [83589]

Dr. Ladyman: Vehicle excise duty (VED) is levied on vehicles, not individuals. As vehicles can be owned by more than one person or by a company or organisation, figures for the number of people liable to pay VED are not available. Statistics showing the number of licensed vehicles for each year from 1995-2005 are available on the Department for Transport website at the following address:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/stellent/groups/dft_transstats/documents/downloadable/dft_transstats_611686.xls#'Table 1'!A1

SCOTLAND

Departmental Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) if he will list the Government Bills sponsored by his Department that are still to be introduced during the 2005-06 session; [78841]

(2) if he will list the Government Bills sponsored by his Department that he has bid for in the next session of Parliament; and if he will make a statement. [78842]

David Cairns: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 16 June 2006, Official Report, column 1431W, by my right hon. Friend, the Leader of the House.

Departmental Publications

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list the draft Bills produced by his Department since October 2005; state how many were examined or are planned to be examined by (a) a Departmental Select Committee or a combination of Select Committees and (b) a Joint Committee of both Houses of Parliament; and if he will make a statement. [81648]

David Cairns: No draft Bills have been produced by the Scotland Office since October 2005. Announcements on future legislation and future draft legislation which will be subject to pre-legislative scrutiny will be indicated in the Queen's Speech.

Official Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland on how many occasions he has visited each region in an official capacity in the last 12 months. [84007]

David Cairns: My right hon. Friend has not visited any Government office regions in England during the last 12 months in his capacity as Secretary of State for Scotland. However, both he and I undertake regular visits throughout Scotland.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Air Conditioning Systems

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the estimated average (a) energy use, (b) direct greenhouse gas emissions and (c) indirect greenhouse gas emissions were for air conditioning systems to cool domestic homes in the last year for which figures are available. [84069]

Ian Pearson: I have been asked to reply.

No detailed information is available about the number of air conditioning units in domestic homes or their associated energy consumption.

However, the Government's market transformation programme (MTP) has collected estimates of the amount of energy consumed by air conditioning units in the UK that are subject to the Energy Information (Household Air Conditioners) No. 2 Regulations 2005 (that is, units which consume less than 12 kilowatts). The 2005 regulatory impact assessment for those regulations indicate that these appliances, which are used in both domestic and commercial premises, consume about 5.6 terawatt hours of electricity per year. This is equivalent to approximately 672,000 tonnes of carbon. The report is available on the DEFRA website:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/corporate/consult/energylabelling-regsaircon/index.htm

No information is collected for indirect greenhouse gas emissions from these appliances.

Ambassadors for British Business

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the (a) status, (b) activities and (c) funding are of the Ambassadors for British Business; and if he will make a statement. [84277]

Mr. McCartney: The Ambassadors for British Business scheme has not existed for some time. However, UK trade and investment continues to involve senior business representatives in helping the success of UK business internationally and also in attracting quality foreign direct investment to the UK. These representatives make a valuable contribution that is much appreciated.

Consolidated Resource Accounts

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Hemel Hempstead (Mike Penning) of 9 March 2006, Official Report, column 1727W, on consolidated resource accounts, what the nature is of the cases referred to under parts (b) and (d) of the Special Payments losses. [84205]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Regarding the nature of the cases referred to under part (b):

Three payments were made to ex-members of DTI staff whose employment was terminated on inefficiency grounds. The payments, amounting to £33,487, relate to increases in compensation payments made to individuals following their appeal to the civil service Appeals Board. The payments represent 0.01 per cent. of the total value of the Department's staff costs.

Regarding the nature of the cases referred to under part (d):

Miscellaneous payments to DTI staff for damage to property, personal injury and miscalculations of entitlement amounting to £78,274 can be broken down as follows:

Description	£
An overpayment of pension benefits due to an error in the pension calculation of an ex-employee. When the error came to light the DTI had to re-imburse Cabinet Office as the original payment had been met from their vote.	24,000
A payment to an individual who retired on compulsory early retirement terms. The sum represents 3 months salary in lieu of notice.	18,000
Payments were made to a member of staff at Westfield House to cover compensation for personal injury and related legal fees.	15,000
A payment was made under the Disability Discrimination Act in an out of court settlement following a harassment complaint from a member of staff.	7,000
A payment was made to a former employee to settle a possible tribunal case, arising from alleged discrimination under the Disability Discrimination Act.	2,500
Payments made to cover damage to Government or Government-hired vehicles.	1,450
Minor payments, less than £1,000 each, were made for personal injury claims.	10,325
Total	78,275

Departmental Publications

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will make it his policy to make copies of deposited papers available in the (a) Vote Office and (b) Printed Paper Office at the same time as copies are deposited in the Library; and if he will make a statement. [81240]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my right hon. Friend the Leader of the House (Mr. Straw) on 3 July 2006, Official Report, column 729W.

Energy Use

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps the Government are taking to help companies who are heavy energy users to maintain competitiveness with European competitors. [84150]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government understands the tough conditions in which energy consumers are operating and is leaving no stone unturned, working closely with industry, to find solutions and reduce the impact. The Government fully appreciates that high energy prices create problems for the competitiveness of industry, and takes very seriously the potential loss of jobs and investment.

Estimates suggest that in April 2006 industrial gas and electricity prices in the UK including taxes were above the EU median for all but the smallest consumers. However, historically prices to industrial users have been below the EU median, and right up to October 2005 prices were no higher than the EU median, except for the very largest energy consumers.

Our discussions with the Energy Intensive Users Group and others have helped us focus our efforts on maximising gas and electricity supplies, improving the operation of the market, encouraging demand side response and pursuing fair access to markets across Europe. Over the summer we are pursuing a detailed work plan with Ofgem, National Grid, industry and others to ensure we have examined all the options and that we are in the best possible position ahead of next winter. The new Business Energy Forum, co-chaired by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State and Richard Lambert of the CBI, which met for the first time on 5 July, is monitoring this work and looking at other strategic energy issues impacting on business.

Other Ministers and I will continue to take every opportunity to raise the issue of implementation of energy market liberalisation across the EU in meetings with the Commission and our opposite numbers in other member state Governments. We welcome the Commission's decision to initiate infraction proceedings against 17 member states, and the series of dawn raids in six member states in pursuance of anti-trust action. These actions should lead to a change of behaviour across the EU.

Post Office Services

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if his Department will undertake a review of Post Office service provision in rural areas; and if he will make a statement. [84650]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We are currently considering options for the Post Office network beyond 2008. There has already been informal consultation with key stakeholders and we expect to consult more widely in due course.

Post Office Ltd (POL) recently produced a report on rural pilot activity involving innovative ways of delivering postal services. We are looking at the findings of the report and want others to have the chance to do the same. No further decisions on the rural network will be taken until we have had the time the fully consider the report and views of stakeholders.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Deputy Prime Minister

Sir Paul Beresford: To ask the Leader of the House pursuant to the answer of 3 July 2006, Official Report, column 729W, on the Deputy Prime Minister, if he will seek to include the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister in the remit of a Select Committee. [84870]

Mr. Straw: No.

Ministerial Responsibilities

Sir Paul Beresford: To ask the Leader of the House which members of the Cabinet do not have their ministerial responsibilities scrutinised by a Select Committee. [84924]

Mr. Straw: All members of the Cabinet are subject to scrutiny by Select Committees in respect of their ministerial responsibilities. Those whose main responsibilities do not relate to the Departments covered by Standing Order No 152 (Select Committees related to Government Departments) are the Prime Minister, the Deputy Prime Minister, the Leader of the House of Commons, the Minister for the Cabinet Office, the Leader of the House of Lords and President of the Council, the Minister without Portfolio, and the Chief Whip in the House of Commons.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

2012 Olympics

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 12 December 2005, Official Report, column 1687 to the then hon. Member for Blaenau Gwent, on the 2012 Olympics, whether he plans to locate a branch of the National Skills Academy working on skills development for the 2012 Olympics in (a) Wales and (b) Blaenau Gwent. [83707]

Phil Hope: Education and skills are devolved policy areas. The Government's commitment to establish a network of sector-based National Skills Academies (NSAs) is a skills initiative designed to operate in England. Sector Skills Councils, however, have the development lead for NSAs and also hold a UK-wide remit, regulated in Wales by protocol with Education and Learning Wales. Employers there and in Scotland and Northern Ireland may well wish to see NSAs reach across the UK and their engagement with their Sector Skills Councils will determine their wider establishment. Construction Skills, the Sector Skills Council leading the development of the Construction Skills Academy is planning a series of workshops to be held in Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland to explore the potential for introducing NSA arrangements there. The NSA for Construction is currently in the business planning stage with an announcement concerning its opening expected in the autumn.

Biometric Information (Children)

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what his Department's policy is with regard to (a) the (i) finger-printing and (ii) taking of (A) DNA and (B) other biometric information from children (1) under the age of 10 years, (2) between the ages of 10 and 16 years and (3) over 16 years but under 19 years without the consent of their parents or legal guardians and (b) the retention of that biometric information by Government organisations. [85046]

Jim Knight: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for Bognor Regis and Littlehampton (Mr. Gibb) on 27 February 2006, Official Report, column 504W.

Child Care, Cumbria

Mr. Martlew: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what resources are being deployed by the Commission for Social Care Inspection to assess whether Cumbria county council is complying with national standards in the delivery of services for the care of children. [80689]

Beverley Hughes: This is a matter for the Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI). David Behan, CSCI's Chief Inspector, has written to the hon. Member with the information requested and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from David Behan, dated 10 July 2006:

You recently asked a Parliamentary Question of the Secretary of State for Education and Skills. The question was:

"What resources are being deployed by the Commission for Social Care Inspection to assess whether Cumbria County Council is complying with national standards in the delivery of services for the care of children?"

That question has been referred to me for reply.

The Commission for Social Care Inspection has a team of local inspectors based at Penrith who are responsible for assessing residential and domiciliary care services for both adults and children in Cumbria. Inspectors assess services against the same standards regardless of whether those services are provided by the County Council or the private or voluntary sector.

In addition to this, there have been service inspections, which cover assessment and care management delivered by the social services authority (Cumbria CC) as well as direct care provision. Specific inspections for Children's Services were carried out most recently in 2003, with a follow up inspection carried out in 2004. A service inspection team is currently working with Ofsted on a Joint Area Review of all Children's Services in Cumbria. This will report in September.

Until last year Social Services in Cumbria were receiving monthly monitoring visits and additional support because of concerns over their performance. In the performance assessment published in December 2005 the council was awarded one star, up from zero stars the previous year. The 2005 judgements in relation to children's services were that Cumbria were serving some children well, with promising capacity to improve.

The budget available to the Penrith office in 2006/07 totals £937,000. Of this, staffing costs are £872,000. Cumbria County Council is the only council in the Penrith Office's jurisdiction. There is one Business Relationship Manager (BRM) and one Performance Information Manager (PIM) with responsibility for Cumbria County Council (as well as Blackburn with Darwen Borough Council). In addition to this, there are two Regional Managers and twelve dedicated Regulation Inspectors (two deal with children's resources and ten with adults) for Cumbria region.

A copy of this answer is being sent to DfES who will make arrangements with the Parliamentary authorities for the answer to be placed in the official record (Hansard).

Children's Centres

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many children's centres have been set up in each year since the 2003 pre-Budget report. [84796]

Beverley Hughes: The following table provides a breakdown of the number of designated Sure Start children's centres at the end of each financial year from 31 March 2004 to 31 March 2006:

Date (by 31 March each year)	New Sure Start children's centres
2004	66
2005	161
2006	609
Total	836

The children's centre programme has now entered its second phase with a target to create a total of 2,500 children's centres by March 2008.

City Academies

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether city academies are required to comply with the Freedom of Information Act 2000. [84228]

Jim Knight: Academies are not currently required to comply with the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA). My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs may, under section 5 of the FOIA, extend the Act through regulations to other bodies not currently covered. However, I understand that the DCA is currently looking at the lessons learnt from the current implementation of the Act before looking to extend it further.

Further Education Colleges

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many courses were offered at further education colleges in (a) tarot card reading, (b) stand-up comedy and (c) Australian cake decorating in the past three years. [81713]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 3 July 2006]: The nature of these courses means that many are not readily identifiable through the national qualifications framework or other formal qualification bodies. This means we are unable to accurately estimate the number of these courses. However, we are aware from providers' prospectuses of these type of courses being offered by some providers.

We would expect courses that are valued by learners to continue, but those who can, should contribute more to the cost of that learning. Public funding for courses for personal and community development has been 'protected'/ringfenced at £210 million per year for 2006/07 and 2007/08.

Foreign Language Courses

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many sixth form institutions in England offer two or more modern foreign language courses. [82754]

Jim Knight: Information is not collected on the subjects offered by sixth form institutions, however it is possible to provide figures on the number of institutions where at least one pupil has been entered for a particular subject.

2,329 sixth form institutions in England had entrants in two or more modern foreign language courses at GCE AS Level and GCE A Level in the academic year 2004/05.

This answer covers the following modern foreign languages: Danish, Dutch, French, German, Italian, Modern Greek, Portuguese, Spanish, Arabic, Bengali, Chinese, Gujarati, Hindi, Japanese, Modern Hebrew, Panjabi, Polish, Russian, Turkish, Urdu, and Persian.

Internet and Mobile Phones

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what discussions he has had with (a) Microsoft and (b) other IT companies on improving safe internet and mobile phone use in schools. [84644]

Phil Hope: The Department for Education and Skills supported the launch of the Microsoft led 'Getting To Know IT All' campaign. This focussed on internet and mobile safety and as part of the campaign produced an educational resource pack for secondary schools. The Department had no direct links with the campaign but discussions between officials and Microsoft would have taken place in the run up to its launch which included a ministerial presence.

Our agency (Becta) established an accreditation of Internet Services to Education as part of our wider strategy to address internet safety in education. This is open to commercial internet service providers (ISPs).

The Department and Becta, through membership on the Home Office Taskforce for Child Protection on the Internet, which includes representatives of the internet and mobile industry, meets regularly to discuss relevant and key issues related to internet and mobile safety and have together developed key codes of practice.

Learning and Skills Council

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps he is taking in conjunction with the Learning and Skills Council to retrain and develop its staff to fulfil the Agenda for Change. [79890]

Bill Rammell: The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) is undertaking a range of activity at national and local level to help staff prepare for their new roles both in and outside the LSC. Mark Haysom, the Chief Executive of the Learning and Skills Council, has written to the hon. Member explaining more detailed arrangements for staff development and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Mark Haysom, dated 13 July 2006:

I write in response to your recent Parliamentary Question regarding the steps the LSC are taking to retrain and develop its staff to fulfil the agenda for change.

Staff have access to an almost unlimited amount of Ashridge Management Institute on-line learning. Learning and Development advisers are working with redeployees to help them identify their development needs, Right Coutts provide training and support around CV preparation, job search, interview skills etc.

At each grade in the organisation we are appointing a number of people who did not demonstrate the minimum level to be confirmed in a new role post. These individuals are appointed to the post with the support of a development programme of between 6 months and 12 months, This will include one to one coaching and also appropriate formal training to bring them up to the minimum competence requirements of the role. Following Band 3 appointments we will have a total of approximately 130+ staff following such development plans.

From Autumn onwards we will be launching a range of development initiatives addressing leadership, management skills, effective partnership working etc to support the establishment of the new organisation and ways of working.

I trust this information is helpful.

Mandarin

Mr. Boris Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many students graduated with Mandarin as their first degree in each year between 1997 and 2005. [84531]

Bill Rammell: The available information shows the number of students who have graduated with a degree in Chinese, and is shown in the table. Separate figures for those who have obtained a qualification in Mandarin are not held centrally. The latest information from the Universities and Colleges Admissions Service (UCAS) shows that the number of students applying to study Chinese at undergraduate level in 2006/07 has increased by nearly 60 per cent. to 788.

Number of students qualifying with a degree in Chinese—UK higher education institutions

Academic year	Graduates
1996/97	65
1997/98	55
1998/99	85
1999/2000	70
2000/01	100
2001/02	100
2002/03	165
2003/04	190
2004/05	200

Notes:
1. In 2002/03 the methodology used to allocate students to subjects was changed, which means that the figures for 2002/03 and later years are not directly comparable with those for earlier years.
2. Numbers have been rounded to the nearest 5.

Modern Apprenticeships

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many young people aged between 16 and 22 years have participated in a modern apprenticeship in each year since 2002; and at what cost. [84797]

Phil Hope: The apprenticeship programme continues to go from strength to strength with record numbers of young people participating and completion rates continuing to improve. Numbers of young people (aged 16-24) who have taken up an apprenticeship in England since 2002/03 are as follows:

	Apprenticeship	Advanced apprenticeship	Total
2002-03	24,336	18,618	42,954
2003-04	43,110	9,174	52,284
2004-05	45,125	8,912	54,037
2005-06 (to period 10)	47,531	18,979	66,510

Note:
Figures cannot be broken down into specific age groups but are for the whole of the apprenticeship cohort, from age 16 to 24

Apprenticeships in England are funded through the 'work based learning for young people' budget of the Learning and Skills Council. This budget covers apprenticeships, advanced apprenticeships, NVQ Learning and Entry to Employment. The following table details figures for work based learning for each year since 2002. All amounts are rounded to the nearest £1 million.

£ million

	Work based learning (youth, 16-18)	Work based learning (adult, 19+)	Total
2002-03	478	191	669
2003-04	565	213	778
2004-05	615	243	858
2005-06	606	269	875

Music Qualifications

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many pupils took examinations in music technology at (a) GCSE and (b) A level in each of the last five years; [85068]

(2) how many (a) schools and (b) colleges teach music technology at (i) GCSE and (ii) A level; [85069]

(3) which examination boards set curricula and examinations in music technology. [85070]

Jim Knight: 65 further education colleges and 231 schools entered students in A Level music technology in the academic year 2004/05. Figures for the number of students entered for A Level music technology in each of the last five years are shown in the table as follows.

Pupils entered in A Level music technology

	Number
2000/01	1,033
2001/02	1,320
2002/03	1,754
2003/04	2,220
2004/05	2,367

There were no schools or further education colleges with entrants in GCSE music technology in any of the last five years.

The examination boards which offer music technology qualifications currently on the National Qualifications Framework are:

		Music technology qualifications
ABC	Level 3	Diploma in Sound Design and Music Technology
EDEXCEL	Advanced	GCE in Music Technology
EDEXCEL	Advanced subsidiary GCE in music technology
EDEXCEL	Level 3	BTEC National Award in Music Technology
EDEXCEL	Level 3	BTEC National Certificate in Music Technology
EDEXCEL	Level 3	BTEC National Diploma in Music Technology
EDEXCEL	Level 5	BTEC Professional Diploma in Creative Music Technology
NCFE	Level 2	Certificate in Music Technology
NCFE	Intermediate	Certificate in Music Technology (Mix DJ Skills)

Teachers

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many applicants there were on average for each (a) primary and (b) secondary school teacher vacancy in (i) London and (ii) England in each of the past five years. [85067]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Teenage Pregnancy

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the rate of teenage pregnancy was in (a) England and (b) the East Riding of Yorkshire in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [84657]

Beverley Hughes: The following table provides under-18 conception rate data for England and East Riding for each year since the teenage pregnancy strategy began. Between 1998 and 2004, the under-18 conception rate in England has fallen by 11.1 per cent. East Riding has experienced a fall of 9.1 per cent. over the same period.

	England under-18 conception rate	East Riding under-18 conception rate
1998	46.6	34.7
1999	44.8	30.0

	England under-18 conception rate	East Riding under-18 conception rate
2000	43.6	30.8
2001	42.5	29.9
2002	42.6	29.7
2003	42.1	29.1
2004	41.5	31.5

Transport Allowances

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the cost was to his Department of transport allowances in the last year for which figures are available. [81909]

Alan Johnson: Details of travel expenditure incurred by the Department over the last financial year are set out as follows:

2005/06: £6,197,029.01

The expenditure does not include costs for domestic and foreign travel that may be charged to a programme account, expenditure incurred as a result of commission on foreign exchange or some miscellaneous travel expenses incurred by individual travellers during the course of the visit. These cannot be easily extracted within disproportionate cost.

Since 1999 the Government have published, on an annual basis, the total costs of all ministerial overseas travel and a list of all visits by Cabinet Ministers costing in excess of £500. This information is available in the Library. Information for the financial year 2004-05 was published on 21 July 2005, Official Report, column 158WS. Information for the financial year 2005-06 is in the process of being collated and will be published shortly.

All travel under taken by DfES Ministers and civil servants is undertaken in accordance with the requirements of the "Ministerial Code" and the "Civil Service Management Code".

Working Together

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 15 May 2006, Official Report, column 797W, on Working Together, if he will list the respondents who (a) disagreed or strongly disagreed that the Government should attempt to set out a clearer policy for professionals including the health service and youth workers on when to share information with social services and the police to protect sexually active children from harm and abuse and (b) disagreed that there was a case for information always being shared in some circumstances; and if he will make a statement. [75633]

Beverley Hughes: Nine respondents disagreed or strongly disagreed (and 90 agreed or strongly agreed) that the Government should attempt to set out a clearer policy for professionals including the health service and youth workers on when to share information with social services and the police to protect sexually active children from harm and abuse. Seven of those responded on behalf of or identified themselves as part of organisations, and those organisations are set out as follows. Two of those who responded to this question did so as individuals and did not identify themselves as part of an organisation. Their details have not been included because of Data Protection Act considerations.

South Staffs Healthcare NHS Trust
Portsmouth City council
The British Medical Association
The National Youth Agency and Youth Access
Solihull Area Child Protection Committee
Wiltshire county council
Get Connected Helpline

23 respondents disagreed (and 191 agreed) that there was a case for information always being shared in some circumstances. Of these, 20 responded on behalf of or identified themselves as part of organisations, and those organisations are set out as follows; three individuals also responded to this question.

City and Hackney primary care trust
Professional Association of Teachers
Northamptonshire Area Child Protection Committee
NHS
Lincolnshire Tackling Teenage Pregnancy Partnership Board
Sheffield Area Child Protection Committee/Local Safeguarding Children Board/Children and Young People's Services
London Metropolitan Reproductive Health Matters
British Association for Sexual Health and HIV
(African Women's Welfare Association) The Lost African Child Project
Family Planning Association
Doncaster Local Safeguarding Board
Oxfordshire Mental Healthcare NHS Trust
Greenwich Social Services
Education Leeds
The Children's Society
Foster Care Associates
Get Connected Helpline
NHS Community Provider and Mental Health Trust
British Association of Social Workers

Effective information sharing is at the heart of good practice to safeguard children. The new "Working Together to Safeguard Children" provides the clear guidance on when and how to share information about underage sexual activity that Sir Michael Bichard's report recommended and which practitioners from all agencies have told us they want.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Election Ballot Papers

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what assessment she has made of the merits of requiring voters to sign for receipt of their ballot paper. [84537]

Bridget Prentice: Signing for the receipt of ballot papers at polling stations is an additional security measure that will help to prevent and detect incidences of electoral fraud. It will aid the police with any investigation they may have to undertake post election.

This measure was piloted at the May 4 2006 local elections, and the Electoral Commission are due to publish an evaluation report shortly.

Elections (Commonwealth Countries)

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs which Commonwealth countries allow all Commonwealth citizens to vote in their general elections. [83844]

Bridget Prentice: This information is not held centrally. In respect of the UK, the Representation of the People Act 1983 provides that all Commonwealth citizens who are lawfully resident here are entitled to vote in parliamentary and local elections. Decisions about the voting rights of Commonwealth, including British, citizens resident in other Commonwealth countries are for the individual countries concerned.

Electoral Register

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs (1) what steps she plans to take to maximise data-sharing in drawing up the electoral register; [84539]

(2) if she will place a duty on electoral registration officers to use all relevant available databases to compile the electoral register. [84540]

Bridget Prentice: The recent Electoral Administration Act 2006 requires electoral registration officers when drawing up the electoral register to make full use of their powers to use those records which they are permitted to access. They are currently able to inspect and take copies of any records kept by their own council, and to inspect and take copies of records kept by any registrar of births and deaths.

My Department is also currently exploring whether there are other records not covered by existing powers, to which it might be appropriate to allow an electoral registration officer access.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs (1) what estimate she has made of the number of eligible voters not included on the electoral register; [84541]

(2) what estimate she has made of the number of eligible voters who are not registered. [84550]

Bridget Prentice: I have not made an estimate. However, the Electoral Commission in its research report 'Understanding electoral registration' published in September 2005 found that in the region of 3.5 million people across England and Wales who were eligible to be registered were missing from the register in 2000.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what targets she plans to set for electoral registration officers to improve their electoral registers. [84549]

Bridget Prentice: I do not plan to set targets. However, we have made provision in the Electoral Administration Act for performance standards to be established. In future, the Electoral Commission will set standards for electoral administrators (including electoral registration officers) and require them to provide the Commission with returns and reports on their level of performance against the standards that have been set.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what estimate she has made of registration levels among black African voters. [84551]

Bridget Prentice: I have not made an estimate. However, the Electoral Commission in its research report "Understanding electoral registration" published in September 2005 found that 37 per cent. of black Africans who were otherwise eligible were not registered.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what research she has undertaken of voting registration in different types of housing tenure. [84553]

Bridget Prentice: I have not undertaken any such research. However, the Electoral Commission in its research report "Understanding electoral registration" published in September 2005 found that 3 per cent. of people who own their property outright are not registered, while 27 per cent. of people who rent from a private landlord or letting agency are not registered.

Environmental Standards

Chris Huhne: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs whether her Department (a) is committed to the achievement of environmental management to ISO 14001 standard and (b) has been externally certified as in compliance with that standard; and if she will make a statement. [81180]

Bridget Prentice: My Department is fully committed to the achievement of EMS's to ISO 14001 standard. My Department is currently piloting two EMS's at our largest HQ building and at our largest Court complex, both are due to be certified (externally) later this year.

FIFA World Cup

Mr. Hands: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs which matches (a) the Secretary of State and (b) other Ministers in her Department attended at the FIFA World Cup 2006 in Germany in their ministerial capacity; at what cost to public funds; and with what contribution from third party organisations. [83596]

Bridget Prentice: None.

Malignant Mesothelioma

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what steps she has taken to facilitate compensation claims for malignant mesothelioma. [84566]

Bridget Prentice: The Government intend to bring forward an amendment to the Compensation Bill to provide that in mesothelioma cases, negligent persons should be jointly and severally liable, so that the claimant can recover full compensation from any relevant person.

New Electors

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will ensure that new electors are sent information about exercising their right to vote. [84584]

Bridget Prentice: The Electoral Administration Act 2006 provides for pre-polling information to be sent to all electors, informing them about their right to vote at any upcoming elections.

The Act will also give electoral administrators a power to encourage participation in the electoral process. This could include, for example, campaigns to inform young electors about their right to vote.

Personal Injuries (Compensation)

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs when the maximum levels of compensation in personal injuries cases were last reviewed; and if she will make a statement. [84522]

Bridget Prentice: No maximum levels of compensation are prescribed for personal injury cases in general, and the amount of damages to be awarded in individual cases will depend upon the circumstances of that case. The level of general damages for pain and suffering was considered by the Court of Appeal in the case of Heil v. Rankin in 2000. The Judicial Studies Board publishes guidelines for the judiciary on the assessment of general damages based on decided cases following Heil v. Rankin. These do not cover any damages that may be awarded for other elements of the claim, such as loss of earnings.

Polling Stations (Guidance)

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will provide guidance in polling stations in languages other than English. [84535]

Bridget Prentice: The Electoral Administration Act 2006 will give Returning Officers a power to make prescribed election documents, including guidance in polling stations, available in languages other than English.

Postal Votes

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs when she will make it an offence to make a false application for a postal vote. [84536]

Bridget Prentice: The Electoral Administration Act 2006 introduces a new offence of falsely applying for a postal vote. A person found guilty of this offence could be sentenced to a maximum of two years in prison, or face a fine, or both.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs when she will introduce a marked register of postal votes received. [84538]

Bridget Prentice: The Electoral Administration Act 2006 provides for a marked register of returned postal votes for future local and national elections. Our intention is that the secondary legislation setting out the detailed arrangements will be implemented in time for elections in 2007.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Carbon Neutrality

Mr. Heald: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether his (a) official residence, (b) official car and (c) official trips to foreign countries are carbon neutral. [83229]

The Deputy Prime Minister: Since 1 April this year, all flights taken by central Government Ministers and civil servants on official business are being carbon off-set under a scheme being operated by the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs. For information relating to the environmental performance of my official car, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on Thursday 6 July 2006, Official Report, column 1299W. All travel is undertaken in accordance with the guidance 'Travel by Ministers' and the Government's sustainable transport policy.

Admiralty House forms an integral part of the Cabinet Office estate and is included in work currently being undertaken in partnership with the Carbon Trust to consider the improvement of energy management practices, identify likely areas for potential energy savings and provide the Cabinet Office with a systematic approach to managing the risks and opportunities associated with climate change.

Engagements

Mr. Amess: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister which countries he plans to visit (a) before the end of 2006 and (b) in the first half of 2007; and if he will make a statement. [82562]

The Deputy Prime Minister: Since January this year I have visited a number of countries including Finland, the United States, Canada and China. I shall continue to undertake a range of international visits on behalf of my right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister.

FIFA World Cup

Mr. Hands: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister which matches he attended at the FIFA World Cup 2006 in Germany in his ministerial capacity; at what cost to public funds; and with what contributions from third party organisations. [83623]

The Deputy Prime Minister: None.

Ministerial Visits

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister on what date he decided to stay with Philip Anschutz at his Colorado ranch during his trip to the US in July 2005. [84175]

The Deputy Prime Minister: During the time the arrangements for the trip were being made.

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what briefings were given to the civil servants in his party during his visit to the US in July 2005 relating to (a) Mr. Philip Anschutz and (b) his business. [84259]

The Deputy Prime Minister: None. Neither I nor the civil servants had any such briefings or private meetings during the trip.

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what (a) agendas and (b) minutes were produced relating to his meetings with Philip Anschutz at his Colorado ranch in July 2005. [84260]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I did not have any meetings with Philip Anschutz during that trip. Officials were present during all informal conversations during my stay there.

Principal Private Secretary

Mr. Heald: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister who the Principal Private Secretary is for his new office. [83224]

The Deputy Prime Minister: My Principal Private Secretary has not changed.

Special Advisers

Mr. Heald: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister who his special advisers are; what the salary grade of each is; and what the expertise is of each. [83223]

Angela Watkinson: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 3 July 2006, Official Report, columns 788-89W, on his ministerial office and staff, how many special advisers are employed in his private office, broken down by pay band; and what the expected annual cost of these advisers is for 2006-07. [85060]

The Deputy Prime Minister: Since 2003, the Government have published on an annual basis the names and overall costs of special advisers and the number in each pay band. Information for the current financial year will be published in the normal way.

PRIME MINISTER

Chequers (Entertainment)

Mr. Francois: To ask the Prime Minister which guests have been entertained officially at Chequers since 25 June 2005. [83504]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Lewes (Norman Baker) on 27 March 2006, Official Report, columns 652-53W.

Deputy Prime Minister

Mr. Amess: To ask the Prime Minister on which occasions the Deputy Prime Minister has been acting Prime Minister in each year since 1997; what the dates were between which he so acted on each occasion; and for what reason in each case. [83231]

The Prime Minister: The Deputy Prime Minister and First Secretary of State deputises for me as required across the range of my responsibilities at home and abroad.

Dorneywood

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Prime Minister who is occupying Dorneywood; and what plans he has to offer it to another Minister. [83233]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws) on 8 June 2006, Official Report, column 825W.

E-mail

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Prime Minister whether he personally uses an e-mail account in the course of his official duties. [83016]

The Prime Minister: Yes.

Engagements

Kate Hoey: To ask the Prime Minister when he next plans to visit Northern Ireland. [84173]

The Prime Minister: For security reasons, my future engagements are announced as and when appropriate.

FIFA World Cup

Mr. Hands: To ask the Prime Minister which matches he attended at the FIFA World Cup 2006 in Germany in his ministerial capacity; at what cost to public funds; and with what contributions from third party organisations. [83622]

The Prime Minister: None.

Honours Lists

Mr. Amess: To ask the Prime Minister what the procedures are for preparing honours lists; whom he consults prior to advising Her Majesty the Queen on the honours list; what guidance is published about nominating a person to receive an honour; if he will place in the Library a copy of such guidance; and if he will make a statement. [83232]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement I made on 23 March 2006, Official Report, column 34WS.

The procedures leading to the birthday and new year lists, and guidance for nominating potential recipients of honours, are set out on the Cabinet Office website (www.honours.gov.uk). The guidance and nomination forms are available in the Library of the House.

Ministerial Visits

Anne Main: To ask the Prime Minister on what date he last visited St. Albans on official business. [82811]

The Prime Minister: I last visited St. Albans on official business on 15 November 2000.

Prime Minister's Question Time

Anne Main: To ask the Prime Minister whether (a) he and (b) his officials contact Labour Members who have been successful in the shuffle for Prime Minister's Question Time to ascertain the nature of their intended supplementary questions. [82889]

The Prime Minister: No.

Special Advisers

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Prime Minister which special advisers appointed since 1997 who have since left are (a) employed elsewhere within Government, (b) employed on contract to the Government and (c) employed within organisations which lobby the Government; and what mechanisms exist for monitoring their compliance with regulations pertaining to a cooling-off period with respect to working on relevant portfolios in the private sector. [84257]

The Prime Minister: "The Code of Conduct for Special Advisers" makes clear that the Business Appointment Rules, as set out in the "Civil Service Management Code", apply to special advisers for the first two years after leaving office. Applications which are referred to the Advisory Committee on Business Appointments will be accounted for in the Committee's annual report. Information for 2005-06 will be provided shortly. The detailed information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

US-UK Extradition Treaty

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Prime Minister on what occasions and in what manner he has raised with the President of the United States the fact that the United States has not ratified the US-UK extradition treaty. [84998]

The Prime Minister: It is not the practice of the Government to make public details of all discussions with foreign Governments.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs who is responsible for overseeing the implementation of the Afghanistan Compact. [84197]

Dr. Howells: The Afghanistan Compact, agreed at the London Conference on Afghanistan in January, established the Joint Co-ordination and Monitoring Board as the mechanism to oversee progress in its implementation. The Board consists of 28 members and is co-chaired by the UN and the Islamic Government of Afghanistan.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the findings were of the International Ministerial Conference on Drug Trafficking Routes from Afghanistan which took place between 26 and 28 June; and if he will make a statement. [84199]

Dr. Howells: The International Ministerial Conference on Drug Trafficking Routes from Afghanistan reconfirmed the importance of the Paris Pact process in further strengthening border control and law enforcement co-operation between countries affected by the Afghan drugs trade. The conclusions highlighted the need for greater international support for counter narcotics work in Afghanistan; firm action to control the diversion of precursor chemicals; increased efforts to tackle drugs related money laundering and the importance of tackling demand. Conference participants also recognised the importance of increasing the exchange of intelligence between regional partners, including through the deployment of law enforcement experts to the new Central Asia Regional Information and Co-ordination Centre, due to be established in Kazakhstan.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made with the National Drug Strategy for Afghanistan agreed at the London conference; and if she will make a statement. [83244]

Dr. Howells: I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement I made today on Afghanistan: Counter Narcotics. This includes detail on progress made to date as well as the allocation of UK funding in support of the National Drug Control Strategy.

Arms Controls

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress is being made on increasing the transparency and effectiveness of the UK's arms controls. [84491]

Dr. Howells: The Government remain committed to ensuring that the United Kingdom's export control system is as rigorous and effective as any in the world. This commitment is clearly reflected in the Export Control Act (2002), which was the first major legislative development in this area since 1939. We are continuing to take up the challenge of implementing these comprehensive new controls, some in areas which bring in activities not previously subject to control. On greater transparency, we have introduced quarterly reports (which are available on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office website at: http://www.fco.gov.uk/servlet/Front?pagename=OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c=Page&cid=1089131553823, and provide detailed information on our export licensing decisions. The 2005 annual report on the UK's Strategic Export Controls will also be published in a new format later this month. These initiatives illustrate our commitment to maintain, and expand, the high standard of transparency and accountability in the area of export controls that we established with the launch of our first annual report in 1997.

Arms Trade Treaty

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress is being made on establishing a new international treaty on the arms trade. [84492]

Dr. Howells: The Government are fully committed to securing an international treaty on the trade in all conventional arms. Both my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister and my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary have recently reiterated the UK's commitment to securing agreement to a UN based process at the United Nations General Assembly later this year. With a range of partners we intend to bring forward a resolution at the UN First Committee to this end. In advance of this we are continuing to build further support for the initiative.

British Satellite News

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) terms of reference, (b) codes of practice and (c) editorial guidance govern the relationship between British Satellite News and her Department. [85062]

Mr. Hoon: The contract to supply British Satellite News (BSN) was awarded following an open tender. A number of respected news organisations submitted bids for the contract. Contract requirements specifically called for the service to be "credible, accurate, newsworthy and made to the highest standards of professional journalism". BSN has editorial independence. The decision on what to broadcast rests with its Chief Editor. Full details of the service to be provided are specified in the attached "Statement of Service Requirements". This document will be placed in the Library of the House and I will arrange for a copy of the document to be sent to the hon. Member.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what her estimate is of the cost of British Satellite News in each of the past six years. [85063]

Mr. Hoon: The British Satellite News (BSN) service is awarded after a public tender. The current contract started in 2005 and amounts to £1.5 million per year. Payments to BSN amounted to:

£2.2 million per year from financial years (FY) 2000-01 to 2002-03

£1.2 million in FY 2003-04 and 2004-05

£1.5 million in FY 2005-06.

Child Labour

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate she has made of the use of child labour in (a) China, (b) Bangladesh, (c) India, (d) Pakistan and (e) Zambia. [84569]

Mr. McCartney: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not hold its own data on levels of child labour around the world. We draw on the expertise of the International Labour Organisation (ILO) and other relevant bodies for such information. On 4 May 2006, the ILO published a global report on child labour "The End of Child Labour: Within Reach" available on the ILO website at: www.ilo.org/dyn/declaris/DECLARATIONWEB.INDEXPAGE.

ILO information for child labour levels in the countries specified includes the following figures:

China: there is little hard statistical information on child labour trends, but the ILO's report assesses that child labour levels there are declining.

Bangladesh: 4.7 million children working in 2002-03—13.4 per cent. of all children aged five-14.

India: the latest estimate we have of the level of child labour is 12.6 million. This figure is not from the ILO but taken from the last census carried out by the Registrar General of India in 2001.

Pakistan: 3.3 million children were economically active in 1996—8.3 per cent. of all children ages 5-14.

Zambia: 595,000 child workers, of whom 58 per cent. were 14 or younger (no date given).

China

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment her Department has made of the merits of establishing representative missions in the People's Republic of China. [84702]

Mr. McCartney: The United Kingdom currently has diplomatic representation in five Chinese cities to ensure the effective conduct of UK-China relations: in Beijing, Shanghai, Guangzhou, Chongqing and the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region. The Government keep the UK's diplomatic representation, including in China, under regular review.

Departmental Resource Accounts

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 27 February 2006, Official Report, column 298W, on departmental resource accounts, what the cost was of writing off the stockpile of out-of-date visa vignettes; and from which budget line the funds were found. [82054]

Dr. Howells: The cost associated with writing off the stockpile of out-of-date visa vignettes in 2004-05 was £1.325 million. After UKvisas accepted £424,000 in compensation from the manufacturers for a proportion of the vignettes which were faulty, the net write-off was £901,000. This write-off was borne by UKvisas' stationery budget which is funded by visa application fees.

Departmental Staff

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the criteria are by which non-civil servants can be appointed to diplomatic postings; and if she will make a statement. [84243]

Mr. Hoon: Non-civil servants are eligible for appointment to Diplomatic Service or Foreign and Commonwealth Office posts when these are publicly advertised; and at the discretion of the Secretary of State under the Diplomatic Service Order in Council.

Ethical Foreign Policy

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on progress the Government are making in following an ethical foreign policy. [84489]

Mr. McCartney: The promotion of human rights, good governance and democracy is one of the foundations of British foreign policy, forming part of the Strategic International Priorities, published as a Command Paper (Cm 6762) in March this year. Respect for these rights and values underpins the global security, stability and prosperity on which the UK's own well-being relies.

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office produces an annual report on human rights. This report provides an overview of the main challenges to human rights around the world and explains the Government's activities, policies and progress made to address those challenges. The last such report was published on 21 July 2005 as a Command Paper (Cm 6606) and laid before Parliament. A copy has also been placed in the Library of the House. We aim to publish the next report in October 2006.

European Communities (Fraud)

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many (a) UK and (b) foreign nationals have been convicted of fraud involving European Communities funds since May 1997. [84256]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not hold a record of UK and foreign nationals convicted of fraud involving European Communities funds since May 1997.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many officials of the European Commission have been (a) investigated for and (b) convicted of fraud involving European Communities funds since May 1997. [84278]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not hold a record of European Commission officials investigated for and convicted of fraud involving European Communities funds since May 1997.

Former Yugoslavia

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what operations are taking place to bring the former Bosnian Serb leaders Ratko Mladic and Radovan Karadzic to justice. [84242]

Mr. Hoon: The Government strongly supports the work of the International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia (ICTY) and full co-operation with the ICTY is a condition of progress towards membership of the EU for Serbia, Bosnia and Herzegovina and Montenegro. The EU and NATO military missions in Bosnia and Herzegovina are also mandated to support ICTY's work. It would not be sensible to comment on operational matters.

Human Rights

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to her answer of 27 June 2006, Official Report, columns 352-53W, to the right hon. Member for Richmond, Yorks (Mr. Hague), on human rights, what the Government's position is on the establishing of a commission of inquiry to investigate possible human rights violations that transcend national borders. [84142]

Dr. Howells: As we have found no evidence of detainees being rendered through UK territory or airspace where there were substantial grounds to believe there was a real risk of torture, we do not see the case for such an inquiry. My right hon. Friend the then Foreign Secretary (Mr. Jack Straw) set out in his Written Ministerial Statement of 20 January 2006, Official Report, columns 37-38WS, the results of the extensive review of official records back to May 1997. We have also fully co-operated with international inquiries on this matter; the Government's replies to the Council of Europe Secretary General's requests for information are available in the Library of the House.

Israel/Palestine

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the likelihood of extended Israeli military action in the West Bank following the military incursions into Gaza which commenced on 27 June 2006; and what representations she is making on the issue. [82163]

Dr. Howells: We are not aware of any plans for extended military action in the West Bank by Israel. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary spoke to Israeli Foreign Minister Livni on 6 July and made clear her concern that military action was not extended into the West Bank. Our embassy in Tel Aviv and officials in London continue to engage with Israel on the issue.

We continue to urge both parties to act with restraint and end the current violence, which only makes the prospect of a negotiated, peaceful resolution more distant.

We call for the immediate and unconditional release of Corporal Shalit, and for the Palestinian Authority to prevent all acts of terrorism against Israel. We urge the Israeli military to do everything in its power to avoid civilian casualties, and abide by international law. All military action should abide by the principle of proportionality.

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information she has received regarding the possible use by Israel of military aircraft containing head-up display units made in the UK during airstrikes into Gaza since the start of May. [84845]

Dr. Howells: We have no reports that UK supplied equipment has been deployed during the recent air strikes in Gaza. We continue to monitor developments in the region closely.

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 5 July 2006, Official Report, columns 1158-9W, on Israel, whether any information has come to light that military equipment or components supplied by the UK have been used in a manner inconsistent with the consolidated criteria during the military incursions by Israel into Gaza; what methods are used for such monitoring; what proactive steps the British Embassy in Tel Aviv has taken in relation to monitoring since 27 June; and if she will make a statement. [84846]

Dr. Howells: We have no reports that UK supplied equipment is being deployed by Israel in Gaza in a manner which is inconsistent with the consolidated criteria.

Relevant information from the media, civil society, our diplomatic missions and other relevant sources all form part of our monitoring of the situation in the region. Any information that UK-supplied military equipment may have been used in a manner inconsistent with our consolidated criteria is always taken fully into account when assessing any future export licence applications.

Middle East

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with which countries in the (a) Middle East and (b) Gulf region the UK engages in annual bilateral dialogue on security issues; and if she will make a statement. [84202]

Dr. Howells: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not yet engage in annual bilateral dialogues on security issues with Gulf or Middle East countries. We participate in multilateral meetings including the International Institute of Strategic Studies Gulf Dialogue, attended by Cabinet level delegations in 2004 and 2005.

The Ministry of Defence engages in regular defence staff talks with the United Arab Emirates, Oman, Bahrain, Qatar, Kuwait, Jordan, Egypt and Israel. The talks cover a number of issues including regional security.

Nepal

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the reports by the (a) United States ambassador to Nepal and (b) United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights that the Maoist rebels are breaking the ceasefire with the Government. [82658]

Dr. Howells: During the current ceasefire the Maoists have continued to carry out acts of extortion, abductions and killings as reported by the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights.

These acts of violence are a clear breach of the Code of Conduct to which the governing Seven Party Alliance and Maoists agreed to govern the ceasefire, and prepare the way for free and fair elections to a Constituent Assembly.

We believe that a third party, such as the United Nations, is needed to monitor the implementation of the Code of Conduct and to support the work of the Nepalese ceasefire monitoring committee—whose terms of reference have been agreed by both the Maoists and the Government.

Non-EU Foreign Students

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what her estimate is of the number of applications from non-EU foreign students for entry to the United Kingdom to study on a non-degree course in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008. [83736]

Dr. Howells: UKvisas made assessments in March 2006 of the lowest likely demand, the highest likely demand and a best estimate of the level of demand in 2006-07, based on the provisional data for the previous financial year. We do not make separate forecasts for degree and non-degree students or for EU and non-EU students.

Using a provisional figure of 281,494 student applications in 2005-06, our low forecast estimates no growth in demand and our assessment of the highest likely demand would be an increase of 10 per cent. resulting in a total of 309,643 student visa applications this financial year. Our best prediction would be a 5 per cent. increase or 295,569 applications for student visas. We currently do not have a forecast for student demand for 2007-08.

We remain committed to supporting my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister's Initiative on International Students to encourage increasing numbers of students from other countries to study in the United Kingdom and will be using marketing to encourage genuine students to apply for visas.

Overseas Territories

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what contribution is being made by each governor to talks on the constitutional development of the UK's overseas territories. [84149]

Mr. Hoon: The governor of each overseas territory, as Her Majesty the Queen's representative in the territory, has been providing advice in those territories where constitutional reviews are or have been taking place with a view to promoting the successful conclusion of these talks.

Somalia

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions the UK has had with the new Islamist leaders of Somalia; and whether there are plans to send UN peacekeepers to the region. [84238]

Mr. McCartney: We have received copies of letters sent by the Islamic Courts Union to the international community and officials have met representatives of the Islamic Courts Union informally. There are no plans to send UN peacekeepers to the region, but the African Union and Intergovernmental Authority on Development have drawn up plans for a Peace Support Operation in Somalia.

Sudan

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with the National Redemption Front in Darfur. [84155]

Mr. McCartney: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has had no discussions with the National Redemption Front (NRF) since it was formed in Asmara on 30 June 2006. However, Ministers and officials have met leaders of the NRF on various occasions in the past, including at the Darfur peace talks in Abuja.

I am disappointed by the NRF's rejection of the Darfur Peace Agreement (DPA). The Government believe the DPA is a good deal for the people of Darfur and we fully support it. I call on all sides to abide by the agreement and to implement it urgently.

Trade Sanctions

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs to which countries the Government have applied trade sanctions since May 1997. [84221]

Dr. Howells: Since May 1997, sanctions with an element of restriction on trade, including the trade in arms, have been applied by the Government in relation to Afghanistan, Angola (National Union for the Total Independence of Angola), Armenia, Azerbaijan, Belarus, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Burma, China, Cote d'Ivoire, the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC), the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia/Serbia, Iran, Iraq, Liberia, Libya, Rwanda (including Burundi, the DRC, Tanzania and Uganda in certain circumstances where arms are destined for Rwanda), Sierra Leone, Somalia, Sudan, Uzbekistan and Zimbabwe.

The UK also operates a number of destination specific control regimes which apply to certain exports of defence equipment and/or certain dual-use goods. The full list of current sanctions regimes and countries subject to destination specific control regimes can be found on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office website at: www.fco.gov.uk/sanctions.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which countries have been discussed as candidates for trade sanctions in international fora since May 1997; and what the Government's position was in each case. [84274]

Dr. Howells: Details of all the countries which have been discussed as candidates for trade sanctions in international fora since May 1997 and the Government's position in each case could not be provided without incurring disproportionate cost.

UK Agencies

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 2 February 2006, Official Report, column 672W, on UK agencies, to which (a) European Community and (b) UK agencies she refers; and what the mission statements are of the former. [84206]

Mr. Hoon: As the information requested is lengthy, I will arrange for it to be placed in the Library of the House and will also arrange for a copy to be sent directly to the hon. Member.

UN Convention on the Rights of the Child

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment has she made of the impact of the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child. [84471]

Mr. McCartney: Whilst the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC) is the most widely ratified of all the core human rights conventions, implementation remains varied. It is essential that states parties have the necessary legal framework in place to be able to implement the convention effectively.

The UK continues to promote further signature, ratification and implementation of the CRC and its optional protocols, both through bilateral contacts and through multilateral channels such as the EU's dialogues with other countries. We also continue to support the work of the UN Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) in this regard. This includes OHCHR's work to support and make as effective as possible the treaty monitoring body that examines states' compliance with the CRC.

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations her Department has made to the United Nations on encouraging more developing countries to sign up to the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child. [84472]

Mr. McCartney: The UK continues to promote further signature and ratification of the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC) and its optional protocols. We fully support the efforts of the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights, and of her Office, to encourage states to sign, ratify and implement the UNCRC and its optional protocols. The UNCRC is the most widely ratified of all the core human rights conventions. Somalia is the only developing state that has not yet ratified the convention itself.

US-UK Diplomatic Relations

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on which occasions HM Ambassador to the USA has written to members of the Senate making representations that the Senate ratify the US-UK extradition treaty. [84996]

Mr. McCartney: Our Ambassador in Washington has raised the Extradition Treaty with members of the Senate on several occasions, including in writing.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which UK diplomats based in Washington DC have specific responsibility for relations with Congress; and if she will make a statement. [84997]

Mr. McCartney: Several officials in our Embassy in Washington deal with Congress on a regular basis.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on which occasions her Department has raised with the US ambassador in London (a) in writing and (b) at a formal meeting the fact that the US Senate has not ratified the US-UK extradition treaty; and if she will make a statement. [84999]

Mr. McCartney: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary raised the Extradition Treaty with the US ambassador last month, and raised the issue during her visit to the US this month, including with Senator Lugar, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on which occasions members of the UK Mission to the USA have formally raised with members of the US Senate the fact that the Senate has not ratified the US-UK extradition treaty with whom; and if she will make a statement. [85000]

Mr. McCartney: Staff from our embassy in Washington have raised the matter with members of the Senate and Administration on numerous occasions.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Access to Work Scheme

Roger Berry: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many disabled staff in his Department received support through the Access to Work scheme (a) in each of the last five years and (b) in 2006-07. [82235]

Mrs. McGuire: Up to March 2003, any DWP employee requiring equipment and adaptation support would have received the necessary support, and costs would have been attributed to the national Access to Work budget. Jobcentre Plus Access to Work did not collect the numbers of departmental disabled staff accessing adaptations and equipment support.

Currently any DWP employee requiring equipment and adaptation support receives the necessary support but costs are now attributed to individual local budgets. Prior to the introduction of our new Resource Management System we are collecting clerical statistical data on numbers of reasonable adjustments undertaken each quarter. The available information is shown in the following table.

Reasonable adjustments undertaken

Quarter ending	Number
August 2005	492
December 2005	545
March 2006	321

Carpets International Pension Scheme

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether members of the Carpets International pension scheme are eligible for assistance through the financial assistance scheme. [83667]

James Purnell: The Carpets International pension scheme is a successfully qualified pension scheme for the financial assistance scheme. All members of this scheme, who were within 15 years of their scheme's normal retirement age, or above, on 14 May 2004, will be considered for eligibility for assistance through the financial assistance scheme.

The trustees have applied for initial payments and we are currently awaiting member data to enable us to start paying eligible members.

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will take steps to ensure that members of the Carpets International pension scheme receive their full pension entitlements. [84397]

James Purnell: The Carpets International pension scheme has successfully qualified for the Financial Assistance Scheme. The trustees have applied for initial payments and we are currently awaiting member data to enable us to start paying eligible members.

While the Financial Assistance Scheme does not provide eligible members with their full pension entitlement, it can provide significant assistance to members of qualifying pension schemes. On 25 May 2006, as part of the white paper, "Security in Retirement: towards a new pension system", the Government announced that they will extend eligibility for the Financial Assistance Scheme to members of qualifying pension schemes who were within 15 years of their scheme's normal retirement age on 14 May 2004.

Those within seven years of their scheme's normal retirement age on 14 May 2004 will benefit from the Financial Assistance Scheme topping up their pensions to around 80 per cent. of their expected core pension. Those between seven and 15 years from their scheme's normal retirement age who can more reasonably be expected to supplement their retirement income will be considered for a top-up to around 65 per cent. of their expected pension if they are between seven and 11 years from scheme pension age, and 50 per cent. between 12 and 15 years.

Child Support Agency

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many days training were provided to staff at the Child Support Agency in each year for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [77968]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the right hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Hilary Reynolds:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As he is out of the country, I am replying on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many days training were provided to staff at the Child Support Agency in each year for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement.

The Child Support Agency has provided a range of training during the last five years for which figures are available covering technical, management, generic skills and information technology. The specific details are broken down as follows:

Financial year	Training days	Number of people trained
2001-02	108,515	n/a
2002-03	133,199	13,143
2003-04	78,629	11,366
2004-05	67,687	11,376
2005-06	59,103	4,995

The decrease in training provided in 2005-06 was caused by a number of factors including awaiting the agreement of the Operational Implementation Plan, which has led to a new training programme for managers and other employees of the Child Support Agency. We have also seen a move towards blended learning and the use of e-learning with less emphasis on classroom training.

Following the announcement of the Operational Improvement Plan a full and comprehensive training programme has been developed. This includes a full training programme for Team Leaders, focusing on technical training, management skills and client outcomes. This will enable team leaders to effectively coach and mentor people leading to increased productivity and better client outcomes. In addition, we are currently developing training to support the movement of people to compliance work, as specified in the Operational Improvement Plan, so enabling the Agency to deliver the associate business benefits.

More detailed plans are still being finalised but the training will be for both new entrants and to support existing employees who may take on a different role on implementation of the new organisational design.

Helen Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what deadline was imposed for meetings between officials on the Child Support Agency redesign team and individuals or organisations from outside his Department. [84350]

Mr. Plaskitt: The consultation period for Sir David Henshaw's redesign ended on 19 May 2006.

Following this deadline, Sir David and his team have tried to meet with individuals and organisations wherever possible.

Departmental Papers

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will list in date order the (a) Green and (b) White papers produced by his Department since October 2005. [81655]

Mrs. [illegible]: 'Green' and 'White' papers are not defined [illegible] 12 papers were published by the Department [illegible] Work and Pensions within the Command Papers series since October 2005. These are detailed in the following table:

Command number	Title	Publication date
6669	The Social Security (Work Focused Interviews) Amendment Regulations 2005 (SI 2005/2727)	10 October 2005
6666	International Labour Conference	12 October 2005

Command number	Title	Publication date
6673	Opportunity For All-7th Annual Report	17 October 2005
6645	Vinyl Chloride Monomer-Related Diseases	17 November 2005
6715	Autumn Performance Report	15 December 2005
6730	A New Deal For Welfare: Empowering People To Work	24 January 2006
6732	Report By Government Actuary On Drafts Of The Social Security Benefits Uprating Order 2006 And The Social Security (Contributions) (Re-Rating And National Insurance Funds Payments) Order 2006	26 January 2006
6758	Occupational And Personal Pension Schemes: Review Of Certain Contracting-Out Terms	15 March 2006
6829	Departmental Report	11 May 2006
6841	Security In Retirement Towards A New Pension System	25 May 2006
6859	A New Deal For Welfare: Empowering People To Work. Consultation Report	19 June 2006
6861	Third Report Of The Work And Pensions Select Committee Session 2005-06 On Incapacity Benefits And Pathways To Work	19 June 2006

FIFA World Cup

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which matches (a) he and (b) other Ministers in his Department attended at the FIFA World Cup 2006 in Germany in their ministerial capacity; at what cost to public funds; and with what contributions from third party organisations. [83615]

Mrs. McGuire: Neither the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions nor any of his Ministers attended any matches at the FIFA World Cup 2006 in Germany in their ministerial capacity.

Financial Assistance Scheme

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether a pension scheme needs to be closed before payments can be made under the financial assistance scheme. [83250]

James Purnell: No, we can make discretionary initial financial assistance scheme payments before a qualifying pension scheme's wind up is completed. The pension scheme's trustees need to apply for initial payments in writing. In most cases information on the full scale of an individual's loss is not available until a scheme is close to completing wind up. Until such information is available we are unable to assess a qualifying member's exact level of assistance—their 'annual' payment.

However, and particularly as completing wind up can take a number of years, initial payments enable us to start paying some money at a lower rate, to qualifying members or their survivors who become entitled to assistance before their scheme has completed winding up.

Incapacity Benefit

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many young people claimed incapacity benefit in West Lancashire in each year since 1997. [83544]

Mrs. McGuire: The information is in the following table:

Incapacity benefit and severe disablement allowance claimants, in the Lancashire West parliamentary constituency, by age: each November 1997 to 2005

	Under 20 years of age	20-24 years of age
1997	100	270
1998	100	170
1999	100	200
2000	80	200
2001	80	190
2002	70	190
2003	80	170
2004	80	180
2005	70	180

Notes:
1. The figures for 1997 and 1998 have been produced using the five per cent. data and have been rated up proportionally using the Great Britain WPLS 100 per cent. totals.
2. Figures are rounded to the nearest 10.
3. "Claimant" figures include all incapacity benefit (IB) and severe disablement allowance, including IB credits only cases.

Source:
DWP Information Directorate, five per cent. samples from 1997 to 1998 and Work and Pensions Longitudinal Study 100 per cent. data thereafter.

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent representations he has received on his target to reduce the number of people on incapacity benefit by one million by 2016. [84933]

Mrs. McGuire: We have received a number of representations on this subject, including parliamentary questions from hon. Members and responses received during the Green Paper consultation period. The Green Paper sets out our aspiration to see one million fewer people on incapacity benefits, over the course of a decade, through the combined efforts of the Government, employers, local authorities and health professionals.

We have said that we will set out, by the end of the year, the basis by which the aspiration of one million fewer people on incapacity benefits will be measured and the progress we will need to make over the next Spending Review period.

Mesothelioma

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people have died from mesothelioma in each health authority in England in each year since 1997. [82654]

Mrs. McGuire: Data on mesothelioma deaths are not readily available by health authority. I have placed in the Library a table with data that represent mesothelioma deaths for local and unitary authorities in England for the years 1997 to 2003, the latest year for which data are currently available.

Mr. Bill McGraf

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether Mr. Bill McGraf, now deceased, a constituent of the right hon. Member for Birkenhead who lived in Well Lane Flats, Birkenhead, was in receipt of carer's allowance. [84752]

Mrs. McGuire: The administration of carer's allowance is a matter for the Chief Executive of the Disability and Carers Service, Mr. Terry Moran. As details about individual cases are confidential, he will contact you privately about the matter.

Letter from Vivien Hopkins, dated 13 July 2006:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the late Mr McGrath, the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As he is currently unavailable, I am responding on his behalf.

As details about individual cases are confidential I have written to you separately about this case.

Official Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 4 July 2006, Official Report, column 964W, on ministerial visits (overnight stays), how he ensures the (a) cost effectiveness and (b) appropriateness of overnight stays by (i) Ministers, (ii) civil servants and (iii) special advisers. [84454]

Mrs. McGuire: Under the terms of the Ministerial Code and Travel by Ministers, when travelling on official business Ministers are expected to make efficient and cost-effective travel arrangements.

The same principles apply to civil servants and special advisers. Civil servants will adhere to the civil service code, and other departmental guides, ensuring value for money.

Parliamentary Ombudsman

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will list those occasions when the recommendations of a report from the parliamentary ombudsman were (a) rejected and (b) partly rejected by his Department since 1997. [76266]

James Purnell: On only one occasion since 1997 has the Department, its Executive agencies or non-departmental public bodies rejected the recommendations of a report from the parliamentary ombudsman. This occurred in the case of her report "Trusting in the pensions promise" published in March this year.

Pathways Areas (Blind/Partially Sighted People)

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many blind and partially sighted people have been assisted into work in Pathways areas in each year since their introduction. [68313]

Mrs. McGuire: Many customers categorised as 'blind or having low vision' would not be expected to participate in the mandatory Pathways process under current exemption rules. However, 11 customers categorised as being 'blind or having low vision' have been helped into work by Pathways to Work.

The data on medical condition for Pathways to Work participants is incomplete. The reason for this is that it is drawn from incapacity benefit data that appears in the National Benefits Database. This impacts on the completeness of Pathways medical condition data in two ways;

1. the National Benefits Database lags behind other Pathways Evaluation Database sources by some three to four months, and;

2. the incapacity Benefit data is based on a six-weekly snapshot, which means that some short-term claims of less than six weeks never appear. For this reason it is important that these figures should only be taken as an indication of Pathways activity for people who are blind or have low vision.

Notes:

1. Figures cannot be broken down annually as totals would be less than 10 leading to a potential breach of data protection guidelines.

2. Data is to October 2005.

Pension Credit

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many residents in each electoral ward in Yeovil constituency receive pension credit. [83387]

James Purnell: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 10 July 2006, Official Report, column 1600W.

Pension Forecasts

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the annual cost of issuing pension forecasts. [80401]

James Purnell: The cost of administering and issuing pension forecasts during the year to March 2005 has been estimated at £15.3 million. This figure is an approximate assessment only.

The Department is currently refining its unit cost information in order to provide more robust and detailed financial analysis of the processing activities for which it is responsible. We are introducing a new resource management system this year and it will deliver more robust estimates in the future.

Pensioners (Carers Allowance)

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will grant pensioners who act as carers at home an allowance in addition to the state pension; and if he will make a statement. [84434]

James Purnell: Depending on their circumstances, all pensioners may be entitled to extra help from social security benefits on top of their state pension.

We have already changed the rules so that carers aged 65 or over can claim carer's allowance. State pension and carer's allowance are both income maintenance benefits. They are not payable at the same time because this would involve duplicate provision from public funds. However, where state pension is payable at less than the rate of carer's allowance, an amount of carer's allowance can be paid to make up the difference.

Lower income pensioners may receive pension credit, housing benefit and council tax benefit in addition to their state pension. As long as someone has an underlying entitlement to carer's allowance, whether it is overlapped by state pension in full or in part, they may receive up to £26.35 a week extra from these benefits. More than 181,000 carers who receive pension credit are gaining from this provision.

There are no current plans to introduce any additional allowance in respect of pensioners who are also carers, or to change the policy on overlapping benefits in respect of carer's allowance and state pension.

Roxby Pension Scheme

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department is taking to ensure that members of the Roxby pension scheme receive their full pension entitlement. [72612]

James Purnell: The Roxby pension scheme has been determined as a qualifying scheme for the financial assistance scheme. The trustees have applied for initial payments and we are currently awaiting member data to enable us to start making initial payments to eligible members.

While the financial assistance scheme does not provide eligible members with their full pension entitlement, it can provide significant assistance to members of qualifying pension schemes. On 25 May 2006 as part of the White Paper, "Security in Retirement: towards a new pension system", the Government announced that it will extend eligibility for the financial assistance scheme to members of qualifying pension schemes who were within 15 years of their scheme's normal retirement age on 14 May 2004.

Those within seven years of their scheme's normal retirement age on 14 May 2004 will benefit from the financial assistance scheme topping up their pensions to around 80 per cent. of their expected core pension. Those between seven and 15 years from their scheme's normal retirement age, who can more reasonably be expected to supplement their retirement income, will be considered for a top-up to around 65 per cent. of their expected pension if they are between seven and 11 years from scheme pension age, and 50 per cent. between 12 and 15 years.

State Pension

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the annual cost to 2012 of restoring the earnings link for the basic state pension. [83072]

James Purnell: Our objective is to re-link the uprating of the basic state pension to earnings from 2012 or by the end of the next Parliament at the latest. A statement on the precise date will be made at the beginning of the next Parliament. The information requested is in the following table.

	Gross cost	Net cost
2007-08	1.0	0.6
2008-09	1.9	1.2
2009-10	2.9	1.8
2010-11	4.0	2.4
2011-12	5.1	3.1
2012-13	6.2	3.8

Notes:

1. All figures are: based on earnings uprating from April 2007; in 2006-07 prices; in £ billion; rounded to the nearest £100 million; and for all UK and overseas pensioners; this is consistent with the presentation in the White Paper.
2. The net figures include the savings made from reduced income-related benefit expenditure and assume the guarantee element of pension credit is uprated in line with earnings; it does not include any increase in income tax revenues. The income-related benefit offsets are consistent with those in the White Paper.
3. These figures do not include any of the other policy changes included in the White Paper such as improved coverage of the basic state pension.

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his estimate is of the cost of raising to a full pension the pension entitlement of all women with over 30 years' but fewer than 39 years' contributions. [85243]

James Purnell: The information requested can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Welfare

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list his Department's (a) advisory bodies and (b) committees concerned with animal health and welfare; and if he will make a statement. [67179]

Joan Ryan: The Home Office has one advisory body concerned with animal health and welfare, the Animal Procedures Committee. The role of the Animal Procedures Committee is to advise the Home Secretary on matters concerned with the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 and his functions under it. In doing so, the Committee is required to have regard to the legitimate requirements of science and industry and to the protection of animals against avoidable suffering and unnecessary use in scientific procedures. The Department for the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs has lead responsibility for other aspects of animal health and welfare.

Antisocial Behaviour

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prosecutions under the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 there have been for (a) noise, (b) graffiti and fly-posting and (c) waste and litter in (i) each local authority and (ii) each police authority, broken down by basic command unit, in each region of England and Wales in each year since the introduction of the powers. [83765]

Mr. McNulty: Data from the court proceedings database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform showing the number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts for selected offences related to antisocial behaviour are provided in the table A.

Noise is often one of the symptoms of other antisocial behaviour and anecdotal evidence suggests that a variety of other tools, such as warnings, ASBOs, ABCs, parenting contracts and demotion of tenancy are used to tackle perpetrators' antisocial behaviour rather than a noise prosecution. It is not possible to ascertain the number of individual graffiti and fly-posting prosecutions because graffiti is recorded as criminal damage and fly-posting is recorded as an illegal display of advertisements. The penalty notice for disorder scheme was brought into effect in all police forces in England and Wales during 2004. Under the scheme the police are able to issue persons committing specified minor offences with a fixed penalty notice, including the offence of littering, which was added to the scheme on one November 2004.

No admission of guilt is required and payment of the penalty discharges all liability for the offence. Data showing the number of penalty notices for disorder issued in 2004 for the offence of littering broken down by police force area, as well as provisional data for 2005, is provided in table B. Data on prosecutions for 2005 will be available in the autumn .

Child Prostitutes

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people operating child prostitutes have been (a) charged, (b) convicted and (c) deported in each of the last five years. [75979]

Mr. Coaker: The number of defendants proceeded against in magistrates in England and Wales under Sections 25, 26 and 28 of the 1956 Sexual Offences Act and Sections 10,14 ,48 and 49 of the 2003 Sexual Offences Act are as follows: The sudden rise in convictions for 2004, is explained by the increase in cases being prosecuted under the new Sexual Offences Act 2003, which came into force on 1 May, 2004.

Note:
No figures are available as to the nationality or immigration status of the defendants.

Colombia

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what duties are being carried out by officers of the Serious and Organised Crime Agency in Colombia; [84280]

(2) how many (a) UK police officers and (b) officers from the Serious and Organised Crime Agency are based in Colombia; and what plans he has to change the number of officers in Colombia; [84281]

(3) with which (a) law enforcement and (b) police agencies officers of the Serious and Organised Crime Agency will work in Colombia. [84282]

Mr. McNulty: I cannot comment on the operational deployment of police officers or SOCA staff.

Correspondence

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to provide a substantive response to the letter from the hon. Member for Sunderland, South of 24 March 2006 regarding Mr. Leonard Monteba Kasongo (CTS 11017/6). [82973]

Mr. Byrne: The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State wrote to my hon. Friend on 24 April 2006 and 6 June 2006. It is expected that a substantive response to these representations will be provided by the Immigration and Nationality Directorate within the next few weeks.

Departmental Emissions

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent estimate he has made of the carbon emissions of his Department; what commitment he has made to reducing such emissions; and if he will make a statement. [81057]

Mr. Byrne: The most recent estimate of the carbon emissions of the Home Office was the figure reported within the Sustainable Development in Government Report published by the Sustainable Development Commission on 16 December 2005. During the period 2004-05, the Home Office achieved an 11 per cent. reduction in total energy per m^2 since the baseline year. The Department is committed to meet its targets under the framework including those recently announced by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister.

Deportations

Mr. Heath: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether any convicted person suspected of being a member of the 'Yardies' has been released from detention without deportation. [67922]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 3 May 2006]: It is not our policy to discuss specific details of any individual cases in the public domain.

Detection Rates

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what police detection rates have been of crimes committed by (a) adults, (b) young offenders and (c) juveniles, in each of the last nine years for which figures are available, broken down by offence. [83339]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not collected centrally since the recorded crime statistics do not contain information about the offender.

Diversity Champion

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his answer of 17 May 2006, Official Report, column 1035W, on the diversity champion, if he will break down the £900,000 planned expenditure by main budget heading; and if he will make a statement. [73267]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 25 May 2006]: Of the £900,000 planned expenditure, £620,000 covers staff costs and £280,000 covers non-pay running costs. This includes training and development for Home Office staff to meet our statutory obligations under the Race Relations (Amendment) Act 2000 and forthcoming equality legislation, the publication costs for our equality schemes and the running costs of the Race and Diversity Action Team.

Driving Offences (Mobile Phones)

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prosecutions have been mounted against those accused of using a hand-held mobile telephone while driving in each year the law has been in operation, broken down by police authority; and how many of those prosecutions were successful. [83264]

Mr. McNulty: Available information taken from the Court Proceedings Database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform for the years 2003-04 (latest available) is given in the table. 2005 data will be available early in 2007.

Drunk and Disorderly Fines

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many £80 fines for being drunk and disorderly were collected in each of the last 12 months. [79170]

Mr. McNulty: Provisional data held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform shows that in 2005, 36,309 Penalty Notices for Disorder were issued for being drunk and disorderly in England and Wales. In 20,463 of these cases the penalty was paid, with a further 14,161 unpaid tickets registered as fines for collection or enforcement by the courts. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Feltham Young Offender Institution

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will publish a report of the Prison Service's investigations into the receipt by the Governor of Feltham Young Offender Institution of business class ticket upgrades from British Airways. [84404]

Mr. Sutcliffe: No investigation has been commissioned. The Governor's upgrade to Business Class for an outward flight to Australia was unsolicited and did not require declaration.

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will publish a report of the Prison Service's investigations into the Governor of Feltham Young Offender Institution's conduct towards a fellow officer of governor grade. [84405]

Mr. Sutcliffe: It is not Prison Service Policy to publish any internal investigation or inquiry report. Such reports are confidential, covered by the data Protection Act 1998.

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the security lapses that led to the recent escape attempt from Feltham Young Offender Institution; and if he will make a statement. [84406]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Governor of Feltham commissioned a disciplinary Investigation into the attempted escape. The final report has just been received back, and the Governor is currently considering what action to take, but will be accepting a number of recommendations including holding a disciplinary hearing.

Fixed Penalty Notices

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many fixed penalty notices were issued for (a) consumption of alcohol and (b) selling alcohol to under-age people in (i) Suffolk, (ii) Bedfordshire, (iii) Cambridgeshire, (iv) Essex, (v) Hertfordshire and (vi) Norfolk in each year since the penalty force for the disorder scheme came into use. [75389]

Mr. Coaker: The offences of sale to, and consumption of alcohol by, under 18s were added to the penalty notice for disorder scheme on one November 2004. Data from the penalty notices for disorder database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform showing the number of penalty notices issued for (a) consumption of alcohol by, and (b) selling alcohol to, under-age people in the requested police force areas in November and December 2004, as well as provisional data for 2005, are provided in the following table.

Number of penalty notices for disorder issued in 2004 and provisional data for 2005 for sale and consumption of alcohol by under 18s in selected police force areas[1]

GovNet Expo 2006

Mr. Gummer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost is to his Department of supporting GovNet Expo 2006. [79222]

Mr. Byrne: The Department is not directly supporting the GovNet Expo 2006. However we have taken up an exhibitors stand at the event to publicise our work on encouraging the involvement of the third sector in delivering services to the public. The cost of the stand is £8,225.

Hunting

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average cost to police forces maintaining public order at hunt meetings was (a) before and (b) since the Hunting Act 2004 was introduced; and if he will make a statement. [73327]

Mr. McNulty: This information is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Julie Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what training has been provided to police on the enforcement of the Hunting Act 2004. [84109]

Mr. McNulty: The Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO), has issued specific guidance to forces and provided a training package covering strategic and tactical considerations in relation to the enforcement of the Hunting Act 2004. Furthermore, the initial police learning and development programme (IPLDP) provides all forces in England and Wales with the flexibility to tailor their individual training packages for new police officers to meet the needs of the community that they serve. Legislation that is especially relevant to the policing of a particular community will be incorporated within the delivery of the programme in that area, thus paving the way for student officers to develop a more detailed understanding of local issues at an early stage in their careers.

Industrial Espionage

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) foreign nationals and (b) British nationals have been prosecuted for industrial espionage in each year since 1997. [80246]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not held centrally, as there is no specific offence that relates to industrial espionage.

Intelligence Databases

Natascha Engel: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 15 May 2006, Official Report, column 720W, on intelligence databases, on what dates the procedures listed came into force; and if he will make a statement. [83817]

Mr. McNulty: Since 1995, local police forces have held the responsibility for creating and updating data on PNC. Since that date, those forces have also been responsible, for putting in place arrangements with their local non police prosecuting agencies to receive data on people those agencies are seeking to prosecute. The Criminal Records Bureau commenced providing criminal records disclosures in March 2002. The Police National Database is to be introduced in 2009-10.

Motorcycle Theft

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many motorbikes have been reported as stolen in each London borough in each of the last five years. [82819]

Mr. McNulty: In the recorded crime statistics, thefts of a motorbike cannot be separately identified from other vehicle thefts. Some statistics for motorbike thefts were published in the Bike Theft Index 2005. A copy of this document is available at:

http://www.secureyourmotor.gov.uk/downloads/biketheftlores.pdf

Home Office Findings 269 entitled 'The extent of motorcycle theft' gives national statistics for 2001-03 and is available at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs05/r269.pdf

People Trafficking

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his Answer of 20 June 2006, Official Report, columns 1840-1W, on people trafficking, what discussions are being held with countries other than G8 and EU member states on combating human trafficking. [81328]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 3 July 2006]: There have been a number of discussions on human trafficking countries outside of the G8 and EU member states. The Home Office, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and the Department for International Development are involved in capacity building projects, the sharing of good practice and awareness raising campaigns on trafficking in a variety of source and transit countries. The countries involved are Romania, Moldova, Ukraine, the Greater Mekong region (parts of Cambodia, China, Laos, Thailand and Vietnam) and West Africa (including Benin, Burkina Faso, Gabon, Ghana, Niger and Togo). The UK has also signed a Memorandum of Understanding on human trafficking with Nigeria.

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what support will be provided under the Government's Action Plan for Tackling Human Trafficking for (a) programmes providing protection for trafficked persons who are repatriated and (b) to ensure that individual victims are not re-trafficked after deportation. [76674]

Mr. Coaker: A three month public consultation exercise on the proposed UK Action Plan was launched on 5 January 2006. The consultation addressed the issue of repatriating victims of trafficking and ensuring victims are not re-trafficked. The summary of responses was published on 21 June. The responses will be considered in the course of developing the UK Action Plan on human trafficking which we aim to publish at the end of the year.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what procedures are in place to identify, rescue and protect child victims of trafficking in England and Wales. [78812]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 20 June 2006]: We have introduced a number of measures to identify, rescue and protect the victims of child trafficking in England and Wales. Guidance issued to Immigration Officers provides advice on how to identify any child entering the UK who may be at risk, whether they are travelling alone or with adults, and what action to take.

The Government are currently working towards developing the "Paladin" model whereby joint working between Immigration, Police and local authority social services ensures best practice is applied in identifying children at risk. Furthermore, a change to Immigration Rules on 12 February 2006, enables Immigration Officers to carry out more robust checks on the identity of children passing through ports of entry. For example, the names of all non EU accompanied children will be recorded and, for visa nationals, the visas will carry details such as the child's photograph, whether the child should be accompanied or unaccompanied and, if accompanied, the person with whom they should be travelling.

The visa application form will also cover details of the parent/guardian, accompanying adults and sponsors of the child. Specially trained teams of Immigration Officers have also been established at 22 ports to deal with cases of unaccompanied children, and arrangements for round-the-clock referral to police and local authority children's services where this is necessary.

These arrangements will support the development of even closer working arrangements between Immigration and Nationality Directorate (IND), the police and local authority children services departments. Additionally, the Immigration Service is becoming more involved in the work of the newly established Local Safeguarding Children's Boards in local areas covering major ports of entry.

The Home Office National Asylum Support Service (NASS) currently reimburses local authorities who receive unaccompanied asylum seeking children into their care with a total of £140 million per annum. Partnership plans to provide safer arrangements for children who have been trafficked are being incorporated into a Home Office/DFES joint review of how local authorities accommodate children from abroad. The review will aim to deliver improvements by ensuring unaccompanied asylum seeking children are placed in local authority areas where specialist services exist to deal with their specific needs.

The review is also designed to increase specialisation, end inconsistencies in treatment and enable the retention and development of expertise.

We have also commissioned the Child Exploitation Online Protection Centre (CEOP) to carry out an analysis of intelligence data to identify potential numbers of children who may have been trafficked. The results of this exercise will lead to further in depth analysis in order to refine the Government's response to tackling human trafficking.

Police

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his written answer of 20 June 2006, Official Report, column 1845W, on police, what form the policy review of the police injury award system will take; and what the timescale of the review will be. [84077]

Mr. McNulty: The review will be led by Home Office officials reporting to the Police Minister. The review will include a public consultation exercise, to which the police staff associations, police forces and authorities will be able to comment. I will consult the Police Negotiating Board on any recommendations arising from the review which require changes to regulations. Officials are in discussion with the staff associations about the timing of the review.

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to increase the number of community-based police with full enforcement powers in Wales. [83731]

Mr. McNulty: At the end of September 2005 Wales had 7,575 police officers (983 more than in March 1997). The deployment of police officers to community based policing and to other specialist police units is an operational matter for each Chief Constable in Wales. All police officers have the powers of the office of Constable. We aim to introduce Neighbourhood Policing in every community in England and Wales by April 2007. Communities will see increased patrolling, have better local information, and see a greater focus on confidence and reassurance.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what arrangements are in place for removing the records of retiring police officers from the National DNA Database. [82551]

Mr. McNulty: Since 1 August 2002, police regulations require all new police recruits to provide a DNA sample for the Police Elimination Database (PED). This is in order to identify and eliminate any DNA profiles found at a crime scene which may have been inadvertently deposited there by an investigating police officer. Police officers who were in service prior to that date were asked to provide a sample on a voluntary basis. Police forces are responsible for notifying the custodian of the PED when officers retire or leave the police service in order that his/her DNA profile may be removed from the database. Police personnel who provided a sample for the PED on a voluntary basis can request removal of their profiles from the PED at any time without giving any reason.

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will answer question 70884, tabled by the hon. Member for Islwyn on 10 May 2006, on funding to support the merger of police forces in Wales. [84798]

Mr. McNulty: I replied to my hon. Friend on 7 July 2006, Official Report, column 1672W.

Prisoners (Licensed Releases)

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) in respect of how many offenders out of prison on licence the probation service has no information on their location; [74593]

(2) for how many offenders out of prison on licence the probation service has no information on their location, broken down by category of offence; [79099]

(3) for how many of the prisoners free on licence following sentences for sex offences his Department does not have addresses. [79480]

John Reid: Information is not collected or collated centrally on the detailed basis requested. Detailed information relating individual offenders under supervision is held locally by their supervising probation officer. All offenders released on licence, including sex offenders are subject to six standard licence conditions: three of which require them to 'keep in touch with your supervising officer', 'permanently to reside at an address approved by your supervising officer' and 'notify him or her in advance of any proposed change of address or proposed stay (even for one night) away from that approved address'. In the event that any such licence conditions are breached, the offender is liable to be recalled to prison upon the recommendation of the probation officer in order to protect the public. Once the licence is revoked and the offender recalled, the police are notified, in order to ensure a swift return to custody. In addition, any offender subject to sex offender registration requirements is required to notify to the police a home address within three days of leaving prison, and to notify any subsequent change of address within three days of the change thereafter while still subject to registration. Failure to supply that information, or supplying false information, is an offence punishable by up to five years imprisonment. Registration requirements were strengthened recently by the Sexual Offences Act 2003.

Prisons

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he has taken to promote family contact in women's prisons; and what recent assessment he has made of their effectiveness. [84408]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Strategy for Family and Parental Support in Women's Prisons published in October 2005 provides comprehensive guidance to establishments and partner agencies on the elements of family support that should be provided in women's prisons, resources permitting. Local arrangements will take account of the strategy and will be subject to review by governors/directors and inspection by Her Majesty's inspectorate of prisons. No assessment has yet been undertaken centrally.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many prisoners (a) were admitted to and (b) have been released from HMP Wellingborough in each of the last five years; [68918]

(2) how many prisoners who are foreign nationals (a) were admitted to and (b) have been released from HMP Wellingborough in each of the last five years; [68919]

(3) how many prisoners were released from HMP Wellingborough in each of the last 12 months; [68924]

(4) when the next foreign national is scheduled to be released from HMP Wellingborough; [68923]

(5) when the last foreign national prisoner was released from HMP Wellingborough. [68921]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answers 8 May 2006]: Information is held centrally on the number of initial receptions into the prison estate, on remand or following a custodial sentence. We do not hold information centrally on subsequent movements around the prison estate. In its capacity as a training prison, Wellingborough would not normally receive initial receptions from the courts (on remand or under sentence). We therefore do not have the requested information for Wellingborough. Comprehensive information on discharges is not available and information on release dates of individual prisoners is not issued publicly.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to the answer of 18 May 2006, Official Report, column 1212W, on Leyhill open prison, how many of those prisoners originally convicted of murder who escaped and were subsequently captured have been (a) charged and (b) convicted of escape from lawful custody; and what sentence was delivered in each case. [84104]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 11 July 2006]: The information requested is not held centrally and may be obtained only at a disproportionate cost.

Probation Boards

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will publish the risk assessment undertaken on the proposed reorganisation of probation boards and their services. [67301]

Mr. Sutcliffe: It is not our practice to publish internal management documents of this kind. The prospect of disclosure could inhibit the unrestrained and unprejudiced assessment of the risks attached to the programme concerned and thus jeopardise successful delivery.

Public Order

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) exclusion orders, (b) curfews and (c) parenting orders have been issued by Yeovil police in the last 12 months. [82150]

Mr. McNulty: Figures reported to the Home Office on exclusion and curfew orders in the South Somerset petty sessional area (which includes Yeovil) are small and their accuracy cannot be guaranteed. Although care is taken in collating and analysing the returns used to compile such figures, the data are of necessity subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large-scale recording system.

We have started a programme of work in the Home Office looking at the quality of existing data on court sentencing and how this might be improved. Parenting Orders are issued by courts. The Youth Justice Board collects the number of Parenting Orders related to youth offending or antisocial behaviour broken down by youth offending team area. It is currently reviewing these figures for the period 2004-05 and 2005-06. I will write to the hon. Member when the reviewed figures are available.

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were (a) arrested, (b) charged and (c) prosecuted for crimes committed during the protests in London last February against cartoons which were published in Denmark. [83124]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested on arrests is not available centrally.

Road Safety

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many motorists have received penalties for exceeding the speed limit in areas covered by average speed cameras in the past 12 months. [82311]

Mr. McNulty: Information on penalties for speeding offences detected by cameras do not distinguish between the different types of cameras used.

Road Traffic Offences (Victims)

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the Code of Practice for Victims of Crime will apply to (a) those injured and (b) families of those who die as a result of a road crash caused by someone committing a road traffic offence. [83715]

Mr. McNulty: The Code of Practice for Victims of Crime covers all victims of crimes recorded under National Crime Recording Standards. In the case of road traffic offences this includes causing death by dangerous driving, causing death by careless driving when under the influence of drink or drugs, and dangerous driving. In addition to this, where a person has died as a result of a road collision and the police are investigating whether an offence under Section three of the Road Traffic Act 1988 (careless and inconsiderate driving) has been committed, the family will be entitled to services under the Code.

Telephone Advice Lines

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many telephone advice lines his Department and its non-departmental public bodies support; how many telephone advisers each employs; and how much funding is provided to each by (a) his Department and its non-departmental public bodies, (b) other Government departments, (c) the private sector and (d) the voluntary sector. [66587]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested is not held centrally and could be collated only at disproportionate cost.

Violent Crime (Humberside)

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many violent crime offences were recorded in the Humberside police authority area in each year between 1992 and 1997; and if he will make a statement. [84574]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is given in the table.

Violent crimes recorded by the police in Humberside

	Number of offences
1992	6142
1993	6279
1994	6296
1995	7265
1996	7586
1997	7758

HEALTH

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to the answer of 22 June 2006, Official Report, column 2088W, on abortion, if she will place in the Library comments made by her Department on the draft of the evidence-based guideline prior to its publication; and if she will make a statement. [81177]

Caroline Flint: The Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists (RCOG) evidence-based guideline, 'The Care of Women Requesting Induced Abortion (2004)', states that a summary table of comments received and actions taken is available on request from the RCOG.

Accident and Emergency

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients were treated in the accident and emergency department at (a) the Royal Sussex County Hospital in Brighton and (b) Worthing Hospital in each of the last three years. [83416]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 10 July 2006]: The information requested is not available centrally on an individual hospital basis. The table shows the number of first attendances, follow-up attendances and total attendances at accident and emergency departments and minor injuries units for national health service organisations for Brighton and Sussex University Hospitals NHS Trust and Worthing and Southlands Hospitals NHS Trust for the periods shown.

	Brighton and Sussex University Hospital NHS Trust	Worthing and Southlands Hospitals NHS Trust
2005-06
First attendances	116,687	59,330
Follow up attendances	7,699	2,696
Total attendances	124,386	62,026
2004-05
First attendances	113,102	58,387

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients were taken via ambulance to the accident and emergency department at (a) the Royal Sussex county hospital in Brighton and (b) Worthing hospital in each of the last three years. [83417]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 10 July 2006]: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Adult Hearing Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she plans to publish a national action plan for adult hearing services; who is responsible for drawing up the action plan; what representations she has received from interested parties on an action plan; and whether interested parties will be asked for their views for the purposes of informing the action plan. [84015]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Work is under way at official level and a plan will be published in due course following ministerial approval. Representations have been received from various stakeholders including parliamentarians and there has been a great deal of correspondence on the topic. The Department is keen that the plan should have the support of stakeholders and therefore will be endeavouring to involve them in its development.

Alimta

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the Government's policy is on the use of the drug Alimta; [82652]

(2) which health authorities in England prescribe the drug Alimta. [82653]

Andy Burnham: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence is currently conducting an appraisal of Alimta for the treatment of malignant pleural mesothelioma. Alimta is licensed for this indication and there are currently no national restrictions on the prescribing of this drug.

In 2005, Alimta was prescribed in secondary care in 22 out of 28 strategic health authorities (SHAs). Details of the SHAs in which the drug has been prescribed cannot be provided due to contractual restrictions on how data on drugs issued in hospitals can be used. The information available to the Department may not capture prescribing as part of a clinical trial. Alimta has never been prescribed in primary care in England.

Alzheimer's Disease

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the timescale is for the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence investigation into anti-cholinesterate drugs used to treat Alzheimer's disease. [83272]

Andy Burnham: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) has received appeals against its final appraisal determination on these drugs. These appeals will be heard on 13 and 14 July. Subsequent timescales depend on the outcome of the appeals. Details of the appeals process are available in NICE's "Guide to the Technology Appraisal Process" which is available on its website at www.nice.org.uk. Until NICE issues its final guidance following appeals, the existing 2001 guidance continues to apply.

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether she has had discussions with other European health Ministers about treatment for people with Alzheimer's disease. [83722]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department have not had any discussions with other European health Ministers about treatment for people with Alzheimer's disease.

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the impact of the proposed withdrawal of Ebixa on the treatment of people in the later stages of Alzheimer's disease, with particular reference to the effect on behavioural symptoms. [84000]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: No such assessment has been made. The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence has not yet issued its final guidance to the national health service on the use of Aricept, Exelon, Reminyl and Ebixa in the treatment of Alzheimer's disease.

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the impact of the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence's recommendations on the prescription of drugs for the treatment of Alzheimer's disease on (a) people with dementia, (b) carers of people with dementia and (c) families of people with dementia. [84001]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) has not yet issued final guidance to the national health service on the use of drugs for the treatment of Alzheimer's disease. Until it does so NICE's original guidance issued in 2001 continues to apply.

Mr. Binley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the impact on families' ability to look after mentally ill relatives of the recent National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence's decision on drugs for the treatment of dementia. [84381]

Andy Burnham: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) has not issued final guidance regarding its review of anti-cholinesterase inhibitors for the treatment of Alzheimer's disease. NICE has received appeals against its final appraisal determination on these drugs, which will be heard on 13 and 14 July 2006. Until NICE issues its final guidance following appeals, the existing 2001 guidance continues to apply.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her strategy is for ensuring access to drug treatments for people in the (a) early and (b) later stages of Alzheimer's disease. [84436]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: It is for clinicians to decide in any particular case, the appropriate drug treatment, if any, for patients in the early or later stages of Alzheimer's disease, in the light of the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence guidance.

Audiology

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was (a) the average waiting time for a hearing aid and (b) the audiology budget for each primary care trust covering Portsmouth in each of the last three years; and what each is (i) for 2006-07 and (ii) for the next two years; and if she will make a statement. [81153]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is not held centrally. It is for primary care trusts to ensure their local population benefits from modernised hearing aid services.

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her response of 20 June 2006, Official Report, column 1789W to my hon. Friend to the hon. Member for Chorley (Mr. Hoyle), on audiology, within what average period new patients in (a) the Dartford, Gravesham and Swanley primary care trust (PCT) area and (b) each other PCT area in the new south east coast strategic health authority area have been fitted with digital hearing aids since they became available in each PCT. [84427]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is not collected centrally.

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting times from GP referral to fitting of digital hearing aids are for (a) new patients and (b) existing patients with an analogue hearing aid in the North Somerset primary care trust area. [84682]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is not available.

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make it her policy to collect waiting time data for hearing aid services. [84140]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department does not collect waiting time data for audiology services. However, since January 2006 we have been collecting waiting time and activity data for 15 diagnostic tests or procedures, including pure tone audiometry. This data has been shared with the national health service, for performance management purposes since 2 June 2006. This data will be published on 12 July 2006.

Autism

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assistance the Department provides to parents whose children are diagnosed with autism. [82815]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: In April 2001, the Department awarded a three-year grant to the National Autistic Society for their parenting skills project "help!". This developed a training programme for parents of children of any age who have recently received a diagnosis of an autistic spectrum disorder. It provides essential, timely information and practical strategies to help parents understand and manage their child's condition and give them the knowledge and confidence to plan for their future.

Parents who are carers of children with autism are entitled to an assessment of their needs by local councils. Under the carers grant, worth £185 million in 2006-07, councils can provide carers with direct services, breaks and direct payments for carers' services, according to their assessed level of need.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will commission research into early diagnosis of autism through analysis of the placenta. [83246]

Andy Burnham: No. The Department funds research to support policy and to provide the evidence needed to underpin quality improvement and service development in the national health service. The main agency through which the Government supports medical and clinical research is the Medical Research Council (MRC). The MRC is an independent body funded by the Department of Trade and Industry via the Office of Science and Innovation.

The MRC always welcomes high quality applications for support into any aspect of human health and these are judged in open competition with other demands on funding.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much the Department spent conducting research into autism in each of the last five years. [83818]

Andy Burnham: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply given to the hon. Member for East Worthing and Shoreham (Tim Loughton) on 17 May 2006, Official Report, column 1092.

Breast Cancer

Dr. Naysmith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether central funding is available for new hormonal treatments for early breast cancer as set out in the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence's Appraisal Consultation Document. [82528]

Andy Burnham: There is no specific central funding available for these treatments.

Provision is made within national health service allocations for the estimated impact on the NHS of published guidance from the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence.

Carers

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the time taken by local authorities in assessing the needs of those caring for disabled relatives; and what support her Department gives to local authorities to make such assessments. [84645]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Carers and Disabled Children Act 2000 gives carers the right to a carer's assessment. It is for councils to ensure that assessments are carried out in a timely manner to ensure that carers do not wait unnecessarily for a needs assessment or services.

Choose and Book Service

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the (a) robustness, (b) ease of use and (c) reliability of the choose and book system. [75308]

Andy Burnham: To ensure robustness, the performance of the choose and book system was tested before implementation and is re-tested as changes are made. The test results have all been within agreed service levels.

The service was designed to be as user friendly as possible. Ease of use is regularly assessed in partnership with regional user groups as well as national groups such as the national clinical reference panel and the design steering group. Potential improvements are identified by these groups with changes delivered in subsequent releases of the software. Local benchmarking suggests that choose and book has excellent usability when the local configuration is correct.

Over the last 12 months, choose and book has been available to general practitioners more than 99 per cent. of the time and agreed service levels are being met.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment she has made of the effects of the implementation of choose and book; [77060]

(2) what assessment she has made of the impact of choose and book on general practitioners surgeries; and if she will make a statement. [77061]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: As at 3 July 2006, 568,611 patients had been referred through choose and book, with the referral information available electronically to commissioners and providers. The Department receives regular feedback on the effects of the system through a range of channels, which suggests that patients who receive the service welcome it. As with the implementation of any such system, change is required of those who administer it but we do not expect the choose and book service to increase the overall workload for general practitioner practices.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health by what date the choose and book system was expected to have achieved 100 per cent. roll-out when it was first announced; what targets have been issued since then; whether those targets have been met; and what percentage roll-out had been achieved on the last date for which figures are available. [75131]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The aim of the national health service improvement plan in 2004 was for 100 per cent., e-booking by the end of December 2005. This became unachievable due to subsequent developments in the technical requirements of the service and the greater implementation challenge that these represented. We now expect to reach a choose and book utilisation level of 90 per cent., of general practitioner referrals by the end of March 2007. As at 2 July 2006, utilisation stood at 20.4 per cent.

All eligible acute providers in England are now live and are accepting bookings through choose and book. Bookings are made through either an integrated patient admission system or indirectly bookable services functionality.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which general practitioner practices (a) have started then ceased to use the choose and book computer system to make appointments and (b) have decreased their use of the choose and book system in each week measured over the last six months; and if she will make a statement. [76382]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: As at 25 June, 2,201 general practitioner (GP) practices had started to use the choose and book service in 2006. We have defined started to use as the GP practice making a minimum of twenty bookings. Of these practices, eight had not used the choose and book service to make a booking in the last thirty days. The central support team are working in areas of low utilisation to help improve the take up of choose and book.

Clostridium Difficile

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) males and (b) females in (i) Southend-on-Sea, (ii) Essex and (iii) England and Wales were infected with clostridium difficile infections in each of the last three years, broken down by age. [81279]

Andy Burnham: Data for Southend on Sea and Essex are not available. However, data from the voluntary reporting scheme run by the Health Protection Agency for Eastern England and England and Wales are shown in the following table.

Notes:

1. The data on cases reported in babies (less than one year) should be treated with caution. They may not represent infections because asymptomatic carriage is common in babies.
2. The data were extracted on Tuesday 27 June 2006.

Community Hospitals

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her statement on community hospitals on 5 July 2006, Official Report, columns 816-32, with particular reference to the presumption against taking decisions in response to short-term budgetary pressures, if she will ask the West Midlands strategic health authority to ensure that proposals from the South Worcester primary care trust to close palliative care beds at Evesham community hospitals are withdrawn. [83914]

Caroline Flint: The configuration of local health care services in a particular area requires local decision-making. Primary care trusts are best placed to make those decisions in consultation with local people and their strategic health authorities (SHAs).

SHAs should assure themselves that proposals for changes to community hospitals are consistent with the long-term strategy of the White Paper, "Our health, our care, our say: a new direction for community services".

Sir John Stanley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which community hospitals have had (a) some and (b) all of their beds closed on the instructions of their primary care trusts. [85175]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is not centrally collected.

Complaints Services (West Lancashire)

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what arrangements her Department has made to ensure that (a) patients in West Lancashire will have access to an independent complaints and advocacy service when the current contract with the Citizens Advice Bureau finishes and (b) that there will be a smooth transfer from the current provider to the new service. [83449]

Ms Rosie Winterton: In late 2005 and early 2006, the Department awarded contracts to three organisations who have been delivering a new and improved independent complaints advocacy service (ICAS) from 1 April 2006.

Contracts have been awarded for each Government region. The new service provider in West Lancashire is The Carers Federation Ltd. who have been delivering ICAS under contract to the Department since 1 September 2003, bringing a wealth of experience and expertise in general and specialist advocacy service delivery.

All providers, including Citizens Advice, have worked together in order to ensure a smooth transition for clients; their aim was to provide as seamless a transition process as possible.

Detailed transition plans had been drawn up, the implementation of which is being monitored by the Department. In addition, the ICAS transition co-ordinator is continuing to work with all service providers during the first six months of the contract, to support the initial set up and transition phases.

Continuing Care

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether individuals previously in receipt of NHS continuing care will continue to receive their care fully funded if the new National Framework for Continuing Care deems them to be ineligible for it. [84013]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The national framework will not change the existing legal basis for the provision of national health service continuing healthcare. The purpose of the national framework is to ensure fairness and consistency by implementing a single set of principles on eligibility and assessment for NHS funding across England. Fully funded NHS continuing healthcare will continue to be provided for all those individuals whose primary need is a health need, and unless individuals' needs have changed there is no reason to expect them to lose their entitlement to NHS continuing healthcare.

Correspondence

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she will reply to the letters of 23 May and 15 June on the configuration and composition of primary care trusts in Cheshire from the hon. Member for Macclesfield. [83523]

Ms Rosie Winterton: A reply was sent on 6 July.

Cosmetic Procedures

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what cosmetic procedures are available free of charge on the NHS; and if she will make a statement. [83450]

Andy Burnham: Surgery and other procedures for purely cosmetic purposes are not available on the national health service, but certain cosmetic procedures may be available to secure physical or psychological health, for example to correct defects arising from diseases and conditions such as trauma or cancer, to correct congenital defects or to restore function, including the necessary correction of any previous cosmetic operations. In these cases, care is offered based on individual clinical need determined by clinicians and in line with locally agreed priorities for care.

Dentistry

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to ensure that dental appliances originating from foreign suppliers are subject to the same standards as those manufactured in the United Kingdom; and if she will make a statement. [82552]

Andy Burnham: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for Clwyd, West (Mr. Jones) on 20 June 2006, Official Report, column 1799W.

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency (a) is taking and (b) plans to take to monitor the quantity and quality of single-tooth dentures imported from countries outside the European Union. [84382]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 12 July 2006]: The Medical Devices Regulations 2002, for which the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) acts as the regulatory authority on behalf of the Secretary of State, does not regulate the quantity of dentures imported from countries outside the European Union. They do, though, contain requirements for the safety and fitness for purpose of custom-made dental appliances which all manufacturers, wherever they are based, should ensure are met before placing their dentures on the United Kingdom market. Where the manufacturer is based outside the European Community they are also required under the regulations to appoint an authorised representative to register on their behalf with the member state competent authority where they have their registered place of business. MHRA conducts an annual programme of inspections of custom made appliance manufacturers and authorised representatives based in the UK, selected at random.

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment she has made of the effect of the replacement of crowns by single-tooth dentures on long-term dental health; [84383]

(2) what change there has been in the number of (a) single-tooth dentures and (b) single-tooth crowns provided since the introduction of the new dental contract. [84385]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 12 July 2006]: It is for individual dentists working under general dental services contracts or personal dental services agreements to use their clinical judgment to determine the type and quality of any dental appliance required. The Department does not collect routine information on the quantity or type of dental appliances supplied but will be assessing, in conjunction with the implementation review group, the impact of the new contractual arrangements on this and other aspects of the services provided to national health service patients.

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what change there was in the number of (a) single tooth dentures and (b) single-tooth crowns provided during the dental contract pilot schemes between 2004 and 2006. [84384]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 12 July 2006]: The table shows the number of single tooth dentures, including incomplete dentures, single tooth crowns, and temporary and incomplete crowns, in personal dental services (PDS) pilots between 2004 and 2005.

Departmental Finance Directors

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) name, (b) professional and academic qualifications and (c) relevant experience are of the finance director of her Department. [80086]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Richard Douglas is the Department director general of finance and investment.

He was appointed in May 2001. This is his third spell with the Department following a secondment from the NAO between 1990 and 1992 and three years as deputy director of finance from 1996. Immediately prior to his return to the Department he was finance director for national savings.

He is a graduate of Hull university and he started his career in public sector finance with the National Audit Office where he qualified as an accountant (CIPFA) in 1983.

Departmental Publications

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list in date order (a) Green and (b) White Papers produced by her Department since October 2005. [81305]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Since October 2005, the Department has published the White Paper, "Our health, our care, our say: a new direction for community services" in January 2006.

No Green Papers have been published by the Department during this period.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what draft Bills have been produced by her Department since October 2005; how many were (a) examined and (b) are planned to be examined by (i) a Departmental Select Committee and (ii) a Joint Committee; what draft Bills are still to be produced by her Department; when each is expected to be published; how many clauses each has; and if she will make a statement. [81306]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: No draft Bills have been produced by the Department since October 2005. Announcements on future legislation and future draft legislation which will be subject to pre-legislative scrutiny will be indicated in the Queen's Speech.

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what surveys her Department has carried out on patient attitudes to choice in the NHS since 1997; and if she will publish the results. [80682]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Surveys commissioned by the Department since 1997 on patient attitudes to choice in the national health service are shown in the following table. Other surveys on patient choice exist but were commissioned by other organisations.

Deposited Papers

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the Deposited Papers placed in the Library by her Department since 2000; and when each was published. [81309]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We do not keep a central record.

Diabetes

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the most recent rate of registered diabetes was in (a) Stoke-on-Trent, (b) the West Midlands and (c) England. [80598]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The figures are not available in the format requested. The most recent data available on people registered as having diabetes are from the quarter four local delivery plan returns (LDPR) for 2005-06. The total numbers of patients with diabetes on practice-based registers for Stoke-on-Trent, the West Midlands and England, are shown in the following table.

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what discussions her Department has had with Diabetes UK about the impact on patients of proposed price reductions set out in the consultation "arrangements for the provision of dressings and chemical reagents to primary care"; [82338]

(2) what discussions her Department has had with the in vitro diagnostics industry on the impact of proposed price changes to chemical reagents on their ability to continue to provide patient services and hardware free of charge; [82336]

(3) when her Department will publish in full the responses received to the Government consultation on the arrangements for the provision of dressings, incontinence appliances, stoma appliances, chemical reagents and other appliances to primary and secondary care; [82335]

(4) pursuant to the Government consultation arrangements for the provision of dressings and chemical reagents to primary care, what criteria were used to determine the figure of 15 per cent. for the proposed price reduction for chemical reagents; and if she will make a statement; [82333]

(5) what discussions have taken place between the diabetes policy team and the commercial directorate in her Department on her Department's consultations on (a) arrangements for the provision of dressings, incontinence appliances, stoma appliances, chemical reagents and other appliances to primary and secondary care, and (b) arrangements for the provision of dressings and chemical reagents to primary care; and if she will make a statement; [82332]

(6) what factors were taken into account when setting the length of the consultation period for her Department's consultation on arrangements for the provision of dressings and chemical reagents to primary care; and if she will make a statement; [82331]

(7) what steps she is taking to ensure that the availability of blood-glucose testing products and support services to diabetes patients will not be affected by proposed changes in the Government consultation arrangements for the provision of dressings and chemical reagents to primary care. [82339]

Andy Burnham: The Department has been reviewing the arrangements for the provision of chemical reagents (blood glucose testing strips), dressings, incontinence appliances and stoma appliances to primary and secondary care since October 2005.

In the intervening period, two consultations papers have been published that sought views from interested parties on proposed changes to the arrangements. Interested parties includes patients, the national health service and manufacturers and suppliers. These parties were informed that the Department was seeking their comments on the proposed changes. Responses were received to both consultations from Diabetes UK and from the in-vitro diagnostic industry, both individually and through their trade body, BIVDA.

The first consultation—"arrangements for the provision of chemical reagents, dressings, incontinence appliances and stoma appliances to primary and secondary care"—was open for 90 days and the second—"arrangements for the provision of dressings and chemical reagents to primary care"—for 30 days.

The shorter period for the second consultation was judged to be warranted as it was part of an ongoing process that had begun with the first consultation in October 2005.

The second consultation stated that the Department believes that current reimbursement prices for some dressings and reagents may not represent value-for-money for either the NHS or taxpayers. Therefore, it proposed that a reduction in the reimbursement price through Part IX of the drug tariff should be made on some dressings and some reagents and sought views on this.

The proposed reduction in the reimbursement price on some reagents was 15 per cent. In arriving at this, the Department believes that one of the clearest indications of value-for-money is the difference between reimbursement prices in primary care, and the prices at which these products are available in secondary care. The Department believes that a comparison between the sectors is appropriate, subject to a number of adjustments to reflect factors unique to each sector.

These factors include differences in the underlying costs associated with supply of products to primary and secondary care. Packaging specifications, pack sizes, logistics costs and margins across the supply chain, amongst other things, have an affect on price, and were taken into account in the analysis.

The Department also took into account the claims that were made about the provision of 'free' testing meters in primary care when comparing pricing between the two sectors.

Overall, there is a difference of up to 35 per cent. between reimbursement prices in primary care and prices paid in secondary care. The size of difference cannot be reasonably explained by the factors outlined above.

The Department's diabetes policy team—which includes Dr Sue Roberts, national clinical director for diabetes—has been kept informed throughout the process.

Until such time as the review has been completed, the Department is not in a position to comment on plans to ensure the availability of blood glucose testing strips.

Regarding the publication of responses in full to the consultations on the "arrangements for the provision of chemical reagents, dressings, incontinence appliances and stoma appliances to primary and secondary care", the Department considers that it is reasonable to withhold publication until a future date, pending the outcome of on-going discussions and further consultations on future arrangements.

Disclosure of the responses to the first consultation would be likely to influence or inhibit those responding to the further consultations and prevent the Department from obtaining fair and representative views from stakeholders.

The Department considers that the public interest in disclosing the responses is outweighed by the public interest in withholding them. This is because although there is an inherent public interest in openness and accountability in Government, there is a greater public interest in ensuring that the Department's consultation process is effective and that the Department negotiates new arrangements that deliver fair prices for the NHS and reasonable returns for suppliers.

Drug Costs

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent on national health service drugs in each of the last three years; what the percentage change was in each year; and by how much remuneration to prescribing pharmacists has changed in the last three years. [83431]

Andy Burnham: Expenditure on national health service drugs in each of the last three years, with percentage growth, is shown in table one.

	Net ingredient cost (£ million)	Percentage growth
2002	6,846.656	—
2003	7,510.134	9.69
2004	8,079.567	7.58
2005	7,936.564	-1.77

These figures are from the prescription cost analysis (PCA) system, supplied by the prescription pricing division of the NHS Business Services Authority (formerly known as the Prescriptions Pricing Authority). Fees paid to pharmacists from central non-discretionary funds for the dispensing of prescriptions and provision of pharmaceutical services in each of the last three years, with percentage growth, are shown in table two.

	Fees paid (£ million)	Percentage growth
2002-03	800.842	—
2003-04	837.436	4.57
2004-05	861.460	2.87
2005-06	986.586	14.52

Note:
Figures are resource costs. 2005-06 figures are unaudited.

Drug Misuse Strategies

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people, and at what grades, are employed in her Department to work on drug misuse strategies, in addition to those employed by the National Treatment Agency. [83925]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is shown in the table in whole time equivalents (WTE) for the senior civil service and the Department's integrated pay scales. There are currently 2.9 WTE working on drug treatment, plus 1.6 working on prevention of drug and alcohol misuse by young people.

	Whole-time equivalents
Drug treatment
Senior civil service	0.58
IP4 upper	0.8
IP4 standard	1.0
IP3 standard	0
IP2	0.5
Total	2.9
Young people—drug and alcohol prevention
Senior civil service	0.02
IP4 upper	0.1
IP4 standard	0

	Whole-time equivalents
IP3 standard	1.0
IP2	0.5
Total	1.6

Note:
IP—integrated payband where IP1 is the minimum pay range.

Drug-related Conditions

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many drug-related conditions were treated (a) in total and (b) in the accident and emergency department at (i) the Royal Sussex county hospital in Brighton and (ii) Worthing hospital in each of the last three years. [83415]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 10 July 2006]: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Drugs and Therapeutics Bulletin

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the saving from the Department's decision not to renew the bulk contract for the Drugs and Therapeutics Bulletin. [82918]

Andy Burnham: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 23 May 2006, Official Report, column 1743W.

EU Emissions Trading Scheme

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total cost of (a) administrating and (b) buying allocations for each NHS hospital included in the EU Emissions Trading Scheme was in its first year of operation. [82738]

Andy Burnham: Figures on the total cost of administrating and buying allocations for each national health service hospital included in the EU emission trading scheme in its first year of operation are not held centrally.

Fibromyalgia

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what information is (a) published by her Department and (b) available via NHS Direct on fibromyalgia; when the last update was made to the information available; and when the last update to such information was undertaken; [84494]

(2) whether she has discussed treatment and care for people with fibromyalgia with UK based fibromyalgia support charities. [84500]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Ministers have not held any recent discussions with fibromyalgia support charities on the treatment and care of people with this condition.

NHS Direct publishes health information in a variety of media, including the NHS Direct online website and the NHS Direct interactive digital television service (NHS Direct interactive). Through these services, people have access to information on a range of conditions and illnesses, including fibromyalgia. Information provided by NHS Direct is reviewed and updated on a regular basis and individual web pages contain details of when the information was last updated.

Additionally, PRODIGY guidance, which is available on its website at www.prodigy.nhs.uk, offers advice on the management of a range of conditions and symptoms, including fibromyalgia, that are commonly seen in primary care. The guidance is advisory and has been developed to assist healthcare professionals, together with patients, in making decisions about the management of the patient's health. Guidance contained on the website is reviewed on a regular basis.

Fires

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many fires there were in the NHS Estate in each year since 1995; and what the cost was in each year. [83054]

Andy Burnham: These figures have been extracted from the information contained in the fire database held by the Department. National health service trusts are required to report all outbreaks of fire to which the fire and rescue service attend. The figures below represent those incidents reported to the Department during the period 1994-95 to 2004-05, and therefore may not be representative of the actual number of incidents attended by the fire services. NHS foundation trusts are not mandated to provide information in relation to fire incidents.

Table 1 represents the total number of fire incidents reported to the Department between 1994-95 and 2004-05 which are held in the database.

Table 1—Number of reported fires during period

	Number of fires
1994-95	606
1995-96	1,017
1996-97	1,038
1997-98	1,136
1998-99	912
1999-2000	1,125
2000-01	1,045
2001-02	948
2002-03	809
2003-04	832
2004-05	1,194

A total of 10,662 fires were reported to the Department during this period.

Table 2 shows the maximum cost identified to the Department resulting from the reported fire incidents during the period held in the database.

Table 2—Maximum cost of reported fire incidents

	Maximum cost (£)
1994-95	100,000
1995-96	66,000
1996-97	350,000
1997-98	1,000,000
1998-99	1,000,000

Table 2—Maximum cost of reported fire incidents

	Maximum cost (£)
1999-2000	120,000
2000-01	150,000
2001-02	300,000
2002-03	10,000,000
2003-04	500,000
2004-05	1,000,000

The total maximum cost of the reported fires in the period is £14,586,000.

Food Supplements Directive

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent research she has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the effect of the food supplements directive on the UK food supplements industry; and if she will make a statement; [84283]

(2) what recent meetings she has held with (a) the UK food supplements industry, (b) the European Commission and (c) the Prime Minister on the food supplements directive; and if she will make a statement. [84284]

Caroline Flint: A regulatory impact assessment was carried out in relation to the food supplements directive in 2003, which evaluated the impact on the United Kingdom food supplements industry.

The public health Minister held a series of meetings with the UK food supplements industry in March 2006 to discuss the issue of food supplements, and has recently met with the representatives from No. 10, Cabinet Office and the Food Standards Agency to discuss this issue.

Foster Review

Mr. Ronnie Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to initiate a formal consultation on the merits of changes to the regulation of non-medical healthcare professionals proposed in the Foster Review. [82298]

Andy Burnham: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply given to the hon. Member for Wyre Forest (Dr. Taylor) on 15 May 2006, Official Report, column 694W.

Foundation Trusts

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what powers foundation trust governors have to refer issues to the trust's membership; and what status responses of those members have in relation to board policy; [R] [83273]

(2) what requirement there is on a board of a foundation trust to consult (a) members and (b) governors on major changes in service delivery. [83274]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: NHS foundation trusts (NHSFTs) have a duty to encourage local people to become members and are accountable to their membership base via the board of governors. Membership must be representative of the communities served by NHSFTs.

Governors are responsible for representing the interests of the community in the management of the organisation and for sharing information about key decisions with members and receiving their views on specific issues. The constitution of each NHSFT details the practice and procedure of governors. While operational management decisions remain the responsibility of the board of directors, governors are able to influence decisions about priorities and the development and delivery of services made by directors who must consult and take the views of governors on board in forward planning.

Framing Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her practice is regarding meeting, discussing and taking into account the views and opinions of (a) private individuals and (b) representatives of organisations when drawing up and framing legislation to be introduced by her Department; and if she will make a statement. [81307]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department always seeks a full range of views when drawing up and framing legislation. Consultation is a key part of the policy-making process; both informal and formal.

A recent example was the consultation leading up to the White Paper 'Our health, our care, our say', which involved a wide range of face-to-face events, including four regional consultation events and a national citizens' summit for 1,000 people in Birmingham on 29 October 2005. There were 150 local consultation events organised by voluntary and statutory organisations, attended by over 8,000 people. Face-to-face debates were backed-up by over 33,000 completed questionnaires and a major usage and attitudes survey.

The Department holds regular meetings with representatives of the principal stakeholder groups for our policy areas and with relevant experts. Organisations and individuals can also contribute to the Department's formal consultations which abide by the code of conduct on consultation. Known stakeholders are alerted to the fact that a formal consultation is taking place. As required by the code, the Department then gives feedback on the responses received and on how the consultation process influenced the policy decision.

General Practitioners

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many general practitioners per head of population there are in Yeovil constituency. [83810]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is not available in the format requested. However, the information on how many general practitioners there are per head of population in South Somerset primary care trust (PCT) area is shown in the following table.

South Somerset PCT

	Number
All practitioners (excluding retainers and registrars)[1]	107
All practitioners (excluding retainers and registrars)[1] per 100,000 head of population	70.4

[1] General medical practitioners, excluding retainers and registrars, includes contracted general practitioners, general medical services others and personal medical services others. 2004 population figures from the 2001 Office for National Statistics (ONS) resident estimates have been used for 2005 organisation calculations, as population figures for 2005 at organisation level are not yet available.

Sources:
The Information Centre for health and social care general and personal medical services statistics. 2001 ONS population censos.

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost is of the additional pension liability associated with the new GP contract; and if she will make a statement. [69616]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Government Actuary's Department has valued the total liabilities of the NHS Pension Scheme as at 31 March 2005 to be £127.9 billion. They are in the process of preparing a detailed actuarial valuation of the scheme as at 31 March 2004 which will be published later this year. It will include analysis of the factors leading to any change in valuation.

Genetically-modified Organisms

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent research she has commissioned into the impact of genetically modified organisms on human health. [83275]

Caroline Flint: As the United Kingdom Competent Authority for the EC Regulation 1829/2003 on genetically modified (GM) food and feed, the Food Standards Agency (FSA) supports a research programme to underpin the safety assessment of GM foods, and its role in ensuring food safety and consumer choice. Research funded by the FSA is reviewed to ensure that any emerging issues are identified and research is commissioned where appropriate.

Harwich Hospital

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the delayed opening of the new hospital in Harwich. [82894]

Andy Burnham: The national health service East of England reports that the delay is attributable to remedial flooring works taking place. However, Tendring Primary Care Trust expects the phased move into the new Fryatt hospital and Mayflower medical centre to be completed by the end of August this year.

Head Injuries

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many hospitals in Lancashire offer specialist services for the rehabilitation of patients with severe head injuries. [82747]

Ms Rosie Winterton: There are two units within Lancashire providing specialist rehabilitation services to patients with severe head injuries. These are the Preston neuro-rehabilitation centre, part of Lancashire Teaching Hospitals National Health Service Foundation Trust, and the Rakehead unit in Burnley, part of the East Lancashire Hospitals NHS Trust.

Health Circular 2002/004

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to enforce the provisions of health circular 2002/004; and if she will make a statement. [84177]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Directions, contained in annex D of the health service circular 2002/004, place the same statutory funding requirements on national health service bodies for the risk-sharing scheme as applies to positive guidance issued by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence.

Ensuring compliance is the responsibility of strategic health authorities. Failure risks an adverse report to the Secretary of State from the independent Healthcare Commission.

Health Service Provision (Auditing)

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how the implementation of (a) Practice Based Commissioning, (b) Payment by Results and (c) patient choice will be audited. [79672]

Andy Burnham: External audit of the implementation, by national health service bodies other than foundation trusts, of health policy is the responsibility of the Audit Commission and the National Audit Office. Foundation trust auditors are appointed by the governors of the trust. All follow professional standards based on the international standards on auditing issued by the Auditing Practices Board. In addition, NHS bodies have internal audit services.

Health Services (Barnet)

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people are on NHS waiting lists in Barnet (a) for elective surgery and (b) for out-patient appointments; what the (i) average and (ii) longest wait was in each case in 2005-06; what the equivalent figures were on 1 May 1997; and if she will make a statement. [84438]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This information is not collected in the format requested. However, the table shows data for in-patient and out-patients waits, including average waiting times for Barnet Primary Care Trust (PCT) in March 2006 and its predecessor, Barnet health authority (HA) in June 1997.

The table shows that the longest wait for in-patient treatment in June 1997 was over 24 months compared to five to six months in March 2006. The table also shows that the longest wait for out-patient treatment in March 2006 was 13 to 17 weeks compared to over 26 weeks in June 1997.

Healthcare Workforce

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to reform the regulation of the (a) medical and (b) non-medical healthcare workforce in England. [83695]

Andy Burnham: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 15 May 2006, Official Report, column 694W to the hon. Member for Wyre Forest (Dr. Taylor).

Healthcare-acquired Infections

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many MRSA bloodstream infections were recorded at (a) the Royal Sussex County Hospital in Brighton and (b) Worthing Hospital in each of the last three years. [83413]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 10 July 2006]: The information is not available in the format requested. However, the table shows the number of methicillin resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) reports for Brighton and Sussex University Hospitals National Health Service Trust and Worthing and Southlands Hospitals NHS Trust for the periods shown.

Hospital Closures

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what date it was announced that the Severalls hospital at Colchester would close; and on what date it ceased to be occupied by patients. [83219]

Andy Burnham: The decision to close Severalls hospitals was made in approximately 1994, with the physical closure at the end of March 1997.

However, it should be noted that there was not a full closure of the hospital site, merely the core ayslum buildings. At the point of closure, clients were moved to newly developed mental health facilities in Colchester, Clacton and Chelmsford. The hospital building also housed a number of acute wards and those patients were transferred to other accommodation in Essex Rivers Healthcare National Health Service Trust.

Since 1997 services have continued to be provided from the periphery of the Severalls site, namely:

Low secure unit;

Psychiatric intensive care unit;

Long-stay rehabilitation;

Office and community bases;

Pathology laboratory; and

Anglia Ruskin university—nurse education unit.

A learning disabilities day unit has also been developed more recently on the site.

Import Licence Applications

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many parallel import licence (a) applications and (b) variations were received by the Medicines and Healthcare Regulatory Agency in each of the last 12 months; how many outstanding licence applications and variations were waiting to be processed by the Medicines and Healthcare Regulatory Agency in each month; and if she will make a statement. [82350]

Andy Burnham: Parallel import licence applications and variations received by the Medicines and Healthcare Regulatory Agency (MHRA) in the 12 months July 2005 to June 2006 are shown in the following table:

Received	Applications	Variations
2005
July	60	25
August	177	68
September	922	549
October	499	821
November	181	730
December	192	717
2006
January	425	600
February	1,080	348
March	518	353
April	103	570
May	237	513
June	304	499

Figures for the monthly outstanding licence applications and variations waiting to be processed for the previous 12 months are not available. Pending applications are all applications that have been received by the MHRA but have not completed the licensing process. These applications are at various stages of the licensing process with the responsibility for the next step being either with the MHRA or the applicant. For the pending applications the MHRA has responsibility for approximately 48 per cent. of the licence applications and 33 per cent. of the variations. The remaining applications require an action from the applicants.

The pending application figures for July 2005 and June 2006 are:

Pending	Applications	Variations
July 2005	3,290	5,093
June 2006	5,140	6,118

The current MHRA performance in the processing of parallel import applications is not satisfactory. The large number of pending applications has been a result of increased volume of applications being received on a year on year basis as well as some severe operational problem with the new information management system introduced in August 2005.

Many system improvements affecting both the function and the speed of new information system have now been implemented and staff are more familiar with the use and new ways of working with the system. Since January 2006 the electronic portal has been available to companies for electronic submission of applications. This has major benefits as electronic submission via this system cuts down on initial administrative processing at the MHRA and facilitates more immediate and reliable exchange of correspondence on applications.

Further implemented measures such as increasing the number of assessors and out-of-hours bonus exercise for assessors are resulting in increased throughput of work. The MHRA is paying very close attention to the MHRA's performance and they are monitoring weekly so as to evaluate the effect of strategies that are in place to improve the level of service.

Independent Sector Treatment

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many representations she has received on services provided by independent sector treatment centres in the last 12 months. [70109]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Influenza Vaccine

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many production facilities in the UK are capable of producing influenza vaccine; and what their capacity is. [83369]

Caroline Flint: Novartis Vaccines is the only commercial manufacturer of flu vaccine in the United Kingdom. Capacity depends on growth of vaccine strain. This information is commercially confidential.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what level of supply of influenza vaccine doses has been secured for the winter of 2006-07; from which manufacturers this supply has been secured; and if she will make a statement. [83977]

Caroline Flint: General practitioners purchase their own supply of flu vaccine from the supplier of their choice. For 2006-07, the Department has advised manufacturers that total orders of flu vaccine to the United Kingdom are likely to be about 15 million doses. Manufacturers will know after the end of July how much vaccine will be available.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether she plans to add people with severe mental illness to the list of people automatically offered seasonal influenza vaccines. [81977]

Caroline Flint: Vaccination and immunisation (JCVI) flu sub-group reviewed all available evidence on whether patients with schizophrenia and bi-polar affective disorder are at an increased risk from influenza and should be offered vaccination.

At the last meeting, the sub-group concluded that there is no evidence at present to support a role for influenza vaccination.

Intermediate Care Beds

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many intermediate care beds there have been in the NHS in each year since 2000; and what plans she has to monitor the number of intermediate care beds situated in community or cottage hospitals. [84460]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Data on the number of intermediate care beds, the number of places in non-residential intermediate care schemes and the number of people using intermediate care are collected and are shown in the table. There are no plans to expand the data collection.

[1] Current expected total volume over the contract period. Independent sector treatment centre (ISTC) contracts stipulate the expected casemix and volume of healthcare to be completed during the five year period of the contract. Actual volumes may change depending on the casemixes that are referred.

Note:

Figures are for agreed Wave 1 ISTC contracts and exclude centrally procured contracts such as Gsupp, MRI, CWiCs etc.

Judicial Review

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what occasions an (a) individual and (b) organisation has applied for a judicial review of decisions of her Department in each year since 1997; and what the outcome was of each case where proceedings have been completed. [80484]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Maternity Provision

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health by what means the implementation by each NHS trust in England of the target that by 2009 all women will have choice over where and how to have their baby will be assessed; and what action will be taken against NHS trusts that fail to meet this target. [83682]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department is developing a maternity services delivery plan to offer a framework and guidance to support implementation of the Government's maternity commitment.

It is for local primary care trusts to determine how services are structured and commissioned to meet the needs of the local population. We will be developing tools to support and monitor delivery of the Government commitment.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent risk analysis she has undertaken of maternity episodes that start in an independent midwife-led unit and are then moved to a consultant-led obstetric unit; and if she will make a statement; [83262]

(2) if she will make a statement on the latest National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence report on maternity care, with particular reference to risk levels in independent midwife-led units. [83263]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: None. It is for local national health service maternity care providers and primary care trusts to ensure that midwife-led care is provided within a framework that enables easy and early transfer of women and babies who unexpectedly require specialist care. As with other options, the outcomes of these types of care should be regularly audited.

The Department welcomes the publication of the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence's (NICE) draft guidelines on intrapartum care. These guidelines are currently subject to consultation and we will comment on them in accordance with the normal protocol. I am confident that NICE will consider all the comments that are made by the Department in response to its consultation.

Medical Staff (Pay Increases)

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage pay rise in (a) cash and (b) real terms has been awarded to (i) doctors, (ii) dentists and (iii) nurses in each year since 1997. [63112]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The following table shows the pay uplifts awarded to nurses and to hospital doctors and dentists in cash and real terms since 1997.

Mental Health Staff

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) professional and (b) non-professional child and adolescent mental health staff are in post in each primary care trust area; and how many were in post in each relevant health area per 100,000 population in each of the previous 10 years. [79410]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is not held at primary care trust level and it is not possible to separate all of the information requested because of the way the non-medical work force census is collected.

However, the following data have been placed in the Library:

National health service hospital and community health services: non-medical staff in England by each specified area of work by strategic health authority (SHA) area as at 30 September each specified year;

Hospital and community health services: medical staff working within the child and adolescent psychiatry specialty by SHA; and NHS staff in England by each specified mental health staff group per 100,000 population as at 30 September each specified year.

Multiple Sclerosis (Yeovil)

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people have been diagnosed with multiple sclerosis in Yeovil constituency in (a) 2005 and (b) 2006. [83390]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is not available.

National Insurance

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost has been to the NHS of the annual one per cent. increase in national insurance contributions in each relevant year. [65543]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Employer's national insurance increased by one per cent, in 2003-04. This has cost the national health service an estimated £190 million in 2003-04 and £210 million in 2004-05.

The NHS has benefited from the one per cent., increase in terms of available resources many times over compared to these costs. Allocations to health authorities in 2002-03 were £41.5 billion in 2004-05. Allocations to primary care trusts had increased to £49.3 billion.

NHS Contracts

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the effect of the new NHS contracts and pay deals on (a) encouraging qualified doctors and nurses (i) to stay in and (ii) to return to the NHS and (b) attempts to create a more flexible workforce with greater scope for team working and fewer barriers between different staff groups. [79649]

Ms Rosie Winterton: For qualified doctors, there has been a fall in the three-month vacancy rate for medical and dental consultants: from 4.7 per cent. in 2003 compared to 4.4 per cent. in 2004 and 3.3 per cent. in 2005. For nurses, there has been a fall in the vacancy rate from 2.9 per cent. in 2003 compared to 2.6 per cent. in 2004 and 1.9 per cent. in 2005.

NHS employers are gathering a variety of evidence that demonstrates how national health service organisations are using the new pay systems to deliver a more flexible workforce. Some of this is already accessible on the NHS employers website. This will also feed into the integrated service improvement programme, led by strategic health authorities.

NHS Finance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of their budgets each (a) NHS trust, (b) health authority, (c) primary care trust and (d) strategic health authority spent on administration in each year since 1997-98. [66002]

Andy Burnham: Administration expenditure may vary considerably between organisations owing to the variability of the individual items which are included. In particular, health authorities included adjustments to their capital charges, which may produce negative expenditure in some cases. Administration expenditure is not therefore comparable directly between years and between organisations. However the available information has been placed in the Library.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the aggregate year end financial position of (a) all primary care trusts and (b) all NHS trusts has been in each year since 2002. [78014]

Andy Burnham: The following table shows the net year end financial position by primary care trusts (PCTs), national health service trusts and strategic health authorities (SHAs) for years 2002-03 to 2004-05, and the provisional outturn for 2005-06.

[1] Excludes foundation trusts

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment the Government have made of the effect of NHS deficits on joint working with local authorities. [78302]

Andy Burnham: The Department allocates funding to local authorities for adult social care without reference to the financial position of the national health service.

NHS and local authority social services have a duty to work in partnership to provide services which meet the health and social care needs of their local population. The NHS has a legal responsibility to provide healthcare and nursing care which social services cannot provide.

It is essential that the NHS and social services work together locally, in collaboration with other partners, and with individuals and their representatives, to deliver services in a joined-up way, tailored (wherever possible) to the needs of the individual. For example, local area agreements have proved valuable in improving the efficiency and targeting of resources, developing new ways of working and agreeing a joint approach with a range of local partners to address local issues.

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will assess the financial effects on primary care trusts of the obligation to contribute portions of their budget for 2006-07 to a risk pool. [82066]

Andy Burnham: The new strategic health authorities (SHAs) will take the lead locally in developing and implementing a service and financial strategy for managing the financial position within their locality. This will include creating local reserves to deal with local problems.

It is for SHAs locally to determine the level of contribution to reserves and the application of those reserves. The level determined will reflect local financial circumstances, but the underlying principle will be fairness. Money will not be lost to those communities, because funding will be returned to primary care trusts normally over the allocations cycle.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 21 March 2006, Official Report, column 273W, on NHS finance, (1) what the 2005-06 month 12 forecast year-end financial position was for each of the 28 previous strategic health authority (SHA) areas in total, inclusive of all constituent trusts; and what percentage of the cumulative turnover in the SHA area this represents in each case; [83931]

(2) what the 2004-05 audited year-end financial position was of each of the previous 28 strategic health authority (SHA) areas in total, inclusive of all constituent trusts; and what percentage of the cumulative SHA-area turnover this represents in each case. [84014]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is provided in the tables.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment her Department has made of the impact of NHS trust deficits on (a) rural and (b) non-rural areas; and if she will make a statement. [84625]

Andy Burnham: Our analysis of the 2005-06 financial positions of national health service organisations has shown that there is no strong relationship between financial performance and any single factor, including the extent to which areas are urban or rural.

A full report on 2005-06 NHS financial performance is available in the Library.

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether she has made an assessment of the differences in NHS trust deficits between English and Welsh local health boards. [80936]

Andy Burnham: We have analysed the financial position of the national health service in England, and the results of that analysis is available in both Library and on the Department's website. NHS deficits in Welsh trusts are a matter for the Welsh Assembly.

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what provision she makes for the rurality of NHS trusts when allocating funding. [80945]

Andy Burnham: Funding is allocated to primary care trusts on the basis of the relative needs of their populations. A weighted capitation formula is used to determine each primary care trusts target share of available resources. The weighted capitation formula is continuously overseen by the advisory committee on resource allocation (ACRA). This is an independent body, which has national health service management, general practitioner and academic members.

The formula that informed allocations up to 2007-08 takes account of access to services in rural areas, and the cost of providing emergency ambulance services. The ACRA work programme for the allocations for 2008-09 and beyond includes further consideration of rurality issues.

NHS Pension Scheme Penserver Development

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the timetable was for the NHS Pension Scheme Penserver development prior to July 2005; [79644]

(2) how the requirements of the NHS pension scheme changed during the roll-out of the Penserver development; and if she will make a statement; [79645]

Ms Rosie Winterton: During the Penserver development programme the NHS Employers Organisation entered into consultation with national health service trade unions over the modernisation of the NHS Pension Scheme. The managers of the NHS Pension Scheme administration identified this as a significant change programme and commissioned a technical solutions health check. The main recommendation from this review was that further phases of Penserver development should be combined with the overall change programme for pension scheme modernisation.

Penserver phase one was introduced in July 2003 and Penserver phase two in October 2005, as a result.

NHS Performance

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her oral statement of 7 June 2006, Official Report, column 264, on NHS performance, what assessment her Department has made of the extent to which the budget available to the Royal Cornwall Hospital Trust reflects the health needs of the local population; what assessment she has made of the reasons for its deficit; and who is responsible for tackling the deficit. [81959]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department makes revenue allocations to primary care trusts (PCTs) but not to national health service trusts. PCTs commission services from trusts, which are the providers.

In the past, a provider's income was determined by historical cost and the negotiating ability of local managers. Payment by results is a fairer and more transparent method of rewarding providers.

Under payment by results, the income of the Royal Cornwall Hospitals NHS Trust is determined by the amount of activity which takes place, paid for at the rates specified in the national tariff, and adjusted by the market forces factor. For activity which is outside the scope of the national tariff, prices are agreed locally.

It is for the NHS South West to make any such assessment, and take the necessary action in co-operation with the local NHS. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health was advised by KPMG as part of the initial assessment for turnaround in February 2006 that Royal Cornwall Hospital NHS Trust was a category one organisation, and would thus require immediate support to deliver a turnaround.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 21 June 2006, Official Report, column 1948W, on NHS performance, what adjustments she has made to the resource limits of primary care trusts and strategic health authorities under section 97 of the National Health Service Act 1977, as amended, broken down by NHS organisation. [83920]

Andy Burnham: To date there have been no adjustments made in the 2006-07 financial year relating to the transfer of surpluses between primary care trusts and strategic health authority (SHA) reserves. The total planned transfers from primary care trusts to SHA reserves for 2006-07 have yet to be finalised.

NHS Professionals

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether NHS Professionals is registered with the Commission for Social Care Inspection. [84708]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 12 July 2006]: NHS Professionals is not required to register with the Commission for Social Care Inspection.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the market share of NHS Professionals. [84709]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 12 July 2006]: The National Audit Office estimates that NHS Professionals' penetration of the acute trust nursing market was 27 per cent., in May 2006.

NHS Repairs

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will set a target to eliminate the NHS estate repair backlog by April 2011. [83056]

Andy Burnham: There are no plans to set a target to eliminate the national health service estate repair backlog as this work is the responsibility of each NHS body who make decisions locally based on their estate investment planning programme.

Non-medical Workforce Census

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which types of staff work in the community services subgroup of the NHS non-medical workforce census, published on 24 April 2006. [74065]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested concerns community matron, district nurses, health visitors, school nursing service nurses and other qualified community service nurses. In addition there are other nurses working in the community: practice nurses, community psychiatric nurses and community learning disability nurses. The total of these community nurses in September 2005 was 105,753 compared with 77,249 in 1997.

Nut Allergies

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what measures are being taken to tackle the causes of (a) nut allergy and (b) other allergies. [84266]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The underlying causes responsible for people being allergic to various substances are unknown, although it is thought genetics and environmental factors may play a part.

On 12 May 2006, the Medical Research Council (MRC) announced £2.3 million funding over three years to the MRC asthma United Kingdom centre in allergic mechanisms of asthma. The main aim of this research is to advance the understanding of allergic mechanisms in order to inform the development of new treatments.

Nutrient Profiling Model

Helen Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether she has accepted the Food Standards Agency's recommendation that its nutrient profiling model should be the basis of any further regulation of television advertising to children for health purposes. [82567]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 22 June 2006, Official Report, column 2104W.

Obesity

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of (a) children and (b) adults in (i) Yeovil constituency, (ii) Somerset and (iii) the South West are (A) obese and (B) overweight when measured by body mass index according to the Government's most recent health survey figures. [82144]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The main source of data on the prevalence of obesity and overweight among children and adults is the Health Survey for England (HSE). Data are not available in the format requested. Tables 1 to 4 set out the most recent data on the prevalence of obesity and overweight in children and adults.

Table 1 presents the data on overweight and obesity among adults in Somerset and Dorset (the strategic health authority (SHA) which contains Yeovil). The sample size of the HSE does not allow figures to be produced below SHA level, nor does it allow an SHA breakdown for children. Body mass index (BMI) is a common method of evaluating individual people to see if they are overweight or obese. A BMI between 25 to 30 is overweight and over 30 is referred to as obese.

Osteoporosis

Laura Moffatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many new DXA bone density scanners were purchased by strategic health authorities in financial year 2005-06; how many patients were referred to the private sector for bone density scans in that year; what steps have been taken to ensure recurrent funding for running costs for DXA scanners; and if she will make a statement. [81624]

Andy Burnham: The data requested in relation to the number of new dual-energy X-ray absorptiometry (DXA) bone density scanner purchased by strategic health authorities and the number of patients referred to the private sector for bone density scans, are not collected by the Department.

By December 2008, the patient pathway should be 18 weeks inclusive of out-patients, diagnostics, and in-patients waits. National health service organisations are developing local plans to achieve this pathway within the funding allocated to them. Primary care trusts (PCTs) were informed of their revenue allocations up to 2007-08 on 9 February 2005. The 2006-07 and 2007-08 revenue allocations represent £135 billion investment in the NHS, £64 billion to PCTs in 2006-07 and £70 billion in 2007-08. The Department has no plans to make additional recurrent funding available to PCTs to cover the running costs of DXA scanners.

Overseas Patients

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many overseas patients were treated in East Lancashire hospitals in each year since 2000; what the total cost of treatment given was; and how much (a) has been written off and (b) remains unpaid. [82937]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information on the number of overseas patients treated, the total cost of treatment and how much remains underpaid is not held centrally.

The table shows income from overseas patients and bad debts and claims for overseas visitors which has been abandoned. Figures relate to the East Lancashire Hospitals National Health Service Trust and its predecessor organisations.

Papilloma Virus Vaccine

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her letter to the director of Jo's Trust on 1 June 2006, what the evidential basis was for her statement that the two vaccines for human papilloma virus were not expected to be licensed until at least 2007. [81619]

Caroline Flint: Research has suggested that human papilloma virus (HPV) vaccines may provide real benefit. The Department is currently seeking expert advice on the efficiency, safety and benefits that these new vaccines may offer.

Officials have met with manufacturers of the HPV vaccines to discuss research results and time scales for the development and likely licensure of the vaccines. A joint committee on vaccination and immunisation subgroup met in May 2006 to review all the available information on HPV vaccines and will hold further meetings during 2006.

Patient Transport

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment her Department has made of the extent to which (a) notices about the hospital travel costs scheme are displayed in all patient areas and (b) information about the scheme is included in all appointment or admission letters, in accordance with departmental guidance. [80503]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department has not made an assessment of the extent to which notices about the hospital travel costs scheme (HTCS) are displayed in all patient areas and information about the scheme is included in all appointment or admission letters, in accordance with departmental guidance. It is for individual trusts to decide how best practice guidance is implemented locally.

As part of the "Our health, our care, our say" White Paper commitment to expand the HTCS to include referrals by health care professionals, we will be consulting on other issues such as alternative ways to raise awareness of the HTCS.

Primary Care Trust Referrals

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what advice she has issued to primary care trusts on their use of Referral Management Systems and Tier 2 Clinical Assessment and Treatment Systems; and what effect this has had on the number of referrals into secondary care, with particular reference to skin problems. [81315]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Current advice is contained in a letter to primary care trust chief executives in July 2005. Referrals to community-based clinical assessment services, and other such centres, should happen only where it adds genuine clinical value for patients. A copy of the letter is available in the Library.

Information about the effects of the use of such services on referrals to secondary care is not held centrally.

Pensions (NHS Personnel)

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what measures the Department has put in place to assist pension transferability of public pensions for NHS personnel. [79767]

Ms Rosie Winterton: All public service schemes pay cash equivalent transfer values to other pension schemes in respect of accrued rights in compliance with pensions law. Under the 'Fair Deal for Staff Pensions: Procurement of Bulk Transfer Arrangements and Related Issues' guidance published by HM Treasury in June 2004, there is a requirement to transfer pension rights when employments are transferred to the private sector under public private partnerships/public finance initiatives and subsequent transfers for former public servants. Under arrangements agreed between a number of mainly public sector pension schemes to facilitate transfers, known as the public sector transfer club and administered by the civil service pensions division of the Cabinet Office, public service scheme members can also transfer accrued pension rights by way of the public sector transfer club.

Pharmacy Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to ensure that pharmacists are consulted by local NHS organisations on proposed service redesigns. [84019]

Andy Burnham: It is for local organisations to decide who the appropriate people are to consult with on service redesign. All parties with an interest should be given a proper opportunity to make their views known.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations she has received from interested parties on failure of primary care trusts to commission additional and enhanced services from pharmacies under the community pharmacy contract. [84022]

Andy Burnham: We receive regular inquiries from patients, business and others interested in the provision of pharmaceutical services under the new contractual framework. It is for primary care trusts to determine, according to local needs and available funds, whether or not they commission enhanced services from community pharmacies. The next statistical bulletin for 2005-06 on general pharmaceutical services in England and Wales will contain information on the extent to which primary care trusts have commissioned these services. It is due to be published later this year.

Ports

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the provision for port health is at each of the major UK ports; why funding for port health is not ring-fenced; and if she will make a statement. [84389]

Caroline Flint: The main statutory responsibility for implementing the Public Health (Aircraft) Regulations 1979, the Public Health (Ships) Regulations 1979, and the Public Health (International Trains) Regulations 1994, often referred to as the port health regulations, rests with local authorities, including some that are specifically constituted as port health authorities.

Funding for port health is included in revenue support grant (RSG). The RSG is an unhypothecated block grant and as such local authorities can use it for any purpose. The amount provided for a particular service is not separately identifiable. This is consistent with the Government's view that local authorities are best placed to take account of local circumstances in setting their priorities for spending. The Department does not collect information on the arrangements made by each local authority with port health responsibilities, consistent with its policy of minimising burdens on local authorities.

The medical staff needed to implement the regulations are provided or commissioned for local authorities by the Health Protection Agency (HPA) or in some cases the local primary care trust. Following a review of arrangements at ports, airports and international train stations completed in March 2006, the HPA has agreed to take the overall operational lead in ensuring that there is appropriate (human) health input into arrangements for port health.

The paragraphs above cover the position in England. Responsibility for port health in Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland rests with the National Assembly for Wales, Scottish Ministers, and the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety in Northern Ireland respectively.

The existing port health regulations reflect the requirements of the International Health Regulations 1969. New International Health Regulations were adopted by the World Health Assembly in 2005 and are due to come into force generally in June 2007. They are the means by which the World Health Organization aims to prevent and control the international spread of disease in ways that are commensurate with the public health risks and which avoid unnecessary interference with international traffic and trade. The Government is working closely with the Association of Port Health Authorities, the HPA, the National Assembly for Wales, the Scottish Executive, the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety in Northern Ireland and other interested parties to consider how the International Health Regulations 2007 should be implemented in the United Kingdom.

Post Office Contracts

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for which services (a) her Department and (b) its associated public bodies hold contracts with the Post Office; and what the (i) start and (ii) termination date is of each contract. [81540]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department contracts with the Post Office for the distribution of the European Health Insurance Card application packs. This contract started on 1 September 2005 and runs to 31 March 2007.

Post Office Network Services

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what services (a) her Department and (b) its associated public bodies (i) make available and (ii) have made available in the last five years through the Post Office network; through how many outlets the service is or was made available; and how many relevant transactions were undertaken in each case in the most recent year for which figures are available. [79199]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Services which have been provided by the Post Office on the Department's behalf in the past five years are shown in the following table.

	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05		2005-06

Premature Deaths

Mr. Benyon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made by the National Patient Safety Agency in carrying out a national confidential inquiry into premature deaths among people with learning disabilities; and if she will make a statement. [83396]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The National Patient Safety Agency has now completed their scoping study and we are working with them to look at the business case for a full confidential inquiry. The Department will consider the final business case in due course.

Public Health Screening

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 27 June 2006, Official Report, column 333W, on public health screening programmes, which of the programmes listed are both fully operational and cover the whole of England. [84661]

Caroline Flint: Screening programmes for the following conditions are both fully operational and cover the whole of England: congenital hypothyroidism, cervical cancer, breast cancer and newborn hearing. The remaining programmes on the list are being developed to ensure a high quality screening service is available across England when fully implemented.

Residential and Nursing Homes

Jane Kennedy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what fees, including nursing care allowances and fees paid on a graduated basis, were paid to all providers of care in (a) nursing, (b) nursing elderly mentally infirm (EMI), (c) residential and (d) residential EMI homes in the metropolitan boroughs of (i) Liverpool, (ii) Sefton, (iii) St. Helens and (iv) Wirral in 2005-06; [81168]

(2) how many places were provided for (a) nursing, (b) nursing elderly mentally infirm (EMI), (c) residential and (d) residential EMI care by the metropolitan boroughs of (i) Liverpool, (ii) Sefton, (iii) St. Helens and (iv) Wirral in 2005-06; [81169]

(3) how many people over 65 years waited for (a) a place in (i) nursing, (ii) nursing elderly mentally infirm (EMI), (iii) residential, (iv) residential EMI care and (b) domiciliary care services in the borough of (i) Liverpool, (ii) Sefton, (iii) St. Helens and (iv) Wirral in 2005-06. [81170]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I understand from the chair of the Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI) that the information on places in nursing and care homes is not available in the precise form requested. CSCI collects statistics in respect of places for people who are elderly mentally infirm (EMI) under the two registration categories of older people with dementia (DE) and older people with mental disorder (MD).

As such, CSCI's statistics for these client groups for the metropolitan boroughs of Liverpool, Sefton, St. Helens and Wirral for the year 2005-06 are shown in the table.

Information on the number of people awaiting delivery of a care package for which eligibility is established or the numbers of people currently having their needs and eligibility assessed is not available.

Information on the level of fees negotiated locally between councils and other purchasers of care services is not available centrally.

Section 64 Grants

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the value of section 64 grants was in each year since 2004-05; and how much each (a) organisation and (b) project received in each year. [84428]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The amounts available for the section 64 general scheme of grants in the three years from 2004-05 are shown in the table.

Year of award	Value of award (£ million)
2004-05	17.80
2005-06	17.90
2006-07	17.20

Information on amounts awarded to organisations for the three years commencing 2004-05 is available on the Department's website at www.dh.gov.uk/section64

Speech and Language Therapy

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps her Department is taking to improve the delivery of speech and language therapy for young people. [84691]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: It is for primary care trusts in partnership with strategic health authorities, local authorities and other local stakeholders to determine how best to use their funds to meet national and local priorities for improving health, tackling health inequalities and modernising services. This process provides the means for addressing local needs within the health community including the provision of speech and language therapy.

We have increased the number of speech and language therapists employed in the national health service by 34.6 per cent., since 1997, and the numbers of people in training for this profession by 62 per cent., since 1999 to 2000.

Tattoos

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the cost to NHS trusts of removing tattoos in 2005-06; and if she will make a statement. [83463]

Andy Burnham: This information is not collected centrally.

Thrombosis

John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions she has had with the Healthcare Commission on including thrombosis as a measurable indicator in annual hospital checks; and if she will make a statement. [81888]

Andy Burnham: The Government response to the House of Commons Health Committee Report on the prevention of venous thromboembolism (VTE) in hospitalised patients was presented to Parliament by the Secretary of State for Health in July 2005. The response included a commitment to set up an independent expert working group which would make its recommendations by summer 2006, and that once the expert group had assessed the current guidance on VTE, the Department would ask that the Healthcare Commission look to seek conformity with this good practice.

The Department expects the report of the independent expert working group to be presented to the Chief Medical Officer shortly.

Top-slicing System

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which health trusts have received (a) a reduction and (b) an increase in funding under the top slicing system in 2006-07. [83366]

Andy Burnham: To date there have been no reductions or increases in funding relating to the transfer of surpluses between primary care trusts and strategic health authority (SHA) reserves in the 2006-07 financial year. The total planned transfers from primary care trusts to SHA reserves for 2006-07 have yet to be finalised.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when the sum taken from North East Lincolnshire primary care trust under the top slicing system will be reimbursed. [83367]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Planned transfers from primary care trusts to strategic health authority reserves for 2006-07 have yet to be finalised.

Treatment Centres

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many untoward incidents there have been at independent sector treatment centres in the last five years, broken down by (a) specialty and (b) strategic health authority region. [81159]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: As of 28 June 2006, 144 incidents had been reported to the Department by wave one independent sector treatment centre providers. Incidents are not collected centrally either by specialty or by strategic health authority. In addition to reporting incidents to the Department, providers are also required to report events to the Healthcare Commission under section 28 of the national minimum standards regulations.

Tuberculosis Inoculation (Schools)

Derek Conway: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which primary care trusts provide tuberculosis inoculation in schools within their area. [83838]

Caroline Flint: This information is not held centrally by the Department.

Waiting Times/Lists

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a)(i) mean waiting time and (ii) median waiting time as provided by data drawn from the hospital episode statistics and (b)(i) commissioner-based mean waiting time and (ii) commissioner-based median waiting time as provided by NHS organisations' monthly returns to her Department were in each year since 1988. [84016]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is shown in the table.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the (a) mean and (b) median waiting time was for an (i) in-patient and (ii) out-patient appointment in each year since 1990, broken down by region. [78015]

Andy Burnham: Data on the median and mean waiting time, broken down by strategic health authority have been placed in the Library.

The Department does not hold information on median and mean waits on an equivalent commissioner basis prior to 1995 for inpatients and 1997 for outpatients.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting time to be seen by a consultant was for people in (a) Yeovil constituency, (b) Somerset, (c) the South West and (d) England in 2005-06, broken down by clinical conditions. [83389]

Andy Burnham: Median waiting times as at 31 March 2006 by consultant specialty have been placed in the Library. Data are provided for South Somerset Primary Care Trust (PCT) (which includes Yeovil), PCTs in Somerset, and strategic health authorities in the South West.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people are on waiting lists for (a) heart, (b) lung, (c) liver and (d) kidney operations in Yeovil constituency NHS hospitals. [83811]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information is not available in the format requested. However, as waiting times information is collected by speciality, the number of people waiting for cardiothoracic surgery and urology in the South Somerset Primary Care Trust (PCT) area is shown in the following table. Figures are for March 2006.

Wasp/Bee Stings

Mark Tami: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people (a) received hospital treatment for and (b) died as a result of wasp and bee stings in each of the last five years. [71618]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is shown in the following tables. It is not possible directly to compare the two sets of data as one relates to calendar years while the other relates to financial years.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many parliamentary questions tabled to his Department were awaiting a reply on 10 July 2006; which of those had been waiting longer than (a) two and (b) three weeks for a reply; and what the reason for the delay was in each case. [85198]

Mr. Hain: From the beginning of the current parliamentary Session to 10 July 2006, 6,874 parliamentary questions have been tabled to my Department. On that date 174 of these were awaiting reply; 30 are unanswered between two and three weeks of tabling and 80 unanswered in over three weeks.

Of those over three weeks old on 10 July, most were tabled in June and many will now have been answered.

Delays in answering parliamentary questions can occur for a variety of reasons, from complications arising from the need to request information from external agencies and organisations to pressures on staff when dealing with such a large volume.

The Northern Ireland Office aims to ensure that Members receive a substantive response to their named day question on the named day and to endeavour to answer ordinary written questions within a working week of being tabled. Unfortunately, this is not always possible but my Department makes every effort to achieve these time scales.

Rape Crisis and Sexual Abuse Centre

Dr. Alasdair McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what factors underlay the decision to withdraw funding from the Rape Crisis and Sexual Abuse Centre in Belfast; and if he will make a statement. [84926]

Paul Goggins: The Government are committed to funding quality services which provide the best possible support for victims of rape and sexual violence in Northern Ireland. The latest financial verification report on the Rape Crisis and Sexual Abuse Centre (NI) Ltd. indicates that the organisation is still failing to comply with the terms and conditions to which its funding is subject. This funding will be directed into quality services for victims of rape and sexual violence.

Written Answers to Questions

PRIME MINISTER

Oxfordshire Coroner

Norman Baker: To ask the Prime Minister what meetings (a) he and (b) his officials held with the Oxfordshire Coroner between 17 July 2003 and 31 March 2004. [85519]

The Prime Minister: None.

Party Funding

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Prime Minister when he last had discussions with his Special Envoy to the Middle East on matters relating to party funding; and if he will make a statement. [85416]

The Prime Minister: I have regular meetings and discussions with ministerial colleagues and others on a wide range of subjects. Information relating to internal meetings, discussion and advice is not disclosed as to do so could harm the frankness and candour of internal discussion.

TRANSPORT

A21

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he has made a decision on the proposed A21 upgrade; and if he will make a statement. [84872]

Dr. Ladyman: We announced on 6 July our response to the advice from the South East region about its major scheme priorities to 2011. As part of this, we have accepted the region's advice to include the A21 Tonbridge Bypass to Pembury Dualling, the A21 Kippings Cross to Lamberhurst Bypass and the A21 Baldslow Junction Improvement within the programme of schemes that we expect to be taken forward in the South East in the next five years, subject to the completion of all necessary statutory procedures and compliance with the Department's scheme appraisal requirements. The Tonbridge Bypass to Pembury and Kippings Cross to Lamberhurst schemes are already included in the Highways Agency's Targeted Programme of Improvements (TPI). The Highways Agency will be developing the Baldslow Junction Improvement scheme so that it can be considered for entry into the TPI in due course. Further advice from the South East region is expected later this year on its priorities for other major schemes in the period up to 2015-16, including other improvements on the A21.

Aircraft Carbon Emissions

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the carbon emissions of (a) a typical short haul aircraft flying 1,000 miles and (b) a typical long haul aircraft flying 3,000 miles; what assessment he has made of the extent to which such emissions vary according to (i) load factors and (ii) the generation of the aircraft; and if he will make a statement. [84111]

Gillian Merron: In the context of the international debate on aircraft emissions control, the Government have supported research on inventories—the EC AERO2K project—that yield fuel consumption information. Average carbon emissions for typical journeys have not been specifically calculated, but are possible future outputs from inventory work alongside aircraft performance modelling.

Airports

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the number of people who took (a) no, (b) one, (c) two, (d) three or four and (e) five or more single or return flights (i) in total, (ii) to UK destinations, (iii) to European destinations and (iv) to worldwide destinations in the last 12 months, broken down by (A) income quintile and (B) classification of residential neighbourhoods. [84443]

Gillian Merron: The following table shows the number of flights in percentage terms taken by adults in Great Britain during the last 12 months (2005). Data are not available by income quintile, but in five broad bands as shown.

Data are not available by destination or broken down by classification of residential neighbourhoods.

Question: How many trips did you make by plane during the last 12 months. Please count outward and return flights and any transfers as one trip.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate has been made of the cost to the economy of delays of aircraft (a) take-off and (b) landing in 2005-06. [84445]

Gillian Merron: This information is not held by the Department.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the average delay was for a passenger using (a) all UK airports and (b) each UK airport in each of the last five years. [84446]

Gillian Merron: Information on punctuality for 10 UK airports is collected by the Civil Aviation Authority (CAA).

Table 2.3 of the DfT publication 'Transport Statistics Great Britain' summarises the CAA data for the years 1994-2004.

The latest available data (2002-Q1 2006) for each of the reporting airports for is published on the CAA website in 'news articles' at the following address:

http://www.caa.co.uk/docs/14/PN2506Quarter.pdf

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what guidelines are in place on the degree of glide slope for commercial and cargo planes when making an approach to land at each airport in Great Britain; [84424]

(2) what international guidelines are in place on the degree of glide slope for commercial and cargo planes when making an approach to land at an airport. [84425]

Gillian Merron: International guidance on the approach gradient and glide-path angle is published by the International Civil Aviation Organisation (ICAO) (ICAO Pans Ops DOC 8168). In designing policy and guidance, applicable at all airports in Great Britain, the Civil Aviation Authority follows this international guidance.

Approach procedures categorise aircraft by their approach speeds and not by the purpose of the flight. The guidance sets out minimum/optimum descent gradients for standard procedures but acknowledges that there may be occasions where steeper approaches might be necessary. Such procedures are normally restricted to specifically approved operators and aircraft.

UK specific information on instrument approaches to UK aerodromes is published in the Civil Aviation Publication 32 (CAP32), the UK Aeronautical Information Publication. This publication contains approach charts for each specific licensed aerodrome which include, among other matters, information on minimum safe altitudes and minimum descent heights.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many passengers used UK airports in (a) total and (b) broken down by airport in each of the last five years. [84447]

Gillian Merron: Information on terminal (arriving and departing) passengers at each UK airport is published by the Civil Aviation Authority (CAA) and available on their website at the following address:

http://www.caa.co.uk/docs/80/airport_data/2005Annual/Table_10_3_Terminal_Pax_1995_2005.pdf

Bus Services

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the proportion of (a) rural and (b) urban households which have access to a regular bus service. [85129]

Gillian Merron: The data requested are published in Table 5.9 in the Transport Statistics Bulletin 'National Travel Survey: 2004'. This publication is available at www.dft.gov.uk/transtat/personaltravel and a copy has also been deposited in the House of Commons Library.

Car Clubs

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many areas have car clubs; how many cars each has available; and what public funding each receives. [84501]

Gillian Merron: Information about car clubs is published on the CarPlus website at www.carplus.org.uk. According to this, there are 30 car clubs, with a total of 345 cars covering 40 towns and cities, and 9,124 users.

Comprehensive Spending Review

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions he has had with (a) the Treasury and (b) the Cabinet Office regarding the pre-comprehensive spending review report; and if he will make a statement. [82844]

Gillian Merron: The Secretary of State for Transport has had and will continue to have wide ranging and regular discussions with the Chief Secretary about preparations for the 2007 comprehensive spending review, as a matter of key importance to the Department for Transport's medium and long-term planning.

Disabled People (Blue Badge Scheme)

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which of the recommendations of the Disabled Persons' Transport Advisory Committee's review of the blue badge scheme which were accepted by the Department have been implemented; and if he will make a statement on progress towards those accepted recommendations which have yet to be implemented. [84348]

Gillian Merron: DPTAC made 47 recommendations about the blue badge scheme. Of those that were accepted, five required no further action. Provision for a power to inspect blue badges has been made through Section 94 of the Traffic Management Act 2004. The Commencement Order was made on 29 June 2006 with an implementation date of 29 September 2006.

Research is being carried out into the feasibility of setting up a national database of blue badge holders; the independent mobility needs of certain groups of people, such as those with autism or mental health problems, to determine whether there is a need for extending the eligibility for a badge; and examining the provision and use of parking spaces for disabled people in the central London area.

Work continues on the remaining recommendations. These include a number that require changes to regulations (such as extending the scheme to children under the age of two and those with temporary mobility impairments) and we will consult on a draft regulatory package later this year which will address 23 of the remaining recommendations.

Social Exclusion

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what research has been conducted since 2001 by or for his Department on the links between social exclusion and transport. [84688]

Gillian Merron: The Department contributed to the Social Exclusion Unit's research into the links between transport and social exclusion ('Making the Connections', published in 2003). Accessibility planning was introduced as a result of this report, and we have taken forward a programme of further research, in liaison with other Government Departments and local authorities, to inform its development and implementation. Details of the projects conducted, and associated published reports, are on the Department's website at www.accessibilityplanning.gov.uk.

Since 2001 the Department has been funding a research project implementing 103 child pedestrian training schemes ('Kerbcraft') in 64 English local authorities in areas of deprivation. Last year the Department published the research findings into understanding community severance. The Department is currently examining the extent that voluntary and community transport contributes to reducing social exclusion, and is examining travel training schemes to improve socially excluded people's awareness of and ability to access public transport safely and independently.

The Department has two research projects in progress, findings from which will be available by the end of the year. 'Understanding the travel choices, needs, behaviours and aspirations of people in later life' is a qualitative study involving 55 depth interviews with a range of older people. As a part of this study, older people have been asked about whether they have any transport-related barriers to accessing key services and social activities. In addition, a small-scale analysis of survey data on the links between fear of crime, travel choices and social exclusion is also in progress.

The Department is also about to complete a piece of work with the Plunkett Foundation and the Community Transport Association to look at the role of social enterprise in community transport. This will include a programme of work to support those community transport operators interested in becoming more self-sustaining.

The Dealing with Disadvantage initiative was launched in October 2002, and subsequently renamed the Neighbourhood Road Safety Initiative (NRSI). DfT allocated approximately £17 million to 15 local authorities to develop innovative strategies to improve road safety in their most deprived wards. The NRSI was originally envisaged to run until March 2006, but this has been extended and central government funding will now end in March 2007. The NRSI evaluation was commissioned in January 2004 from a consortium led by University College London. The evaluation is due to be completed in October 2008.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what changes in (a) legislation and (b) guidance issued by (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies there have been since the publication of the Department's report on social exclusion and the provision and availability of public transport in 2000; [84689]

(2) what changes in (a) legislation and (b) guidance issued by his Department or its agencies there have been since the publication of 'Making the Connections' final report on transport and social exclusion by the social exclusion unit in 2003. [84690]

Gillian Merron: A number of measures have been taken:

Accessibility planning

Guidance on Local Transport Plans (LTPs), issued in December 2004, required authorities to incorporate accessibility strategies in their second-round LTPs, which were submitted to the Department at the end of March 2006 and cover the period to 2010-11. At the same time, the Department published and distributed detailed guidance to local authorities on accessibility planning in LTPs.

Flexible services and the voluntary sector

In 2002, Bus Service Operators Grant (BSOG) was extended to a wide range of community transport (voluntary sector) services.

In 2002 the Department published and distributed guidance on flexible transport services, setting out the options available under current legislation.

Regulations on bus service registration were amended in February 2004 to allow "flexibly routed" and "demand responsive" bus services to be registered. At the same time these services were made eligible to receive BSOG.

Between 1998 and 2003, the rural and urban bus challenge grant schemes supported many new, innovative services aimed at improving social inclusion and accessibility.

Other Bus Initiatives

A good practice guide to assist local authorities and operators engaged in the tendering of local bus services in England was published by the Department in February 2005.

The local concessionary bus fare scheme has been extended to around one million men aged 60-64; from April 2006, off-peak local bus travel became free for older and disabled people in England; and from April 2008, a national concessionary fares scheme will be introduced for older and disabled people in England, to offer free off-peak travel on buses anywhere in the country.

Road safety

The Neighbourhood Road Safety Initiative is funding 15 councils with high child pedestrian casualty rates to deliver improvements across their deprived communities; and a research project implementing 103 child pedestrian training schemes ('Kerbcraft') in 64 English local authorities in areas of deprivation is currently being funded.

Guidance on 'Tackling the road safety implications of disadvantage' was issued at the beginning of April 2003, to all English local highway authorities.

Speed Limits

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he will publish revised guidance on Quiet Lanes following the consultation exercises conducted by his Department. [84371]

Gillian Merron: It is intended to publish the guidance as a Department for Transport circular this summer, following the publication of regulations.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Contingency Planning

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what legal measures the Government have in place to intervene in (a) private and (b) public sectors should a catastrophic breakdown of computer systems occur. [83461]

Mr. McFadden: Part 2 of the Civil Contingencies Act 2004 provides the Government with a last resort mechanism for making rapid temporary legislation (emergency regulations) for dealing with the effects of the most serious emergencies where existing legislation is not sufficient. This could include measures to intervene in the event of a catastrophic breakdown of private or public sector computer systems.

The Government expect all organisations forming part of the Critical National Infrastructure to have in place effective business continuity management arrangements.

Ministerial Meetings

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what meetings were held between (a) the Minister for the Cabinet Office and (b) Cabinet Office officials and the Oxfordshire Coroner between 17 July 2003 and 31 March 2004. [85521]

Hilary Armstrong: No meetings were held between the Minister for the Cabinet Office or Cabinet Office officials and the Oxfordshire Coroner between 17 July 2003 and 31 March 2004.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Veterinary Science (Hungary)

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what support is available in the form of student loans for UK students studying veterinary science degrees in Hungary. [85451]

Bill Rammell: Student support is not available to higher education students who are studying courses provided wholly by overseas institutions. However, support is available to eligible students who spend a year studying abroad as part of a course offered by an institution in the United Kingdom.

As a European Union national studying in another member state, a United Kingdom national who chooses to study at a Hungarian University should pay the same fees, and be entitled to the same financial assistance towards them, as a Hungarian student. Any support for living costs would be a matter for the Hungarian authorities.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Casinos

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport who the members are of the Casino Advisory Panel; and with which towns and cities they are associated through their employment. [84131]

Mr. Caborn: The members of the Casino Advisory Panel have all completed a register of interests, copies of which are available on request from the panel secretary. The panel has in place a robust system for managing any real or perceived conflicts of interest. Panel members have taken no part in the assessment of proposals from any areas with which they have a particular connection. The areas with which panel members have declared interests—whether personal or through employment—are set out in the table.

Panel member	Areas
Stephen Crow (Chair)	Bath and NE Somerset, Cardiff
Chris Collison	Mansfield, Manchester
James Froomberg	Significant connections: Brent, Falkirk, Manchester, Solihull, West Dunbartonshire, Wolverhampton. Minor connections: Glasgow, Greenwich, Hull, Middlesbrough, Milton Keynes, Sefton, Sheffield, Wakefield.
Neil Mundy	Middlesbrough, Newcastle, South Tyneside, Sunderland.
Deep Sagar	Glasgow.

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what measures have been taken to ensure that the decision-making process of the Casino Advisory Panel is transparent and objective. [84132]

Mr. Caborn: The Casino Advisory Panel is required to operate within a Framework Document and Code of Practice, which have been agreed with the Secretary of State and copies of which are available on the Casino Advisory Panel website www.culture.gov.uk/CAP.

The panel is required to provide reports to the Secretary of State at key points as it develops its recommendations. The purpose of these reports is for the panel to keep the Secretary of State in touch with its progress, and to assure the Secretary of State that the work methods the panel is adopting will result in robust and legally sustainable recommendations.

The first two such progress reports have been published on the panel's website.

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport why the Casino Advisory Panel has not kept minutes of its meetings since it was formed. [84133]

Mr. Caborn: The panel has kept minutes of all of its meetings.

Once the minutes have been agreed by the panel, copies are published on its website www.culture.gov.uk/CAP.

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if the Government will instruct the Casino Advisory Panel to reopen the shortlisting process for the allocation of casino licences. [84357]

Mr. Caborn: No. The Casino Advisory Panel operates entirely independently of Government, and it is due to make its final recommendations to Ministers by the end of 2006.

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what previous connections there have been between members of the Casino Advisory Panel and the Department. [84484]

Mr. Caborn: Professor Stephen Crow had no connections with the Department for Culture, Media and Sport prior to his appointment as Chair of the Casino Advisory Panel. I met Professor Crow on one occasion when I was a Minister at the Department for the Environment, Transport and the Regions.

Chris Collison had no previous connections with the Department prior to his appointment as a member of the panel. However, as a consultant with the London borough of Waltham Forest he represented that council on the 2012 London Olympics and Paralympics Joint Planning Advisory Team.

James Froomberg made submissions to the gambling review body, which reported to the Department, on behalf of the greyhound racing industry. As a Director of Business in Sport and Leisure (BISL) and a member of BISL's gambling sub-group, until 2003 he was a member of a DCMS industry liaison group on behalf of the broader gambling industry. As Commercial Director of British Waterways, he has had a minor involvement in that company's Olympics related activities.

As director of finance and subsequently chief executive at Tyne and Wear Development Corporation up to 1998, Neil Mundy was involved in a project funded by the Millennium Commission.

Deep Sagar had no previous connections with DCMS prior to his appointment as a member of the panel.

Command Papers

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will list the unnumbered Command Papers produced by her Department in each session since 1976; by what means (a) hon. Members and (b) members of the public can (i) inspect and (ii) obtain copies; and if she will make a statement. [81275]

Mr. Lammy: Documents which are laid before Parliament as unnumbered Command Papers are generally restricted to Explanatory Notes to Treaties, Explanatory Memorandum to Statutory Instruments and some Treasury Minutes. All other documents are published in the numbered Command Papers series.

I have deposited in the Library a list of those unnumbered Command Papers published since 1998—the date at which the Department's searchable records begin. To go back further would entail disproportionate cost.

Copies of all unnumbered Command Papers are made available via the Vote Office.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

City Regions Programme

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether any funding for the city regions programme will be redirected from rural projects. [80189]

Mr. Woolas: The Government have no plans or intention to do so.

Council Tax

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she is taking to increase council tax collection rates; and if she will make a statement. [85584]

Mr. Woolas: Council tax collection rates improved for the sixth successive year in 2005-06 with 96.8 per cent. of tax due collected in-year. Local authorities also collected another £380 million of tax owing from previous years in 2005-06.

This improvement follows an earlier joint initiative between Government and the Local Government Association to help councils improve their collection rates. The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister funded, through the local government e-innovations programme, a service for the exchange of data on council tax payers who move between authorities and an interactive council tax collection best practice guide

Councillors (Vexatious Complaints)

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what consideration has been given to providing councillors subjected to vexatious and malicious reporting to the Standards Board for England with means of redress; [84099]

(2) if she will bring forward measures to tackle the abuse of the procedures of the Standards Board for England by vexatious complainants; and if she will make a statement. [84310]

Mr. Woolas: The procedure whereby, before any investigation begins, the Standards Board seeks to filter out allegations without merit is the principal guard against vexatious and malicious reporting. The Board's current performance target is to filter out any such cases within 10 working days of receiving an allegation, and the Board's current track record on this is nine working days.

Following its review of the code of conduct, the Standards Board proposed that the current requirement in the code to report to the Board any breach of the code by other members should be deleted. This amendment would reduce the encouragement some feel this provision gives to the reporting of trivial or vexatious complaints by members. We intend to consult on a draft revised code of conduct for local authority members later this year, to include this proposal.

Local Government Finance

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much block grant was paid to each local authority in England in the most recent year for which figures are available, expressed as (a) a total amount and (b) per capita. [85508]

Mr. Woolas: A table has been placed in the Libraries of the House showing the amount of formula grant allocated to each authority in 2006-07, its mid-2006 population projection and its formula grant per head, i.e. its formula grant divided by its mid-2006 population projection. Formula grant comprises Revenue Support Grant, redistributed business rates and principal formula Police Grant.

Small Businesses

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make small business rate relief automatic for all eligible small firms. [85652]

Mr. Woolas: We have recently published a consultation paper seeking views on proposals to relax the requirement for ratepayers to make an application for small business rate relief every year. The aim is to enable ratepayers to make just one application for relief between the five-year revaluations of non-domestic rateable values, provided the circumstances relating to the initial application remain unchanged. Comments are invited on the proposals in the consultation paper by 28 July.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the Government's budget was for publicising small business rate relief in (a) 2004-05 and (b) 2005-06. [85653]

Mr. Woolas: There was no specific budget to publicise the small business rate relief scheme as it was included in the general publicity campaign for the revaluation of non-domestic properties that took effect from April 2005.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the take-up rate of small business rate relief in each year since its introduction; and what the estimated cost is in each year. [85655]

Mr. Woolas: On the basis of returns completed by local authorities before the start of each financial year, an estimated £390 million is expected to be claimed in small business rate relief for 2005-06 and £224 million for 2006-07. Applications for small business rate relief may be made up to six months after the end of the financial year to which the application relates, or six months from notification of an alteration to a rateable value that makes the hereditament eligible for relief. Details of the amount actually claimed for 2005-06 are not yet available.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much has been raised by the larger business rate multiplier on medium and large firms to fund small business rate relief in each year since its introduction. [85706]

Mr. Woolas: On the basis of returns completed by local authorities before the start of each financial year, an estimated £355 million is expected to be raised from those businesses not eligible for the relief for 2005-06 and an estimated £316 million for 2006-07. Details of the amount actually raised from those businesses for 2005-06 are not yet available.

The annual adjustment of the non-domestic rating multipliers provides the opportunity to address any difference between the amount of small business rate relief granted to qualifying properties and the amount raised from those businesses not eligible for the relief.

TREASURY

Cancer and Stroke Deaths

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the most recent rate of (a) cancers and (b) stroke was in (i) Gateshead, East and Washington, West, (ii) the North East and (iii) England. [84678]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 13 July 2006:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what the most recent rate is of (a) cancers and (b) stroke was in (i) Gateshead, East and Washington, West, (ii) the North East and (iii) England. (84678)

(a) Cancers—incidence

The latest available rates for newly diagnosed cases of cancer (incidence) are for the year 2003. Incidence rates are not available centrally for parliamentary constituencies.

Registration rates per 100,000 population, by site and sex, for (ii) the North East and (iii) England for the year 2003 are available in Table 5 of the Annual Reference Volume, Cancer statistics: Registrations, Series MB1. These are available on the National Statistics website:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk=8843&Pos=1&ColRank=2&Rank=272

Cancer incidence rates for all malignant cancers excluding non-melanoma skin cancer (nmsc) for 2003 are given in Table 1 below for (i) Gateshead and Sunderland, (ii) the North East and (iii) England

(b) Stroke—incidence

There is no complete register of stroke cases. Information is available centrally on emergency admission to hospital from the NHS Hospital Episode System (HES), and on death registrations.

Figures on emergency admissions to hospital for strokes can be found on the Clinical and Health Outcomes Knowledge Base website: http://www.nchod.nhs.uk/ (Table reference numbers: 10C_5281SR7CM_04-V2 (males) 10C_5281SR7CF_04-V2 (females)). Figures are available for England, Government Office Regions, Strategic Health Authorities, Local Authorities and Primary Care Organisations. The latest year for which data are available is for the financial year 2003/04.

(c) Cancers and Stroke—mortality

Mortality rates for parliamentary constituencies cannot be provided because population estimates are not available for these areas. Figures in Table 2 below are provided for the local authorities making up the requested constituency.

The introduction of ICD-10 for coding cause of death in England and Wales in 2001 means that data for cancer are not completely comparable with data for years before this date.

The effect of the change in classification in 2001 on deaths from these causes is described in a report published in May 2002: "Office for National Statistics. Results of the ICD-10 bridge coding study, England and Wales, 1999. Health Statistics Quarterly 14 (2002), 75-83".

Table 1—Incidence rates[1] per million population for all malignant cancers[2] registered in Gateshead and Sunderland local authorities, the North East Government office region and England, 2003

	All cancers excluding nmsc
Gateshead	4,131
Sunderland	3,927
North East	3,941
England	3,572

[1] Rates per million population standardised to the European Standard Population.
[2] 'All malignant cancers' are defined by codes C00-C97 excluding non-melanoma skin cancer code C44 in the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD 10).

Table 2—Death rates[1] for cancer and stroke[2] for the local authorities of Gateshead and Sunderland, the North East Government office region and England[3],2004[4]

	Cancer	Stroke
Gateshead	2,032	618
Sunderland	1,995	727
North East	2,074	646
England	1,793	573

[1] Rates per 1,000,000 population standardised to the European Standard Population.
[2] The cause of death was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10), 2004. The codes used are: "Cancer—ICD10 C00-C97 & Stroke—ICD10 160-169". Deaths were selected using the original underlying cause.
[3] Usual residents of this area. The local authority of Gateshead comprises part of Gateshead, East and Washington, West constituency, the whole of Blaydon constituency plus parts of Jarrow and Tyne Bridge constituencies. The local authority of Sunderland comprises part of Gateshead, East and Washington, West constituency plus the whole of Houghton and Washington, East Sunderland, North and Sunderland, South constituencies.

Comprehensive Spending Review

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to publish the pre-comprehensive spending review report; and if he will make a statement. [82847]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Gentleman to what the Chancellor of the Exchequer said on the Floor of the House yesterday.

Corporation Tax

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what annual average amount of additional tax is expected to be paid as a consequence of the removal of the 0 per cent. starting rate of corporation tax by (a) the 720,000 companies expected to be affected by this change and (b) the 870,000 companies which make less than £10,000 annual profit. [70757]

John Healey [holding answer 12 May 2006]: The annual median increase for the 720,000 companies affected is given in the Budget 2006 Regulatory Impact Assessment (paragraph 1.23). http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/ria/ria-corporation-tax.pdf. There are 370,000 companies with annual profits of up to £10,000, and their increase is included in the above.

Data Protection

Mr. Gray: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2006, Official Report, column 1620W, on data protection, whether all redactions made to documents in the case of subject access requests to HM Revenue and Customs are effected by the central team rather than within the sub-offices. [84938]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 13 July 2006]: All redactions made to documents in the case of subject access requests are made by the officer holding the data before it is forwarded to the central team. Any appeal against the non-disclosure of data as a result of redaction is considered by the central team.

Departmental Assets

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the proceeds were from the sale of assets of his Department in each of the last five financial years. [84707]

John Healey: The proceeds from the sale of assets are disclosed in the Department's Resource Accounts, specifically the Cash Flow Statement's supporting notes. These can be found on the Treasury website at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/about/resourceaccounts/resource accounts_index.cfm

The 2005-06 Accounts were laid on 29 June 2006, are due to be published by 18 July 2006 and will be available on the website by the end of July 2006.

Environmental Investment Allowance

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many companies have qualified for the 100 per cent. first-year investment allowance for moving from environmentally unfriendly to environmentally friendly technologies and processes in each year since 1999. [84818]

John Healey: All businesses can claim 100 per cent. enhanced capital allowances (EGA) on their qualifying spending on designated energy-saving (introduced in 2001) and water efficient (introduced in 2003) technologies and low carbon dioxide emission cars (introduced in 2002).

The total number of companies that ticked a box on their Corporation Tax returns to show a claim to EGAs is detailed as follows:

	Number of companies claiming EGAs on their corporation tax return form[1]
2001-02	60
2002-03	848
2003-04	1,549
2004-05[2]	1,754

[1] These numbers do not include claims to capital allowances made or amended after a company has sent in its corporation tax return for (CT600).
[2] Information for 2004-05 is not yet complete.
Note:
There are three EGA schemes for i) energy-saving technology, ii) low carbon dioxide emission cars and natural gas and hydrogen refuelling equipment and iii) water-efficient technology.

HM Revenue and Customs

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the total value was of contraband seized by HM Customs and Revenue in Wales in each year since 2003. [84593]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 11 July 2006]: The estimated value of goods seized by HM Revenue and Customs in Wales since 2003 is:

	Total (£)
2003-04	850,598
2004-05	703,627

These figures do not include any vehicles that may have been used to transport the goods and which may have been seized. Nor do they include any VAT or duty due on the goods.

Figures for 2005-06 have not yet been published.

Tim Farron: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when decisions are expected to be made about the long-term future of the HM Revenue and Customs office in Kendal; who will make those decisions; and what options are being considered. [84844]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 13 July 2006]: HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) have no current plans to alter their presence in Kendal.

Decisions about how and where HMRC work is carried out are taken by the Board of HMRC in consultation with Treasury Ministers.

Income Tax

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many income tax payers in each London borough had an annual income of less than £7,185. [83680]

Dawn Primarolo: The number of income tax payers in each London borough with total annual income of less than £7,185 is set out in the following table.

London borough	Number of taxpayers with total annual income less than £7,185 in 2003-04 (Thousand)	95 per cent. confidence interval lower limit (Thousand)	95 per cent. confidence interval upper limit (Thousand)
Barking and Dagenham	7	5	9

[1]Sample size too small to provide a reliable estimate.

These estimates have been obtained from the Survey of Personal Incomes 2003-04 and are the latest available.

Confidence intervals have been provided due to small sample sizes. A 95 per cent. confidence interval means that if we were to take repeated samples, then 95 per cent. of the time the number of taxpayers with total income less than £7,185 per annum, would be between the lower and upper confidence interval ranges indicated in the table.

Pensioner Deaths

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of pensioners in whose death (a) subnormal body temperature or hypothermia and (b) malnutrition or deprivation of food was a primary cause in each year since 1997, broken down by (i) rural and (ii) non-rural areas; and if he will make a statement. [84621]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 13 July 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking what estimate has been made of the number of pensioners in whose death (a) subnormal body temperature or hypothermia and (b) malnutrition or deprivation of food was a primary cause in each year since 1997, broken down by (i) rural and (ii) non-rural areas. I am replying in her absence. (84621)

The latest year for which figures are available is 2004.

Most routine mortality statistics are based on a single cause for each death, the underlying cause of death which is defined by the World Health Organisation as:

(a) the disease which initiated the train of events directly leading to death; or

(b) the circumstances of the accident or violence which produced the fatal injury.

Hypothermia and deprivation of food can never be the underlying cause of death according to this definition. However, figures are available for deaths where hypothermia or 'effects of hunger' were mentioned on the death certificate.

Information is available on deaths where malnutrition was the underlying cause of death.

Table 1 below shows the number of deaths where the underlying cause was malnutrition, and Table 2 shows the number of deaths where hypothermia or 'effects of hunger' were mentioned on the death certificate, excluding those deaths mentioning 'effects of hunger' where malnutrition was the underlying cause. Figures are for deaths occurring in each year from 1997 to 2004. As retirement age differs for males and females, tables are provided separately for deaths of women aged 60 and over and men aged 65 and over.

A breakdown of the figures requested by rural and non-rural areas is not available.

Table 1: Number of deaths where malnutrition[1] was the underlying cause of death, men and women of pensionable age, England and Wales, 1997 to 2004[2]

	Men aged 65 and over	Women aged 60 and over
1997	15	28
1998	13	31
1999	12	23
2000	15	18
2001	18	30
2002	23	30
2003	19	38
2004	14	29

[1] Cause of death was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) codes 260-263 for the years 1997 to 2000, and the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes E40-E46 from 2001 onwards.
[2] Figures are for deaths occurring in each calendar year.

Table 2: Number of deaths where hypothermia[1] or 'effects of hunger'[2] was mentioned on the death certificate, men and women of pensionable age, England and Wales, 1997 to 2004[3]

	Hypothermia		'Effects of hunger'
	Men aged 65 and over	Women aged 60 and over	Men aged 65 and over	Women aged 60 and over

2002	50	81	2	1
2003	42	98	1	0
2004	48	77	1	2

[1] Cause of death was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) codes N991.6 for the years 1997 to 2000, and the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes T68 from 2001 onwards.
[2] Cause of death was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Ninth Revision (ICD-9) codes N994.2 for the years 1997 to 2000, and the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes T73.0 from 2001 onwards, excluding deaths where the underlying cause was malnutrition.
[3] Figures are for deaths occurring in each calendar year.

Personal Debt

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the total amount of personal debt in the UK was in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement; [82901]

(2) what the total amount of personal debt was for people aged between 16 and 24 in each year since 1997 in the UK; and if he will make a statement; [82902]

(3) how many and what proportion of personal debt is due to student loans for those aged between 18 and 29 years in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement; [82911]

(4) what the average amount of credit card debt per person aged between 16 and 24 years was in (a) 2005-06 and (b) each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement; [82913]

(5) what the average amount of unsecured debt has been for people aged between 16 and 24 years in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [82915]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 13 July 2006:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Questions on personal debt in the UK. (82901, 82902, 82911, 82913 & 82915)

We are unable to provide levels of personal debt by age group and do not currently publish data on personal debt split by student loans or by credit card debt.

The available information is shown in the table below.

	Total personal debt[1] (end-year) (£ million)	Secured personal debt[2] (end-year) (£ million)	Unsecured personal debt[3] (end-year) (£ million)	Other debt[4] (end-year) (£ million)	Average unsecured personal debt[5] (end-year) (£ million)

When using Table 64 of United Kingdom Economic Accounts (web link given below) the database identifiers are [1] NNPP, [2] NNRP, [3] NNRG and NNRK, [4] NNPP-NNRP-NNRG-NNRK [5] NNRG plus NNRK/MGSL.

Note:
For the denominator in the calculation for the average unsecured personal debt the series used is population aged 16 plus (database identifier MGSL).

The balance sheet for the household sector provides estimates of the total assets and liabilities held by households. These measures are produced and published only in cash terms. These are the only measures of household sector debt that the ONS publishes.

There is no standard approach to the presentation of debt information beyond the National Accounts. Some external users construct measures of debt as a share of income, as a guide to affordability. For example the Bank of England sometimes look at household debt as a share of gross households' disposable income. A time series of these figures is shown in the table below.

	Total personal debt[1] (end-year) as a percentage of gross disposable income	Secured personal debt[2] (end-year) as a percentage of gross disposable income	Unsecured personal debt[3] (end-year) as a percentage of gross disposable income
1997	104.8	76.7	15.8
1998	107.3	78.2	16.7
1999	110.9	80.9	17.9
2000	114.2	83.2	19.3
2001	118.1	86.0	20.5
2002	130.2	94.4	22.3
2003	141.4	104.4	22.1
2004	153.1	114.4	24.0
2005	159.3	120.6	24.1

When using Table 64 of United Kingdom Economic Accounts (web link given below) the database identifiers are [1] NNPP [2] NNRP [3] NNRG plus NNRK

Note:

For the denominator in the three calculations for debt as a proportion of gross household disposable income the database identifier is QWND. Table A38 of United Kingdom Economic Accounts (web link given below).

The estimates for total personal debt, secured personal debt and unsecured debt (households' total financial liabilities other than secured debt), are national accounts series for the combined household and non-profit institutions serving households (NPISH) sectors. Estimates for households alone are not available. NPISHs are legal entities which are principally engaged in the production of non-market services for households and whose main resources are voluntary contributions by households. For example, charities; relief and aid organisations; educational establishments; trade unions; professional associations, political parties and religious organisations, and sports clubs and associations.

The estimate for gross disposable income is a national accounts series which represents the income available to the household sector in a given period for spending on goods and services, for saving or for investing.

Further data are available for household sector financial assets and liabilities from table A64 in United Kingdom Economic Accounts which is available at the following address: http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk=1904&Pos=&ColRank=1&Rank=422.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the (a) total and (b) average personal debt in (i) rural areas and (ii) non-rural areas was in the last period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement; [84618]

(2) what the average personal (a) unsecured debt and (b) total debt was in (i) rural areas and (ii) non-rural areas as a percentage of income in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement; [84619]

(3) what the average personal (a) unsecured debt and (b) total debt was among those working in the agricultural sector in the last period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [84620]

John Healey: The information falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 13 July 2006:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Questions on personal debt in the UK. (84618, 84619, 84620)

We are unable to provide levels of average personal debt by region or split by sector.

The available information is shown in the following tables.

The estimates of debt and income are national accounts series for the combined household and non-profit institutions serving households (NPISH) sectors. Estimates for households alone are not available. NPISHs are legal entities which are principally engaged in the production of non-market services for households and whose main resources are voluntary contributions by households. Examples of NPISHs are: charities; relief and aid organisations; educational establishments; trade unions; professional associations, political parties and religious organisations, and sports clubs and associations.

Plastic Bags

Lynne Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 4 May 2006, Official Report, column 1743W, on plastic bags, if he will carry out a follow-up assessment to that carried out in December 2002 of the longer-term impact of the operation of the Irish plastic bag tax since its introduction in March 2002. [84520]

John Healey: There are no current plans to re-assess the Irish plastic bag tax.

Somalia

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to include a self-identification question for Somali people in the next census. [84948]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the national statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 14 July 2006:

As National Statistician and Registrar General for England and Wales I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what plans there are for the inclusion of a self-identification question for Somali people in the next census. (84948)

We are currently undertaking a programme of consultation and testing on ethnicity and national identity. It will not be possible to confirm what questions are to be included in the 2011 Census until the consultation and testing programme is complete and formal approval is given by Parliament in 2010. There are currently no plans to include a tick-box for 'Somali' but people who wish to identify themselves as Somali are likely to be able to do so through a 'write in' response option. A White Paper setting out the Government's proposals is scheduled to be published in Autumn 2008.

A report on the findings of the initial consultation exercise was published on 8 March 2006—'The 2011 Census: Assessment of initial user requirements on content for England and Wales' and can be found on the National Statistics website at: http://www.statistics.gov.uk/about/consultations/2011Census_response.asp

Tax Credits

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the value is of tax credit overpayments written off for each quarter since 2001. [76481]

Dawn Primarolo: End of year adjustments leading to an overpayment of tax credits for 2003-04 were only finally identified after April 2004 when HMRC started finalising awards for that year and the department began considering disputed overpayments in June 2004.

For the value of tax credits overpayments written off between June 2004 and March 2006, I refer the hon. Member to the answers I gave him on 4 July 2005, Official Report, column 101W, 10 October 2005, Official Report, column 282W, 27 October 2005, Official Report, column 497W, 15 November 2005, Official Report, column 1214W, 18 April 2006, Official Report, column 567W and 5 June 2006, Official Report column 189W, and to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Wycombe (Mr. Goodman) on 26 January 2006, Official Report, columns 2249W-250W.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will publish estimates of tax credit fraud and error for 2004-05; and if he will make a statement. [78152]

Dawn Primarolo: The HMRC publication "Child and Working Tax Credits. Error and Fraud Statistics 2003-04" was published on 11 July 2006, and is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/about/random-enquiry.pdf

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people have been affected by errors in administration of tax credits in each of the last three years. [79481]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is not available.

For HM Revenue and Custom's performance against its accuracy targets relating to tax credits for 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06, I refer the hon. Lady to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Laws) on 19 June 2006, Official Report, column 1626W.

Anne Main: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his assessment is of the sensitivity with which the tax credit computer system is used when dealing with a surviving spouse; and if he will make a statement. [81522]

Dawn Primarolo: HMRC's guidance for staff handling tax credits claims involving a claimant who dies can be found at:

www.hmrc.gov.uk/manuals/ntcmanual/changes_cofc/ntc0170032.htm

Teenage Pregnancies

Mr. Evans: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many girls under the age of 16 years (a) became pregnant and (b) gave birth in the Ribble Valley constituency in each of the last 10 years, broken down by age. [84757]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 13 July 2006:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many girls under the age of 16 years (a) became pregnant and (b) gave birth in the Kibble Valley constituency in each of the last 10 years, broken down by age. (84757)

Numbers of conceptions in Ribble Valley county district for the years 1995-2004 are shown in the following table. Figures for 2004 are provisional.

Information on conceptions is routinely published for local authorities and strategic health authorities. Figures cannot be provided by parliamentary constituency because of the risk of disclosing individual's information due to small differences with local authority boundaries.

ONS does not publish figures by single year of age below the age of 16 by either local or health authority and also does not release figures for individual years because of the risk of disclosing individual's information.

Numbers of livebirths in Ribble Valley county district for the years 1995-2004 are shown in the following table.

The total number of births to girls aged under 16 in each year is too small to be released because of the risk of disclosing individual's information. Therefore total number of births in the 10 year period (1995-2004) is given in the following table. Figures cannot be broken down by single year of age, for the same reason.

Birth figures cannot be provided for Ribble Valley parliamentary constituency for the same reason as provided for conceptions.

1995-2004[1]	Number
Conceptions	39
Livebirths	7

[1]Conceptions for 2004 are provisional.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many teenage pregnancies there were in (a) Southampton, (b) Portsmouth, (c) Hampshire and (d) the combined area of the three in each year since 1990; and what the teenage pregnancy rate was in each case. [84342]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 13 July 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking what the (a) number and (b) rate of teenage pregnancy was in (i) Southampton, (ii) Portsmouth,(iii) Hampshire and (iv) the combined area of the three in each year since 1997. I am replying in her absence. (84342)

Available figures are estimates of the number of pregnancies that resulted in a live birth, stillbirth or termination.

Teenage conception numbers and rates for Southampton UA, Portsmouth UA, Hampshire County and for the combined area of the three from 1997 to 2004 (the most recent year for which figures are available) are given in the following table. Figures for 2004 are provisional.

Teenage conceptions: numbers and rates[1] for Southampton UA, Portsmouth UA and Hampshire county, 1997-2004

Valuation Office Agency

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much the Valuation Office Agency has spent on its automated valuation model and associated computer databases and training. [83006]

Mr. Woolas: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 9 January 2006, Official Report, columns 268-69W. Work on maintaining the automated valuation model (AVM) and the associated computer database is ongoing. Expenditure on this, and the training undertaken, is not recorded separately by the Valuation Office Agency and cannot be provided without disproportionate cost.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his Oral Statement of 10 July 2006, Official Report, columns 1131-48, on Afghanistan (troop levels), if he will estimate the cost of the deployment of the additional force to Helmand Province; and whether the resources to fund the cost will be added to the Special Reserve established for the three-year Afghan deployment. [85111]

Des Browne: The deployment and equipping of additional forces to the Helmand Province is estimated at £50 million, broken down into £30 million for the deployment and £20 million for the purchase of Urgent Operational Requirements. This sum has been authorised by HM Treasury as a charge against the Special Reserve in 2006-07.

Body Armour

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what steps have been taken since September 2004 to modify enhanced combat body armour for those providing top cover on Snatch vehicles; [84532]

(2) what steps have been taken since September 2004 to modify enhanced combat body armour to provide additional protection to (a) the neck and (b) the armpit area. [84533]

Des Browne: Enhanced combat body armour (ECBA), comprises of a waistcoat cover with a para-aramid filler plus two ceramic plates. It is issued to all troops deployed on operations. The Ministry of Defence has also developed a new type of body armour to provide better protection for those undertaking Top Cover Sentry and driving duties on operations in a range of vehicles including Snatch. The Driver and Top Cover Sentry Protection Systems provide the same levels of protection as ECBA and additional protection for vulnerable areas of the upper arm and neck. In addition, a further body armour called Osprey has been developed for use by foot patrols. This also provides additional neck and armpit protection as well as other capability enhancements.

Over the past two years, we have spent £120 million improving protection for ground forces in Iraq in response to the evolving threat from Impromised Explosive Devices.

Data Protection

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the effect of the Data Protection Act 1998 on the ability of (a) the Department, (b) the Veterans Agency, (c) veterans' organisations and charities, (d) regimental, naval and RAF associations and (e) the NHS effectively to co-ordinate and transfer casework; and if he will make a statement. [84839]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 13 July 2006]: The Ministry of Defence takes its responsibilities under the Data Protection Act 1998 very seriously, and has a network of Data Protection Officers across the Department to ensure compliance. The Act provides a framework for the protection of personal data, but it also allows the sharing of such data where the processing is necessary. This requires a balance between the legitimate interests of the Ministry of Defence or the third parties to whom the data is disclosed, and the rights, freedoms and legitimate interests of individuals. Each case needs to be considered on its own merits, but it is certainly possible to share and co-ordinate personal data where it is warranted, subject to the relevant conditions set out in the Act.

Iraq

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make an assessment of the morale of troops stationed in Iraq. [82569]

Des Browne: The armed forces conduct Continuous Attitude Surveys, but it is not possible to extract from that data results specific to Iraq/Operation Telic.

Joint Personnel Administration

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 3 July 2006, Official Report, column 711W, on Joint Personnel Administration, how many personnel were (a) overpaid and (b) underpaid in each month since the system was initiated; and how many of those are awaiting correction. [84590]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 12 July 2006]: There have been a number of different causes of error to pay since the introduction of JPA. Some personnel have been subjected to more than one of those causes and these errors have been aggregated to indicate whether individuals were overpaid or underpaid on a given month. Of those 6,639 incorrectly paid in April, 70 per cent. were overpaid whereas 30 per cent. were underpaid. In May of those 1,175 incorrectly paid 34 per cent. were overpaid and 66 per cent. underpaid. The June figures are still being analysed for accuracy, but early indications are that of 458 incorrectly paid, 177 (40 per cent.) were overpaid and 258 underpaid.

Low-flying Activity

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what operational low-flying activity took place in the (a) Highlands of Scotland tactical training area and (b) south west of Scotland and the Anglo Scottish border tactical training area in each year between 1998-99 and 2004-05. [84729]

Mr. Watson: I refer the hon. Member to the answers I gave on 5 June 2006, Official Report, columns 260-61W, and on 13 June 2006, Official Report, column 1084W.

Oxfordshire Coroner

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what meetings were held between (a) Ministers and (b) officials from his Department and the Oxfordshire coroner between 17 July 2003 and 31 January 2004. [85522]

Des Browne: No meetings were held between Ministry of Defence Ministers or officials and the Oxfordshire coroner between 17 July 2003 and 31 January 2004 in connection with Dr. Kelly. Liaison between the coroner and Government on this matter was through the Lord Chancellor's Department.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many parliamentary questions tabled to his Department were awaiting a reply on 10 July 2006; which of those had been waiting longer than (a) two and (b) three weeks for a reply; and what the reason for the delay was in each case. [85202]

Mr. Watson: The information is not held in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Punishments

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps he is taking to prevent unauthorised or informal punishments of soldiers by non-commissioned officers. [85013]

Mr. Watson: There are two systems to deal with minor breaches of behaviour. These are "summary dealing" using disciplinary powers under the Army Act 1955 and "administrative action" using Army General and Administrative Instruction (AGAI) 67, both of which provide a range of punishments or sanctions. These sanctions and punishments are carried out in a properly regulated manner and both systems have well established appeals procedures.

Unauthorised or informal punishments within the Army are not lawful. Unofficial or unauthorised punishments may in themselves constitute criminal behaviour and would be investigated and dealt with accordingly. The administration of informal punishments could constitute harassment or bullying and all soldiers are made fully aware of the serious consequences of such action as well as being provided with well publicised facilities to complain.

Royal Ordnance

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he plans to make additional contributions to the Royal Ordnance pension scheme to ensure that the scheme assets are sufficient to provide member benefits accrued prior to the incorporation of Royal Ordnance plc. [70033]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 11 May 2006]: I consider that sufficient funds were transferred to the Royal Ordnance pension scheme at the time of privatisation and I have no plans to make direct additional contributions to the scheme.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 27 April 2006, Official Report, column 1274W, on pension schemes, whether the Crown guarantee to the Royal Ordnance pension scheme referred to by the Comptroller and Auditor General in his report Ministry of Defence: Sale of Royal Ordnance plc. (HC 162, 1987/88) still applies. [70145]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 11 May 2006]: The "guarantee" given at paragraph 5 of the National Audit Report (HC 162, 1987/88) was an undertaking on benefit design for (then) current employees. It was not a guarantee for future financing of the scheme.

Services Sound and Vision Corporation

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) terms of reference and (b) codes of practice govern the relationship between his Department and (i) Services Sound and Vision Corporation and (ii) its subsidiary British Forces Broadcasting Service. [85066]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 13 July 2006]: The Services Sound and Vision Corporation (SSVC) is a private company limited by guarantee and registered charity, with which the Ministry of Defence has contracted to provide a number of services related to the entertainment and the provision of training material for British Service personnel around the world. British Forces Broadcasting (BFBS) is not a subsidiary of SSVC but the designation of some of the services operated on behalf of the MOD by SSVC and has been in use with the MOD since the early days of Service broadcasts.

Sickness Absence

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 5 June 2006, Official Report, column 263W, on sickness absence, how many staff in his Department have had two or more periods of sick leave of less than five days in two or more of the years for which he has provided figures. [84038]

Mr. Watson: There were 20,150 non-industrial staff with two or more absences of less than five days during two or more of the years reported on in my answer of 5 June 2006. Of these non-industrials, 8,430 had two or more periods of absence of less than five days during all three years reported on.

There were 2,600 industrial staff with two or more absences of less than five days during two of the years reported on. No industrial staff had two or more periods of absence of less than five days during all three years.

Royal Fleet Auxiliaries, Locally Engaged Civilians and Trading Fund staff are excluded from these figures.

Veterans

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps he has taken to assist organisations that support veterans to work more effectively together; and if he will make a statement. [84829]

Mr. Watson: As part of the Government programme for veterans, we have put in place consultative machinery, and work strands built on joint working, that encourage effective co-operation among those who support the country's veterans. These provide opportunities for Government Departments, the devolved Administrations and ex-service organisations to exchange views and to work more effectively together to deliver the best support possible.

The Veterans Agency has run a number of successful regional conferences on the theme of 'Reaching Out to Veterans'. These bring together delegates from a range of public and voluntary sector organisations in order to increase awareness of veterans' issues among service providers, and of the role of the Veterans Agency and ex-service charities in supporting veterans.

MOD is also working with partners from the public, private and voluntary sector on co-operative projects in support of veterans such as Project Compass, an initiative to prevent and tackle the cycle of homelessness and unemployment among socially excluded ex-service personnel. As more generally, our aim is to encourage and facilitate joint working among ex-service charities.

War Crimes

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions (a) he, (b) other Ministers in his Department and (c) senior officers and civil servants have had with the Attorney-General regarding the preferment of war crime and other charges against members of the Queen's Lancashire Regiment. [84392]

Des Browne. Ministers, senior officers and civil servants have meetings with the Attorney-General on a range of matters.

Decisions on whether to prosecute Army personnel and, if so, what charges are to be faced is a matter for the Army Prosecuting Authority. No Ministers or MOD officials outside the Army Prosecuting Authority are involved in any way in these decisions.

War Pensioners

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps he is taking to ensure that (a) war pensioners, (b) GPs and (c) consultants are informed that war pensioners may receive priority treatment on the NHS. [85309]

Mr. Watson: Notifications of all new and revised war pensions awards include details of the arrangements for NHS priority treatment in Great Britain. Information is also published at www.veteransagency.mod.uk. Priority treatment applies post-service to the condition or conditions for which an award is made under the war pension scheme or armed forces compensation scheme. Standing guidance on the right of GB based war pensioners to receive priority treatment in NHS hospitals is also circulated to senior managers of trusts, and health boards; they are asked to ensure that relevant clinical staff are aware of the provision.

Welfare Services

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which male models or other personalities have been used to advertise welfare services to members of the armed forces. [83916]

Mr. Watson: As far as we can ascertain, the Ministry of Defence has never employed a male model to advertise welfare services to the armed forces.

We are however, grateful to popular celebrity Nell McAndrew for giving her time to promote the confidential support line available to all members of our armed forces.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Child Support

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which benefits and allowances include an element for child support; and what the value of the increases awarded for each additional child is in each case. [83806]

Mr. Plaskitt: Where appropriate, child dependency increases are paid with carer's allowance; incapacity benefit; industrial death benefit; severe disablement allowance; state retirement pension; widowed mothers allowance; widowed parents allowance; and unemployability supplement.

The current rate of child dependency increase for all these benefits is £11.35 for each child. However, the Overlapping Benefits Regulations provide for the rate of child dependency increases to be adjusted where the increase is payable for the eldest eligible child for whom child benefit is also payable. In such cases, the weekly rate of the increase is reduced by the differential between the rate of child benefit payable for the oldest eligible child and that payable for any subsequent child.

Crisis Loans

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many crisis loans were granted in Crewe and Nantwich constituency in (a) 2003-04, (b) 2004-05 and (c) 2005-06; and how many have been granted in 2006-07. [83338]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available in the format requested. Such information as is available is in the following table.

Crisis loans for Cheshire Jobcentre Plus district

	Number of initial awards
2003-04	12,130
2004-05	11,320
2005-06	14,230
2006-07 to 30 June	3,290

Notes:
1. Data are not available by parliamentary constituency, but only by Jobcentre Plus district.
2. Crewe and Nantwich parliamentary constituency is in Cheshire and Warrington Jobcentre Plus district, which was known as Cheshire Jobcentre Plus district until 31 March 2006.
3. Figures have been rounded to the nearest 10.

DWP Social Fund Policy, Budget and Management Information System.

Family Benefits

Rosemary McKenna: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of families in (a) Cumbernauld, Kilsyth and Kirkintilloch East and (b) Scotland are claiming (i) child benefit and (ii) income support. [83903]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available in the format requested.

Child benefit is administered by HM Revenue and Customs, and is a matter for my right hon. Friend, the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

As at November 2005, there were 3,490 people in the Cumbernauld, Kilsyth and Kirkintilloch East parliamentary constituency, and 222,050 people in Scotland in receipt of income support.

Financial Inclusion

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department is taking to promote financial inclusion in (a) Hartlepool constituency and (b) the North East region. [83666]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Department for Work and Pensions is delivering the £36 million Growth Fund, which will increase the amount of affordable credit available from credit unions and community development financial institutions to financially excluded people, who might otherwise be forced to turn to doorstep lenders and loan sharks charging exorbitant rates of interest.

The first Growth Fund contracts have already been signed with Southwark Credit Union (London) and Enterprise Credit Union (Knowsley, Liverpool) and terms have been agreed with a further 20 organisations. Negotiations continue with all others that passed the evaluation stage of the commercial process, including Hartlepool Credit Union and others from the North East.

The move to direct payment and the introduction of universal banking services, during 2003-05, also helped to significantly increase financial inclusion through the provision of banking services to customers in many deprived areas for the first time.

Fuel Direct

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average level of Fuel Direct payment was for (a) gas and (b) electricity to each supplier in (i) each region of England, (ii) Scotland and (iii) Wales in the last full year for which figures are available. [84379]

Mr. Plaskitt: Information is not available broken down by region; the available information is in the following tables.

Average weekly payments under the Fuel Direct scheme to gas suppliers, Great Britain; 1 June 2005 to 31 May 2006

Some suppliers have more than one account to which payments are made for both gas and electricity, where this is the case the average for each account is shown.

Interwork

Mrs. Riordan: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what funding Interwork receives from (a) his Department, (b) other Government Departments, (c) Government agencies and (d) other sources; and if he will make a statement. [81870]

Mrs. McGuire: During 2005-06 Remploy allocated £18.389 million to Interwork out of the grant in aid given to the company by the Department and from contracts awarded to the company.

Interwork also received £311,000 from the European Social Fund. Interwork received no additional funding from other Government Departments or Government agencies.

National Insurance

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of residents in each London borough issued with a new national insurance number in each of the last five years. [83531]

Mr. Plaskitt: Information is not available in the format requested. Information on the number of national insurance numbers issued is not available broken down below national level.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of (a) illegal immigrants and (b) failed asylum seekers who fraudulently hold national insurance numbers. [73988]

Mr. Plaskitt: There is no estimate of the number of national insurance numbers obtained fraudulently. However, the Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) has robust procedures and checks in place to intercept fraudulent applications for national insurance numbers.

Pensions

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what requirements the Government have placed on private businesses to contribute to a safety net for pension funds. [79753]

James Purnell: The Pension Protection Fund (PPF) pays compensation to members of defined benefit schemes if their employer becomes insolvent and the pension scheme is underfunded. The PPF has also taken on responsibility for paying compensation to members of any eligible defined benefit or other defined contribution scheme where the members lose their pension due to fraud.

The Pensions Act (2004) provides for the funding of this through levies on eligible schemes.

Post Office Card Account

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in West Lancashire collect their (a) pensions and (b) benefit payments via a Post Office card account. [83465]

Mr. Plaskitt: Information showing the number of Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) benefit and pension payment accounts paid by direct payment into a Post Office card account for each parliamentary constituency has been placed in the Library.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, pursuant to his answer of 10 July 2006, Official Report, column 1603W, on the Post Office card account, if he will place a copy of the contract in the Library. [85720]

Mr. Plaskitt: I have already placed an abridged copy of the contract in the Library.

I also refer my right hon. Friend to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Bury St. Edmunds (Mr. Ruffley) on 7 March 2006, Official Report, column 1354W.

Sure Start

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many women have received a Sure Start maternity grant in Stroud constituency in each of the last two years. [83251]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available in the format requested. Such information as is available is in the following table.

Sure Start maternity grants for Gloucestershire Jobcentre Plus district

	Number of awards
2004-05	1,640
2005-06	1,510

Notes:
1. Data are not available by parliamentary constituency but only by Jobcentre Plus district.
2. Stroud parliamentary constituency is in Gloucestershire Jobcentre Plus district in 2004-05. This district merged with another district in April 2005. The figure for 2005-06 in the table is for the area covered by the former Gloucestershire Jobcentre Plus district.
3. Figures are for all awards, irrespective of whether the award was made to the mother or her partner.
4. Figures have been rounded to the nearest 10.

Afghanistan

Mr. Sarwar: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what action is being taken to curb opium production in Afghanistan; and if she will make a statement. [81227]

Dr. Howells: The UK is Afghanistan's partner nation on counter-narcotics. We are spending over £270 million over three years in support of the Afghan National Drug Control Strategy. We believe the strategy represents the best means of tackling opium production and trafficking in and from Afghanistan and are working with the Afghans to sharpen delivery on the ground. I also refer my hon. Friend to the written ministerial statement I made on Afghanistan: Counter Narcotics, 13 July 2006, Official Report, columns 75-76WS, which includes details on progress made to date as well as the allocation of UK funding.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what quantity of opium has been seized by the Afghan Special Narcotics Force since May 2005; and what the procedure is for the disposal of opium. [84894]

Dr. Howells: According to the Ministry of the Interior of Afghanistan, the Afghan Special Narcotics Force and the Counter Narcotics Police of Afghanistan, since May 2005, have made seizures of opiates (opium, heroin and morphine base) equivalent to 186.6 metric tonnes of opium.

In accordance with the new Afghan Counter Narcotics Law post seizure the opiates are either destroyed at site, while retaining a small sample for evidential purposes for use in criminal proceedings, or stored and destroyed centrally.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions she has had with her German counterpart on ensuring that adequate vetting procedures are in place to ensure that the Afghan police are not infiltrated by the Taliban. [85108]

Dr. Howells: The Afghanistan Compact, which was launched at the London Conference in January 2006, sets out benchmarks and timelines for the next phase in Afghanistan's reconstruction process. This includes the establishment of clear and transparent national appointments mechanisms for the public sector, including vetting procedures. Implementation will be phased over five years.

I have not had recent discussions with my German counterpart on this subject but our Embassy in Kabul is in close touch with the German-led Police Project Office about the police reform process.

Africa (Peacekeeping Capability)

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what contributions the UK plans to make to strengthen African peacekeeping capability following the meeting of G8 officials and donor parties in Moscow on 8 June; and if she will make a statement. [84212]

Margaret Beckett: The UK remains strongly committed to supporting the African Union's (AU) goal of enhancing African peacekeeping capacity and establishing an African Standby Force (ASF). The meeting of G8 officials and other donors on 8 June was an operational level meeting to review latest progress and further improve co-ordination of peace support operations (PSO) assistance initiatives to the AU and its member states.

The UK provides significant levels of PSO training to African national forces geared to both preparation for specific deployments and to building longer-term capacity and skills. UK support, both financial and through the provision of military training staff, to African training centres of excellence such as the Kofi Annan International Peacekeeping Training Centre is also helping to strengthen African regional training—an area of growing importance as the ASF regional brigades are officially formed. In collaboration with other international partners, the UK is providing technical and financial assistance to the AU's Peace and Security Department through a series of workshops in 2006 to design policy and procedure for the ASF. UK financial support for PSO capacity building projects in Africa between 2001 and 2005 has been steadily increasing and was over £24 million in 2004-05.

British Passport Holders

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonweaith Affairs pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Sheffield, Hallam (Mr. Clegg) of 15 June 2006, Official Report, columns 1373-5W, on British passport holders, how many British passport holders are estimated to be registered at their local British representative mission. [84735]

Dr. Howells: We do not maintain a central list of British passport holders who have registered at our overseas missions. It is not compulsory to register and the numbers who do so are very low. We will shortly have available an updated online facility to allow British nationals to register electronically. We hope this will increase the number of people registering.

Bulgaria/Romania

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's plans are regarding the freedom of movement of Bulgarian and Romanian citizens into the UK upon their accession to the European Union, with particular reference to the Roma population. [84725]

Mr. Hoon: Upon accession, all citizens from Bulgaria and Romania will enjoy the same freedom of movement within the EU, including the UK, as citizens of the other 25 member states. We do not discriminate on the basis of ethnic origin.

China

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what consular provision there is for British nationals in Taiwan province of the People's Republic of China. [84703]

Dr. Howells: The Government do not recognise Taiwan as a state. We do not carry out any formal consular activities in Taiwan. However, the British Trade and Cultural Office in Taipei, within the limitations of its status, provides assistance to British nationals in line with the recently published "Support for British Nationals Abroad: A Guide", copies of which are available in the Library of the House.

Colombia

Mr. Tom Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she has made to the Colombian Government on threats by paramilitary organisations to kill students and staff at the University of Antioquia. [83998]

Mr. Hoon: Human rights are at the heart of our policy towards Colombia. We remain concerned about the situation faced by civil society there. Although we have not made any specific representations to the Colombian Government on this issue, we keep the human rights situation in the country under constant review and frequently raise individual cases with the Government of Colombia. We also support a range of projects aimed at improving human rights in line with the spirit of UN human rights recommendations. Among our current priorities are the protection and promotion of human rights defenders, the protection of child rights and improvements in the rule of law. We will continue to engage with the Government of Colombia on human rights issues.

Mr. Tom Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions she has had with the Colombian Government on the confrontation and dismantling of paramilitary groups. [83999]

Mr. Hoon: There have not been any recent discussions at Ministerial level on this issue, although we regularly raise it with our Colombian counterparts at official level. The UK and the EU have consistently called for a legal framework for the process of demobilisation, disarmament and reinsertion of illegal armed groups. In the EU Ministerial General Affairs and External Relations Council Conclusions of 3 October 2005, the UK and its EU partners recognised the importance of the Colombian Justice and Peace Law, agreed in July the same year, in providing an overall legal framework for this process. With our international partners, the UK has encouraged the Government of Colombia to implement this new law transparently so that it will have a positive impact on the peace building process. The Colombian Government announced on 18 April the completion of the formal process of demobilisation which saw over 30,000 paramilitaries demobilise. We will continue to work with our partners to help the Government of Colombia address the challenges it faces.

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations have been made by the UK Government to the Government of Colombia about trade union rights. [84493]

Mr. Hoon: We remain very concerned about the human rights situation faced by civil society, including trade unionists, in Colombia. My noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, Lord Triesman of Tottenham, raised the issue of engaging with civil society with Colombian Defence Minister-designate Juan Manuel Santos when they met on 5 July with Colombian Foreign Minister Carolina Barco in the fringes of the EU/Latin America and the Caribbean summit on 12 May. In April, our embassy staff in Bogota met with the Vice President of the National Union of Hospital and Health Workers, and with the Human Rights Director of the Central Union of Workers in May. We also regularly meet British and Colombian trade unionists and other civil society groups, in the UK and Colombia, to hear their views and discuss how the Government can best support them. My noble Friend Lord Triesman met a British trade union delegation on 6 March to discuss their recent visit to Colombia and hear their concerns about human rights. In February, we also funded a working visit to the UK by eight senior Colombian trade unionists to demonstrate our support to civil society in Colombia and the important role it has to play in helping find solutions.

Departmental Resource Accounts

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 27 February 2006, Official Report, column 298W, on departmental resource accounts, what the items listed were; and what the reason was for the need for their disposal. [82055]

Mr. Hoon: As my right hon. Friend the then Foreign Secretary (Mr. Straw) said in his reply to the hon. Member for Hemel Hempstead (Mike Penning) on 27 February 2006, Official Report, column 298W, these were items which were identified as having been disposed of, but action had not been taken to remove them from the asset register. The assets were disposed of or consumed in the ordinary course of business. The disposal value was made up of a large number of assets with relatively minor values and the disposal of these items did not occur as a single event. Due to the large number of items that have been disposed of, it is not possible to list them all in this reply. However, a copy of the full list will be placed in the Library of the House. I will also arrange for the list to be sent to the hon. Member.

European Constitution

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Hemel Hempstead (Mike Penning) of 20 October 2005, Official Report, column 1204W, on the European constitution, which themes and regions have been identified as areas of common foreign and security policy activity for which strategic interests and objectives have yet to be ascribed. [84204]

Mr. Hoon: We understand that the question refers to EU common strategies. As my right hon. Friend the then Minister for Europe (Mr. Alexander) stated in his answer to the hon. Member for Hemel Hempstead (Mike Penning) on 20 October 2005, Official Report, column 1204W, there have only been three examples of EU common strategies, under the umbrella of Common Foreign and Security Policy: Russia, Ukraine and Euromed.

Extraordinary Rendition

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of reports that Prestwick, Shannon and Bangor airports were used for the refuelling of flights involved in either the inbound or outbound stages of extraordinary rendition operations. [80349]

Margaret Beckett: Bangor and Shannon airports, which are mentioned in the report into the extraordinary rendition of terrorist suspects published on 7 June by the Council of Europe's Parliamentary Assembly, are of course in the United States and the Republic of Ireland respectively. The Government are not therefore in a position to assess those claims. In so far as the claims about Prestwick airport are concerned, there is no evidence that any of the flights identified in the data supplied by Eurocontrol to the Council of Europe's inquiry were involved in rendition through the UK. I refer the right hon. Member to my right hon. Friend the then Foreign Secretary's (Mr. Straw) written ministerial statement of 20 January 2006, Official Report, columns 37-38WS which summarises the position in respect of renditions through UK territory or airspace since May 1997.

Honours

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which individuals who are not UK citizens were awarded honours between 1 January 2002 to 31 December 2002; and what the (a) date of announcement, (b) honour concerned and (c) reason for the award was in each case. [84194]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 10 July 2006]: As the information requested is lengthy, I will arrange for it to be placed in the Library of the House and will also arrange for a copy to be sent directly to the hon. Member.

As honorary awards to citizens of countries where Her Majesty the Queen is not Head of State are not formally announced, the date of the Queen's formal approval of such awards has been given.

Hospitality Expenses

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 3 July 2006, Official Report, column 838W, on hospitality expenses, what the total cost across Whitehall was of expenditure on alcohol recorded by Government Hospitality in each of the last five years. [84591]

Mr. Hoon: Government Hospitality recorded the following expenditure on new stock for the Government cellar for the past five years:

	Expenditure (£)
2001-02	92,772
2002-03	91,860
2003-04	93,503
2004-05	60,059
2005-06	95,264

Latin America (Trade Unions)

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on trade union rights in Latin American countries. [84490]

Mr. Hoon: In view of continuing social and economic inequality, and the impact of globalisation on labour markets in Latin American countries, trade unions have a key role in protecting employment rights throughout the region. However, the extent to which unions are effective in influencing the economic and social debate, and in achieving the objectives of their members, varies hugely from country to country due to a wide range of social and political circumstances. This Government fully support the rights of trade unions world-wide. We have played a leading role in ensuring that the international framework to promote international labour rights, and to tackle abuses of those rights throughout the world, is in place, particularly through our work with the International Labour Organisation (ILO), the UN specialised agency responsible for developing, promoting and monitoring labour standards. The ILO's 1998 Declaration on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work commits all countries to respect, promote and to realise the right to freedom of association and collective bargaining as well as the ending of forced labour, child labour and discrimination in employment.

MI6

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the work of the Information Operations section of MI6; and what policy applies to the undertaking of operations within the UK. [84196]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 10 July 2006]: It is the long-standing policy of the Government not to comment on intelligence matters.

The policy applying to any operation undertaken by the Secret Intelligence Service is governed by the provisions of the Intelligence Services Act (1994).

North Korea

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the nuclear missile tests undertaken by North Korea; and if she will make a statement. [84683]

Dr. Howells: On 4 and 5 July, the Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK) conducted a series of missile launches. These included No-Dong ballistic missiles and a Taepodong II missile; the latter was the first test of this system and failed some 40 seconds after launch.

While it is possible that both No-Dong and Taepodong II missiles, correctly configured, may have the capability to carry a nuclear warhead over a long distance, we have no indication the DPRK has ever attempted to test any missile with a nuclear warhead.

Nevertheless, we are seriously concerned that the DPRK decided to go ahead with these missile launches, despite international pressure on it not to. These tests are provocative and only serve to raise tensions in the region. Following the launches, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary made a statement condemning them and strongly urged the Government of the DPRK to adhere to its commitment to a moratorium on missile testing.

Romania

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the human rights situation in Romania. [84728]

Mr. Hoon: Romania has made strides in improving its human rights situation since the fall of Ceausescu in 1989. The prospect of EU membership has been a vital driver for human rights reform. Some concerns remain, such as the treatment of Roma, conditions in mental health institutions, discrimination and intolerance experienced by members of the lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender community, and the number of children in institutional care. Further details, including Global Opportunities Fund projects to assist Romania in its efforts, can be found in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office Human Rights Annual Report which is available on our website:

www.fco.gov.uk/Files/KFile/Chapter3,1.pdf.

Sickness Absence

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 24 May 2006, Official Report, column 1866W, on sickness absence, how many staff in her Department have had two or more periods of sick leave of less than five days in two or more of the years for which she has provided figures. [84040]

Mr. Hoon: 789 staff have had two or more periods of sick leave of less than five days within two or more of the Financial Years reported: 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06.

Szeklerland

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions the UK Government has had in the last 12 months with the (a) Hungarian and (b) Romanian Governments regarding the state of Szeklerland. [84726]

Mr. Hoon: The Government have had no discussions in the last 12 months on this issue with the Hungarian or Romanian Governments.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the status of Szeklerland has been a part of discussions regarding the accession of Romania to the EU. [84727]

Mr. Hoon: The status of Szeklerland has not been part of discussions regarding Romania's EU accession. However, the Romanian Government are aware that it needs to continue to satisfy the Copenhagen Criteria, which guarantee "respect for and protection of minorities" such as the ethnic Hungarian minority in Szeklerland.

HEALTH

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many abortions were notified as being carried out in England in each year since 1996 on women whose normal place of residence was (a) France, (b) Germany, (c) Italy, (d) Ireland, (e) Spain, (f) Israel, (g) Malta, (h) Isle of Man and (i) the United States of America. [83203]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is shown in the table. It is also available on the Department's website. at: www.dh.gov.uk/PublicationsAndStatistics/Statistics/StatisticalWorkAreas/StatisticalPublicHealth/fs/en for 2002-05 data and at: www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp%3Fvlnk%3D68%26Pos% 3D2%26ColRank%3D2%26Rank%3D640 for 1996 to 2001 data.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the abortion rate was per 1,000 women aged 15 to 49 years in each health authority in England and Wales in 2005. [85146]

Caroline Flint: This information is contained within table 10b of the Statistical Bulletin 2006/01, "Abortion Statistics, England and Wales: 2005". Copies have been placed in the Library and also on the Department of Health website at www.dh.gov.uk/assetRoot/04/13/68/59/04136859.pdf

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research her Department (a) has undertaken and (b) plans to undertake into the reasons for trends in the abortion rate in England between 2004 and 2005; and if she will make a statement. [85160]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given on 21 March 2006, Official Report, column 250W.

The 2005 abortion statistics showed the abortion rate per 1,000 resident women aged 15 to 44 and the under 18 and under 16 abortion rates stayed the same as in 2004. In addition, more abortions were performed at an earlier gestation and there were less late abortions. The Statistical Bulletin 2006/01, "Abortion Statistics, England and Wales: 2005" is available in the Library and also on the Department's website at: www.dh.gov.uk/assetRoot/04/13/68/59/04136859.pdf

Accident and Emergency Departments

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which accident and emergency departments have (a) closed and (b) been downgraded in each of the last three years. [80728]

Ms Rosie Winterton: National health service trusts self-report the number of accident and emergency (A and E) services they provide against definitions set by the Department for the three types of A and E. This is not collected at the level of individual hospitals. A number of trusts reported a change in the number of type one (major) A and E departments for the period requested and this information is shown in the table. This was the position at the end of March for each year.

	Type one A and E department closed/downgraded
2003-04	United Bristol Healthcare NHS Trust University Hospitals Coventry and Warwickshire NHS Trust
2004-05	East Kent Hospitals NHS Trust
2005-06	North Bristol NHS Trust Southport and Ormskirk Hospital NHS Trust Surrey and Sussex Healthcare NHS Trust Ashford and St. Peters Hospitals NHS Trust

Notes:
As at end March of the relevant year.
If a NHS trust closes/downgrades a type one A and E department and opens another type one A and E department within the same period, our data would not be able to show this.
We cannot provide a further breakdown of whether the department was closed or downgraded from a type one A and E department.
Northumbria Health Care NHS Trust opened a new type one A and E department during 2003-04.

Acute Hospital Services

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether her Department has advised NHS trusts that proposed solutions for reconfiguring acute hospital services should be tested in trials before they are introduced. [85377]

Andy Burnham: The Department's advice on service reconfiguration is set out in the 2003 publication, "Keeping the NHS Local—a New Direction of Travel", and subsequent policy advice such as a recent letter to the national health service advising that proposals for service reconfiguration must have rigorous business cases with integration and benefits plans and clear accountability to drive quality and financial improvements within the NHS.

Alcohol Misuse (Funding)

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the allocation of £15 million for tackling alcohol misuse is planned to be repeated in future years. [83926]

Caroline Flint: The £15 million allocated to primary care trusts to improve alcohol services is a recurrent revenue allocation for 2007-08 onwards.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how the £15 million funding for treatment of alcohol misuse in 2007-08 will be allocated. [83927]

Caroline Flint: £15 million has been allocated to all primary care trusts (PCTs) on a weighted capitation basis to improve alcohol services from 2007-08 onwards. The Department announced 2007-08 revenue allocations to PCTs in February 2005.

Avian Influenza

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent steps she has taken to prepare for a potential outbreak of avian influenza. [82760]

Caroline Flint: The Department, in collaboration with the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Defra) and the Health Protection Agency (HPA) has well-developed plans in place for the protection of public health in the event of an outbreak of avian influenza.

DEFRA has published its exotic diseases contingency plan which contains the guidance on public health protection in an outbreak for workers and others who might be exposed to infected birds. This is available on DEFRA's website: www.defra.gov.uk/animalh/diseases/notifiable/disease/avianinfluenza-contplan.htm.

DEFRA also publishes and regularly updates risk assessments on the threat to UK of introduction of H5N1 from birds and its latest publication, "Highly Pathogenic Avian Influenza H5N1 situation in Europe and potential risk factors for the introduction of the virus to the United Kingdom", can be found at: www.defra.gov.uk/animalh/diseases/notifiable/disease/ai/latest-situation/index.htm

The Department recently commissioned a report from the HPA: "Addressing a Quantitative Microbiological Risk Assessment (QMRA) of the Risks Posed to UK Public Health by Highly Pathogenic Avian Influenza H5NL".

The Department and DEFRA have published guidance on the handling and disposing of dead garden and wild birds.

Supplies of the anti-viral Tamiflu have been made available in each region for rapid administration to those who may be exposed to infection.

Advice for clinicians on how to deal with patients who may have been infected with avian influenza is available on the HPA's website: www.hpa.org.uk/infections/topics_az/influenza/avian/guidelines.htm

Advice for travellers on reducing their risk of exposure to minimise risk of bringing back infection has been published on the Department's website. Regular travel updates concerning affected countries is available at: www.nathnac.org/.

Breast Cancer

Dr. Naysmith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the proportion of annual NHS expenditure on (a) breast cancer drugs and (b) all cancer drugs which will be required to fund the provision of Herceptin as set out in the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence's Final Appraisal Determination; and what estimate she has made of the cost to the NHS of providing Herceptin in each of the next three financial years. [82529]

Andy Burnham: For the year ending September 2005 approximately £630 million was spent on cancer drugs prescribed in hospitals and in the community. We can not provide an estimate of the expenditure on drugs used in the treatment of breast cancer since some of the drugs can be used for a variety of cancers. The data held give no indication of why a drug has been prescribed so the cost of breast cancer drugs cannot be estimated reliably.

The cost of providing Herceptin, for a 12 month course, to all patients with early stage breast cancer for whom it is clinically appropriate is estimated at around £100 million a year. The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence will be publishing, as part of its guidance on Herceptin, a cost impact report to help the national health service manage the implementation of the guidance.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) which hospital trusts (a) provide family history clinics offering screening to women with a high risk of breast cancer and (b) have withdrawn such clinics in the last two years; [83331]

(2) how many primary care trusts (PCTs) commission family history clinics offering screening to women at high risk from breast cancer; and which PCTs have withdrawn the commission of these services in the last two years. [83332]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department does not hold information centrally on specific clinics offered by individual trusts or funded by individual primary care trusts (PCTs). The provision of services is a matter for agreement between trusts and their commissioning PCTs and the strategic health authority for the area, in consultation with local stakeholders. Plans for services should take into consideration local needs and priorities while ensuring they meet core national standards for the delivery of health services.

The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) published a clinical guideline on familial breast cancer in May 2004. They recommended that appropriate facilities should be developed locally to meet the needs of women at risk of familial breast cancer and that women at moderate risk or greater should receive annual mammography from age 40. NICE clinical guidelines are covered by the Department's developmental standards, standards which the national health service is expected to achieve over time. The Healthcare Commission has responsibility for assessing progress towards achieving these standards.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average interval was between screenings for breast cancer in (a) Guildford and Waverley Primary Care Trust, (b) Surrey and (c) England in each year since 1997. [84089]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The average intervals between screenings for breast cancer by local screening units is not collected centrally. However, national health service cancer screening programmes requested data from the NHS breast screening programme on the percentage of local screening units achieving the 36-month national standard between screens for quarter four 2005-06, that is from January to March 2006.

Between January and March 2006, the Jarvis Centre, Guildford, re-screened 92 per cent. of women within the 36-month national standard. 97 per cent. of women were re-screened within 38 months.

In England during the same period, 60 per cent. of women were re-screened within the 36-month national standard. 82 per cent. of women were re-screened within 38 months.

The NHS Cancer Plan, published in 2000, stated that we would extend invitations for breast screening to women aged 65 to 70 and introduce two-view mammography at all screening rounds. Thanks to the efforts of the staff in the screening programme, these targets have now been achieved in all local breast screening units. The expansion is already showing an effect, with nearly 12,000 cancers diagnosed by the programme in 2004-05, an increase of 40 per cent. on 2001 when the expansion began.

However, the changes together represent a 40 per cent. increase in the workload of the programme. We are aware that this has had an impact on some services maintaining the three-year interval for screening and we are taking steps to bring all screening intervals back to three years.

The Department's cancer programme board, chaired by the National Cancer Director Professor Mike Richards, has taken a particular interest in this area. The board is considering a course of action with the support of the Department's recovery and support unit.

Cancer Patients

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what programmes are in place to assist cancer patients with the financial effects of their illness; and if she will take further steps to lessen such effects. [82796]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Financial assistance is available to patients through the hospital travel costs scheme and the national health service low income scheme. Patients with cancer, as with any serious illness, may also be eligible for benefits support from the Department for Work and Pensions.

The Government recognise that finance is an issue of great importance to people with serious illness. Departmental officials are working with those in the Department for Work and Pensions, which has the expertise and knowledge to inform people about arrangements for claiming benefits and their entitlement to different benefits, to take steps for patients to be signposted to the assistance that is available.

Carers

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many (a) carers of people with a learning disability, (b) children with a learning disability and (c) adults with a learning disability in Lancashire receive a short break service; [82757]

(2) how many hours short break service, on average, were provided on behalf of people with a learning disability in Lancashire who received the care component of disability living allowance at the (a) highest, (b) middle and (c) lowest rate in the last period for which figures are available; [82758]

(3) how much was spent on short break provision in Lancashire in the last year for which figures are available; and how many hours break this provided in total. [82759]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not held centrally. It is the responsibility of local commissioners to ensure appropriate provision of services to meet their community's needs.

Cervical Cancer

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what percentage of women attended cervical cancer screening in (a) Guildford, (b) Guildford and Waverley Primary Care Trust, (c) Surrey and (d) England in each of the last five years. [84049]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The available requested information is in the table. Data are not held centrally for Guildford alone or for Surrey alone. Data on the other countries of the United Kingdom are a matter for the devolved administrations.

Connecting for Health

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what elements have changed from being funded by Connecting for Health to being funded by departmental central budgets since the inception of Connecting for Health; [79758]

(2) how much funding was moved from the Connecting for Health budget to the departmental central budgets in 2005-06 to pay for the choose and book appointments line. [79787]

Caroline Flint: None in both cases. However, in 2005-06 NHS Connecting for Health funded a proportion of the cost of running the choose and book management service, which is otherwise funded from the Department's central budgets. The sum involved was £1.57 million.

Dentistry

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the effect on (a) the throughput of and (b) access to NHS dentistry of the implementation of the new dental contact and agreement on 1 April; and if she will make a statement. [77050]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Management information indicates that, as at 1 April 2006, primary care trusts (PCTs) had commissioned services representing around 96 per cent. of previous levels and had begun steps to commission additional services, both to replace the small minority of contracts rejected and to expand service provision.

The recent reforms are designed to support PCTs in improving access to services in a number of ways. First, the resources now devolved to PCTs represent a £400 million increase in investment compared with 2003-04. Second, when a dentist chooses to stop providing national health service services locally, the money spent on these services now remains with the local PCT so that it is spent on commissioning new services from other dentists to replace lost capacity. Third, the new contractual arrangements are based on the expert clinical guidelines produced by the National Institute for Health and Clinical excellence. These recommend that dentists recall patients at intervals of between three and 24 months depending on their oral health needs. In our view, this is likely to mean that many patients with good oral health who have traditionally attended at typically six-monthly intervals will not need to attend as frequently as they have done in the past. This will free up additional capacity and enable dentists to treat a greater range of patients.

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the impact of the new dental contracts on the provision of domiciliary dental care and the provision of dental care to people living in care homes. [79558]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The funding devolved to primary care trusts (PCTs) for commissioning primary dental care services from April 2006 built on all such expenditure during the reference period of October 2004 to September 2005, including expenditure on domiciliary services. The new arrangements give PCTs greater flexibility to commission and develop domiciliary dental services and other primary care services to reflect local needs.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) dental practices and (b) dentists have opted out of the NHS in the last 12 months, broken down by London borough. [82948]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Data on the number of general dental services (GDS) or personal dental services (PDS) practices that have left the national health service are not collected centrally. However, the number of practice addresses at the end of each year is known.

The number of GDS or PDS dental practices by London borough is shown in the following table.

General dental services (GDS) and personal dental services (PDS): Number of GDS or PDS dental practice addresses by London borough as at 31 March each year

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) general dental services contracts and (b) personal dental services contracts signed by or on 1 April on an in dispute basis remain in dispute, broken down by strategic health authority (SHA) area; and what proportion of the total contracts signed in each SHA area this represents. [84018]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Provisional management estimates on the number of contracts signed in dispute and the proportion of the total contracts signed that this represents by strategic health authority is shown in the table. A contract may be for either a practice or an individual dentist. These estimates were made in April.

Further management information on the position at the end of May will be available shortly.

Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 18 April 2006, Official Report, column 209W and the answer to question 81211, on NHS dentistry, why information on the number of people registered with an NHS dentist in each constituency available on 29 June was not collected. [84352]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Patient registration was part of the remuneration arrangements under the former system of general dental services up to 31 March 2006. Under the new system, the concept of registration no longer forms part of the remuneration system. The Department is therefore introducing a comparable means of monitoring the number of patients covered by national health service dental services, but the transition to the new arrangements has meant that it will be some months before the new measure is available.

As set out in the answer to question 81211 information will be available in due course via the NHS Business Services Authority on the numbers of patients who receive care or treatment from NHS primary care dentists on one or more occasions within a given period. This will provide a measure that is broadly similar to that of patient registration under the former system of CDS. We expect the first information to be available in the autumn.

Sir Paul Beresford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many dentists who signed the new NHS dental contract who are (a) in dispute and (b) not in dispute had (i) withdrawn and (ii) given notice of their intention to withdraw from the contract by 1 July; [85315]

(2) how many and what percentage of dentists who signed the new NHS dental contract in dispute remained in dispute on 1 July. [85318]

Ms Rosie Winterton: There is no centrally available information on the number of dentists who have withdrawn from national health service dental contracts or given notice of their intention to withdraw.

Provisional management information on the number of contracts signed in dispute and the proportion of the total contracts signed that this represents by strategic health authority (SHA) is shown in the table. A contract may be for either a practice or an individual dentist. These estimates were made in April.

Primary care trusts are working with dentists to resolve as many disputes as possible locally.

Sir Paul Beresford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS dentists had completed (a) 100 per cent. (b) 75 per cent. and (c) 50 per cent. of their allocated annual units of dental activity on 1 July. [85316]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Sir Paul Beresford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of NHS paying patients treated were under the new NHS dental contract in each of the three payment bands on 1 July. [85317]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The latest available data are from 1 April to 31 May 2006. The following table sets out the percentage of completed national health service treatments in England within each of the bands processed during the period 1 April 2006 to 31 May 2006.

Payment band	Percentage of NHS treatments
Band 1	60
Band 2	29
Band 3	3
Urgent	6
Prescription issue (free)	2

Notes:
1. Data shown are from activity forms processed in April and May 2006.
2. Activity forms are processed by the NHS Business Services Authority within a monthly scheduling programme. The data represent activity entered onto the system between these dates and do not represent treatment actually carried out during the period.
3. Complicated courses of treatment take longer to complete. The reported activity for the early months of the new contract is therefore more heavily weighted towards simpler treatments.
4. All data are provided by The Information Centre for health and social care.

Ian Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health why items prescribed under band 3 will be grouped together as band 3 prescriptions and not measured as individual items under the new NHS contract for dentists. [83892]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Providers of general dental service and personal dental services are no longer paid by item of service but have an agreed annual contract value, which is paid in 12 monthly instalments. In return for this contract value, the provider carries out over the course of the year an agreed number of units of dental activity that correspond to overall courses of treatment. The provider therefore no longer has to submit data on the individual items of service within each course of treatment. Any items prescribed within a course of treatment are a matter for individual clinical judgment. This approach is intended to help promote more clinically appropriate practice, with less emphasis on the quality of individual interventions and more time available for preventative care.

Diabetes

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to ensure that there are adequate numbers of diabetes nurses in West Lancashire. [83486]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The "National Service Framework for Diabetes: Delivery Strategy" states that diabetes services need to ensure that there are enough staff with appropriate skills who are well-led, supported, and deliver high-quality care. It is up to local diabetes teams to decide, based on the needs of their local population, how best these teams are constructed to provide local services for both adults and children.

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many diabetes nurses are employed by West Lancashire Primary Care Trust. [83487]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is not held centrally.

District General Hospitals

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research has been carried out by (a) the Department and (b) the NHS into the minimum population required to sustain a full district general hospital, including accident and emergency facilities. [80731]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Each district general hospital will serve a uniquely different population, both in terms of underlying health need and in terms of the population's capacity to access services. The hospital infrastructure required to support London versus rural Cornwall will be very different. The Department has not sought to prescribe or recommend minimum population sizes for hospitals.

Domiciliary Care

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in (a) England and (b) each region (i) met and (ii) did not meet the required standard at each stage in the registration of domiciliary care providers in the last year for which figures are available. [81681]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I understand from the Chair the Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI) that the information is not available in the precise form requested. The number of domiciliary care agencies (DCAs) registered with CSCI in the year 1 April 2005 to 31 March 2006 are shown in table 1.

As DCAs go through each stage of the registration process, CSCI considers whether they meet regulatory requirements. In terms of DCAs which have been refused registration in 2005-06, agencies are either issued a refusal notice or advised to withdraw their application. There were no refusal notices issued for the most recent calendar year, 1 April 2005 to 31 March 2006. The total number of DCA applications withdrawn is shown in table 2.

The following tables show the figures requested by region.

Domiciliary Oxygen Provision

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what consultation was conducted with (a) service users and (b) health professionals in West Lancashire prior to the recent change in domiciliary oxygen provision. [83488]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Following an announcement of plans for change in July 2003, the Department worked with patients' representatives and health professionals to develop the service specification, which took into account the recommendations of a Royal College of Physicians' working group on the assessment and prescribing of oxygen therapy in the home. The specification was included in tender documents issued in October 2004. The Department also included representatives of the British Thoracic Society, which has developed clinical best practice guidelines on home oxygen therapy, and the British Lung Foundation, which campaigns and supports patients with lung disease, on a central panel that evaluated tenders received for the service. Regional national health service panels, which included healthcare professionals and other NHS staff, undertook a second stage assessment. These panels included NHS representatives for the north-west service region, which includes West Lancashire.

Drug Rehabilitation

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average expenditure per patient was for drug rehabilitation in (a) Ribble Valley and (b) Lancashire in the last period for which figures are available; and if she will make a statement. [82746]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not held centrally.

Duchenne's Muscular Dystrophy

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a decision on whether to renew funding for the research by the MDEX consortium into Duchenne's muscular dystrophy before the summer recess. [83997]

Andy Burnham: We are already supporting the research by the MDEX consortium into Duchenne's muscular dystrophy. The contract for £1.6 million runs until December 2008. Any decision about future funding would be taken in light of the findings of the current research.

Equality and Diversity

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much the Department has spent in each of the last eight years on promoting equality and diversity. [81618]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department is fully committed to the equality and diversity agenda and has policies and processes in place to ensure that there is no unfair discrimination. The promotion of equality and diversity has become an integral component within many wider policy initiatives and it is not possible to disaggregate spending.

Fertility Treatment

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many eggs have been obtained from patients since the enactment of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990; how many have been used for research; and how many have been used for fertility treatments; [85153]

(2) what data are collected on (a) hyperstimulation syndrome and (b) other adverse clinical effects when eggs are obtained at fertility centres. [85154]

Caroline Flint: The Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority (HFEA) holds data on egg collections from 1 August 1991 to 31 March 2004. They indicate that the total number of eggs collected from patients was 3,080,812. For data collected between 1 August 1991 and 31 March 1999, this related to eggs collected solely for treatment purposes. From 1 August 1991 to 31 March 2004, 2,806,764 eggs were mixed with sperm for treatment purposes.

From 1 April 1999 to 31 March 2004, 393 eggs were donated to research. The data held by the HFEA on eggs collected for donation to research are limited because the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990 and the remit of the HFEA only extends to research involving the use of human embryos.

The HFEA requires clinics to indicate on the treatment report form if a patient has experienced ovarian hyperstimulation syndrome in two sets of circumstances: first, where no eggs were collected when an egg collection was attempted and second, where no embryos were transferred back to the patient even though viable embryos were available for transfer. Reporting clinics also give details of any other adverse clinical effects recorded in these circumstances.

GP Vacancies

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many reported GP vacancies there were in the last year for which figures are available; and how many applicants on average there were for each vacancy. [81700]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The estimated three-month general practitioner (GP) vacancy rate is 2.4 per cent., and the average number of three-month GP vacancies per 100,000 patients is 1.4 per cent. in England as recorded in the "GP Practice Vacancies Survey 2005, England and Wales". The number of applicants for each vacancy is not collected centrally.

Heathrow Airport

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what plans she has for the future of the health screening unit at Heathrow airport; [85223]

(2) what assessment the Government have undertaken of the requirement for health screening of visitors entering the UK via Heathrow airport; [85224]

(3) how many people arriving at Heathrow airport were identified by the Heathrow health screening unit as having tuberculosis in each of the last five years; [85230]

(4) whether the levels of resources allocated to the health screening unit at Heathrow airport are to be reduced. [85235]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The health control unit at Heathrow airport carries out medical examinations under the Immigration Act 1971 and also has port health responsibilities under the Public Health (Aircraft) Regulations 1979. There is a continuing need for both functions.

Following a review of operational arrangements for both functions, reported in my reply to the hon. Member for Westbury (Dr. Murrison) on 22 May 2006, Official Report, column 1587-90W, the Health Protection Agency is taking the overall operational lead at points of entry in England to ensure that there are appropriate arrangements for medical examinations under the Immigration Act 1971 and for human health input into port health functions. It is working closely with Hillingdon Primary Care Trust and the London borough of Hillingdon to achieve this.

Hip Replacements

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting time for a hip replacement was in the Greater West Lancashire Primary Care Partnership area in each of the last five years. [83485]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The table shows the average waiting time for hip replacement operations in West Lancashire Primary Care Trust (PCT) in each year since the PCT was formed.

	Total episodes	Waiting time (days)	Mean waiting time (days)
2002-03	132	35,049	266
2003-04	155	35,077	226
2004-05	180	34,476	192

Notes:

Finished admission episodes

A finished admission episode is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. Admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.

Time waited (days)

Time waited statistics from hospital episode statistics (HES) are not the same as the published waiting list statistics. HES provides counts and time waited for all patients admitted to hospital within a given period whereas the published waiting list statistics count those waiting for treatment on a specific date and how long they have been on the waiting list. Also, HES calculates the time waited as the difference between the admission and decision to admit dates. Unlike published waiting list statistics, this is not adjusted for self-deferrals or periods of medical/social suspension.

All operations count of episodes

These figures represent a count of all finished consultant episodes where the procedure was mentioned in any of the 12 operation fields in a HES record. A record is only included once in each count, even if an operation is mentioned in more than one operation field of the record.

Ungrossed data

Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data: the data arre ungrossed.

Home Births

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of births in each primary care trust were home births in each of the last five years. [84435]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the national statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 13 July 2006:

As the National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your question about what proportion of births were home births in each primary care trust for each of the last five years. (84435)

The latest year for which data on maternities are available is 2004. The enclosed table, which has also been placed in the House of Commons Library, shows the figures requested for the years 1997 to 2004.

Hospital Mergers (Cheshire and Merseyside)

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if she will provide an opportunity for hon. Members in the Cheshire and Merseyside strategic health authority area to ask questions directly to the authors of the report on the potential for mergers of hospitals in Liverpool, Southport and Ormskirk NHS trust; [83469]

(2) how many organisations her Department considered in awarding the contract to carry out the review of the potential for merging hospitals in Southport, Ormskirk and Liverpool; which organisation was selected; what estimate she has made of the cost to her Department of compiling the report; and what measures are in place to ensure that the report will be (a) independent and (b) published in full. [83470]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The former Cheshire and Merseyside strategic health authority (SHA), which is now part of the NHS North West SHA, awarded the contract to support its work around preparing national health service trusts to apply for NHS foundation trust status. Therefore, this is a matter for the NHS North West SHA.

Information Technology

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what factors account for the difference between the forecast national expenditure on the National Programme for Information Technology, as stated in paragraph (a) on page 25 of the National Audit Office Report the National Programme for IT in the NHS, HC1173, published on 16 June 2006, and the figure given by her Department's Director of Health and Social Services Delivery in oral evidence to the Health Committee in answer to Question 163 on 1 December 2005. [80304]

Caroline Flint: The figure given to the Health Committee as the value of the core national procurement programme contracts placed in 2003 and 2004 was £6.2 billion. This figure has not increased since the contracts were let, and is confirmed in the National Audit Office (NAO) report. The forecast national expenditure figure of £9.2 billion referred to by the NAO includes this sum, but in addition includes other elements, some of which are costs not directly associated with the national programme for information technology.

The other elements are made up of £382 million for contracts and projects added to the original scope of the programme; £239 million for additional services beyond the scope of the core national contracts; and a further £337 million pro rata extrapolation of the cost of the core contracts to cover the period to 2013 to 2014. This last figure is a purely notional sum to allow total expenditure to be projected over 10 years, and needed because two contracts (choose and book, and the new national broadband network—N3) reach the end of their life before the end of 10 years, requiring further provision to take forward the services.

In addition, a further £1.9 billion represents centrally managed expenditure on centrally managed projects and services within the national programme, and the cost of running the Department's NHS Connecting for Health agency. Some of these costs relate to agency responsibilities other than the national programme, including all of the information technology service delivered by the former NHS Information Authority (NHSIA). The NHSIA spent some £219 million in its last year. NHS Connecting for Health will be spending relatively less centrally and doing much more over 10 years.

We expect that actual expenditure will be very significantly less than £1.9 billion since, once the initial stages of system development and deployment are complete, the role and size of the agency will reduce accordingly.

All of these sums are itemised and described in the NAO's report.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the document, Delivering 21st century IT support for the NHS, when it was decided to move away from the recommendation for a choice of compliant systems for critical local applications. [76390]

Caroline Flint: No such decision has been taken. The strategy for the national programme for information technology requires the integration of multiple systems and applications operating together to functional and technical interoperability standards. Interoperability standards are shared with existing suppliers who are required to demonstrate compliance.

We have always said that general practitioners would have the option of an alternative system to that supplied by the local service providers (LSP), providing the system meets the necessary compliance standards. Under the proposed 'GP systems of choice' initiative, and subject to the same compliance requirements, general practitioners (GPs) will in future have an even wider choice of systems from approved existing GP system providers as an alternative to that provided by their LSP.

The aim of the new initiative is to enable GPs to either choose to upgrade their current clinical system, or migrate to an LSP-provided system in order to continue on the path to integration with the NHS Care Records Service. Providing GPs with this wider range of choice, and a clear roadmap to future integration with the NHS Care Records Service has been widely welcomed by the profession.

The commercial and organisational models chosen for delivering the national programme have produced exceptional value for the taxpayer by avoiding multiple procurements and significantly reducing unit costs for applications and systems. The National Audit Office report acknowledges an independent evaluation that confirms that £4.5 billion has been saved by central rather than local procurement and also acknowledges a further £860 million of savings achieved through centrally negotiated enterprise wide arrangements.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 16 June 2006, Official Report, column 1539W, on Connecting for Health, what targets she has put in place for the roll-out of detailed care record access to (a) the originating organisations, (b) local care communities and (c) larger areas. [80958]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for South Cambridgeshire (Mr. Lansley) on 16 June 2006, Official Report, columns 1539-40W.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to the answers of 26 January 2006, Official Report, column 2333W, on Arm's Length Bodies, and 16 June 2006, Official Report, column 1537W, on Connecting for Health, what the reasons are for the different figures given for the budget for Connecting for Health. [81018]

Caroline Flint: The budget figure of £178 million for NHS Connecting for Health (CfH) in 2005-06, quoted in my answer on 16 June 2006, Official Report, column 1537W, included recurrent cash items. These items were as follows.

	£000
Capital charges	52,510
Non-recurrent funding	10,260

These items were excluded from the budget figure of £115.23 million for CfH in 2005-06 quoted in my answer on 26 January 2006, Official Report, column 2333W. Non-recurrent funding is for a single year. Capital charges are a non-cash resource; that is no physical cash is used.

Jury Service

Mr. Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her estimate is of the cost to the NHS of engagement in jury service by (a) doctors and (b) other NHS employees in each of the last three years. [85242]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 13 July 2006]: We do not hold this information centrally.

Macmillan Nurses

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to increase the numbers of Macmillan nurses working for the NHS in West Lancashire. [83448]

Ms Rosie Winterton: It is for national health service trusts to decide how many nurses, including palliative care nurse specialists, are employed in each specialty within hospitals. It is for local cancer networks, working in partnership with primary care trusts, strategic health authorities and their work force development directorates, to assess, plan and review their work force, education and training needs for all staff linked to the delivery of local and national priorities for cancer.

Maternity Statistics

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) live births and (b) abortions there were in (i) Essex and (ii) Bedford and Hertfordshire strategic health authority in 2005. [85152]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is shown in the table.

Strategic health authority	Live births	Abortions
Essex	19,064	5,047
Bedfordshire and Hertfordshire	21,052	5,207

ME/Chronic Fatigue

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what specialist myalgic encephalomyelitis/encephaliopathy and chronic fatigue syndrome services are being provided under the public patient initiative; and if she will make a statement. [84860]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We are not aware of any specialist chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis services provided under the public patient initiative (PPI). The PPI is an initiative to engage local people in monitoring the quality of health trust activities and service delivery.

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what her policy is on the future provision of specialist myalgic encephalomyelitis and encephalopathy services by primary care trusts; [85020]

(2) whether funding for specialist myalgic encephalomyelitis and encephalopathy (ME) services is contained within the baseline budgets of primary care trusts; and what assessment she has made of the impact of the forthcoming restructuring of primary care trusts on the continued funding for specialist ME services; [85021]

(3) what assessment she has made of (a) the impact of any reduction in myalgic encephalomyelitis and encephalopathy (ME) services on the continued viability of whole service provision to people with ME and (b) the availability of other treatments by non-specialists to mitigate such reductions; [85022]

(4) what assessment she has made of the contribution made by specialist myalgic encephalomyelitis and encephalopathy services to the public and patient involvement initiative. [85023]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The national service framework for long-term conditions set out a clear vision of how health and social care organisations can improve the quality, consistency and responsiveness of their services and help improve the lives of people with neurological conditions, including chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis (CFS/ME).

Funding for specialist CFS/ME services is included in the baseline budgets for primary care trusts. No assessment of the impact of any restructuring of primary care trusts on the continued funding of these services has been made.

There are no plans to reduce CFS/ME services, and hence no assessment of the impact of any hypothetical reduction in services has been made.

We have made no assessment of the contribution made by specialist CFS/ME centres to the public and patient involvement initiative.

Mental Health Act

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether she plans to seek (a) to repeal and (b) to amend section 117 of the Mental Health Act 1983 in the forthcoming Mental Health Bill. [80842]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The current Government plans for amending the Mental Health Act 1983, as announced in March 2006, do not include repeal of section 117. The provisions of section 117 will in addition apply to patients on supervised community treatment.

Mesothelioma

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people are receiving treatment for mesothelioma in each local health authority in England. [82655]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The number of patients being treated for mesothelioma in each local health authority in England, for 2004-05.

Ministerial Meetings

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will place in the Library the record of discussions made by her officials of her recent meeting with representatives of the Roman Catholic Church; and if she will make a statement. [85123]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 4 July 2006, Official Report, column 975W.

National School Fruit Scheme

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of fruit supplied to schools in West Lancashire under the National Fruit Scheme was sourced from (a) suppliers within 25 miles of the school supplied, (b) national suppliers and (c) overseas suppliers, over the period September 2004 to September 2005. [83659]

Ms Rosie Winterton: From September 2004 to 2005 schools in West Lancashire received fruit and vegetables under the school fruit and vegetable scheme from two distribution depots located in Wigan and Skelmersdale. Five United Kingdom based suppliers supplied eight different types of fruit and vegetables to the depots. We do not collect information about the distance of suppliers in relation to the schools they supply. No overseas suppliers are participating in the school fruit and vegetable scheme.

New Critical Care Hospital (St. Helier)

Sir Paul Beresford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she will reply to the response from the Epsom and St. Helier hospital trust to her announcement that the new critical care hospital will be built on the St. Helier site. [85314]

Caroline Flint: The Department has received the response from the local national health service on St. Helier and is currently considering the situation.

NHS Professionals

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health who pays the superannuation of temporary staff supplied through NHS Professionals to NHS trusts. [84710]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 12 July 2006]: National health service employees are entitled to access to the NHS pension scheme.

NHS Professionals recover the costs of the employer's contribution to the NHS pension scheme from the employing trust.

Nurses

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reason there are active programmes recruiting people for training as a nurse abroad. [79634]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Government do not actively recruit nursing students from overseas to train in the national health service. Admissions criteria for nursing courses are the responsibility of individual higher education institutions.

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many nurses work in NHS hospitals in the West Lancashire primary care trust area; and how many of them were employed via agencies in the last period for which figures are available. [83447]

Ms Rosie Winterton: In September 2005, Southport and Ormskirk hospital national health service trust employed 868 qualified nurses (headcount).

Information on the number of nurses employed via agencies is not held centrally.

Nut Allergies

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the reasons for the trend in the number of people suffering from a nut allergy. [84265]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Studies suggest that the prevalence of food allergy in the United Kingdom may be increasing, especially in children, in line with the general increase in allergic diseases. There are many possible explanations for the apparent rise and there is currently no definitive answer. The Food Standards Agency is currently funding several studies aimed at identifying the prevalence of individual food allergies, including nut allergy. These projects should also give clues as to the possible reasons for the apparent rise in food allergy. The first of these studies is expected to be published in the scientific literature later this year and the second is part of a larger Europe-wide study on food allergy prevalence and factors that influence development of food allergy and will finish in July 2009.

Out-patient Appointments

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many out-patient appointments have been booked by GPs in West Lancashire since April 2005. [84885]

Number of new out-patient bookings, April 2005 to May 2006

Physiotherapists

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many physiotherapists were working in the NHS in each year since 1997. [81804]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The number of qualified physiotherapists employed in the national health service in England has increased by 5,754 or 40 per cent. since September 1997 which is shown in the following table.

England

	Headcount
1997	14,243

Primary Care Trusts

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of its Directed Enhanced Services budget allocation each primary care trust (a) received and (b) spent in 2005-06. [70129]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The 2005-06 budget allocations made to primary care trusts (PCTs) do not separately identify the directed enhanced service (DES) amounts. However, information on 2005-06 DES spend, based on latest available PCT forecasts, has been placed in the Library. These figures are provisional and unaudited.

Private Sector Provision

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of healthcare provision in England is provided by the private sector. [75145]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: In 2004-05 expenditure on the purchase of healthcare from non-NHS bodies was £3.666 billion, approximately 5 per cent. of the total national health service budget but that excludes longstanding arrangements relating to the general medical, pharmaceutical and optical services and the purchasing of pharmaceutical products and medical devices from the private sector.

Psychiatric Care

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many psychiatric patients were discharged from in-patient care in each year since 1990. [83377]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The number of psychiatric patients discharged from in-patient care by the national health service in England for each year between 1997-98 and 2004-05 is shown in the following table.

Information about other years is not available.

NHS patients in England discharged from inpatient care with primary diagnosis of a psychiatric condition between 1997-98 and 2004-05

Notes:
1. A patient discharge episode, where the patient is discharged from hospital, includes transfers to other hospitals and patient deaths, where applicable.
2. The primary diagnosis is the first of up to 14 (seven prior to 2002-03) diagnosis fields in the HES data set and provides the main reason why the patient was in hospital. The data do not represent patient numbers because an individual may have more than one episode of care within the same year.
3. The term psychiatric condition is all diagnoses as defined by the international classification of mental and behavioural disorders (ICD-10) codes F00-F99.

Reproductive Health

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many prescriptions of the morning-after pill were issued in each primary care trust area in each year since 1993, broken down by age of patient. [81277]

Caroline Flint: The information on the number of prescriptions for emergency hormonal contraception prescribed by general practitioner practices in each primary care trust has been placed in the Library. Data by complete years are not available prior to 2002 and it is not possible to break the data down by age.

The data on emergency hormonal contraception dispensed by family planning clinics could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Skin Cancer

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment her Department has made of the use of photodynamic therapy in skin cancer treatment; and if she will make a statement. [84495]

Ms Rosie Winterton: It is not the role of the Department to assess the relative costs and patient benefits of this or other treatments. The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) has been set up to issue clinical guidance to the national health service including: interventional procedure guidance to assess if a procedure is safe for routine use in the NHS; technology appraisals to assess if a treatment is clinically and cost effective; clinical guidelines to advise on the diagnosis and management of certain conditions; and, cancer service guidance to advise on how services should be organised to ensure good outcomes for patients.

In February 2006, as part of its programme of work on interventional procedures, NICE issued guidance on the use of photodynamic therapy (PDT) in the treatment of non-melanoma skin tumours. It noted that the procedure was generally safe and did not cause major problems although, in theory, it could start off cancerous changes in the skin. NICE also stated that patients need to understand the risks of this treatment before they agree to have PDT and that further treatment may be necessary.

Also in February 2006, NICE published guidance on "Improving Outcomes for people with skin tumours, including melanoma". This guidance includes recommendations on the management of patients with suspected precancerous or cancerous skin lesions. It describes PDT including the advantages and disadvantages of this type of treatment and notes that, at present, there is little information available on long-term cure rates. It does however recommend that a number of surgical and non-surgical procedures for the treatment of skin cancer, including PDT, should be available for use by clinicians in relevant teams, subject to locally agreed standards of competence.

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of the NHS treatment of skin cancer is undertaken with the use of photodynamic therapy. [84496]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department does not collect information centrally on the proportion of national health service treatment of skin cancer undertaken with the use of photodynamic therapy (PDT).

However, the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence has issued guidance on the use of PDT in the NHS as part its programme of work on interventional procedures. NICE also addressed the use of PDT in its guidance on "Improving Outcomes for people with skin tumours, including melanoma".

Both pieces of guidance were published in February 2006 and can be found on NICE's website.

Social Services Care

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the Department's recommended criteria are for the categorisation of the level and extent of care required by each recipient in relation to social services care provided by local authorities. [84878]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department's recommended criteria to local authorities on setting of eligibility criteria for provision of services to all adults seeking social care support is set out in the "Fair Access to Care Services Guidance on Eligibility Criteria for Adult Social Care" which is available on the Department's website at: www.dh.gov.uk/assetRoot/04/01/96/41/04019641.pdf.

The guidance prioritises the risks faced by individuals into four bands, critical, substantial, moderate and low, and requires councils to adopt these bands in determining the criteria.

Terminal and Palliative Care

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many terminally ill and palliative care beds were available in each primary care trust in (a) London and (b) England for (i) adults and (ii) children in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [82970]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department does not routinely collect data on palliative care beds in each primary care trust. Primary care trusts are responsible within the national health service for commissioning and funding services for their resident population, including palliative care beds. However, Hospice Information, an independent organisation shows the number of beds available.

Palliative care places	Beds	NHS beds	Voluntary beds
London—adult	394	86	308
England—adult	2,624	496	2,128
London—children	9	0	9
England—children	204	0	204

Source:
Hospice information January 2006: An independent service provided by Help the Hospices.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what targets her Department has set for tariff pricing for palliative care services; what progress she has made against those targets; and whether the tariff will reflect the cost of the care provided by (a) voluntary organisations, (b) the state and (c) the private sector. [83050]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Work to develop health care resource groups (HRGs) for specialist palliative care is ongoing. Currently, payment by results tariffs only apply to certain services provided by national health service trusts. Further work will need to be done before tariffs can be introduced for community, independent sector and third sector services.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) pursuant to the Health White Paper "Our Health, Our Care, Our Say", when the Government will bring forward proposals on the (a) kinds of services required and (b) the mechanism by which funding will be allocated for community-based palliative care and hospice at home services; [83051]

(2) how much the Government have allocated to palliative care in 2006-07; and what plans she has for expenditure on palliative care. [83053]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department does not routinely collect data requested on national health service funding of palliative care.

PCTs are responsible within the NHS for commissioning and funding services for their resident population, including palliative care. It is for them to determine how to use the funding allocated to them to commission services to meet the health care needs of their local populations.

Ministers have asked the National Cancer Director, Professor Mike Richards, supported by Professor Ian Philp, National Director for Older People, to prepare a comprehensive strategy to develop and progress end of life care. The strategy will establish the means whereby the Government's manifesto commitment on palliative care and also the end of life care strategy outlined in the White Paper "Our health, Our Care, Our Say" will be delivered. Professor Richards has been asked to report back to Ministers in the autumn.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether her Department is committed to full cost recovery for palliative services that are commissioned by the state. [83052]

Ms Rosie Winterton: HM Treasury's "Cross Cutting Review" recommended that funders should recognise that it is legitimate for voluntary and community sector providers to include the relevant element of overheads in their cost estimates for providing a given service under a contract or service agreement. In the context of hospice care, this does not mean the full costs of the hospice, but rather those services provided by the hospice that are commissioned by the primary care trust. National health service commissioners should be moving towards implementing the Treasury's recommendation on full cost recovery on those services they commission from the voluntary sector. The emphasis should, therefore, be on effective negotiation between contracting partners as contracts and service level agreements come up for renewal.

Tuberculosis

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cases of tuberculosis were reported in each of the last five years in the Southport and Ormskirk hospital NHS trust area. [83442]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information requested is shown in the following table by primary care trust (PCT) area of residence for the latest years for which data is available.

	Southport and Formby PCT	West Lancashire PCT
2001	4	1
2002	2	1
2003	3	2
2004	5	1

UK Pensioners (Overseas Health Care)

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) bilateral and (b) multilateral arrangements the United Kingdom has with (i) Estonia, (ii) Finland, (iii) France, (iv) Germany, (v) Greece, (vi) Hungary, (vii) Ireland, (viii) Italy, (ix) Latvia, (x) Lithuania, (xi) Luxembourg, (xii) Malta, (xiii) Netherlands, (xiv) Poland, (xv) Portugal, (xvi) Slovakia, (xvii) Slovenia, (xviii) Spain and (xix) Sweden on the provision of health care for UK pensioners resident in that country. [84399]

Ms Rosie Winterton: There are arrangements co-ordinating the social security and health care systems of all the member states of the European Union (EU). This is covered by Regulation (EEC) 1408/71 which is a multilateral instrument.

It provides that pensioners living in another EU member state who are receiving a United Kingdom state retirement, long-term incapacity or bereavement pension, are entitled to health care on the same basis as that country's own insured persons.

Urinary Reflux

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research her Department has (a) undertaken, (b) plans to undertake and (c) evaluated into the (i) number and (ii) age of (A) males and (B) females who have urinary reflux; and if she will make a statement. [85151]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department has not evaluated, undertaken, or has plans to undertake, research into the number, age and sex distribution of those with urinary reflux.

Walk-in Centres (Funding)

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what meetings (a) she and (b) her officials have had on the review of walk-in centre funding arrangements; what was discussed at each meeting; and if she will publish research her Department has (i) undertaken, (ii) commissioned and (iii) received as part of that review process. [79671]

Caroline Flint: These matters have been discussed at a number of meetings and proposals will be coming to Ministers shortly. No new research has been undertaken, commissioned or received.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Abattoirs

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 26 June 2006, Official Report, column 9W, on abattoirs, how many abattoirs there were in England in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [81800]

Barry Gardiner: The number of red and poultry meat slaughterhouses recorded in England for the years 1997 to 2005 are shown in the following table.

	Red meat	Poultry meat
1997	375	131
1998	360	131

	Red meat	Poultry meat
1999	339	119
2000	316	111
2001	300	116
2002	298	109
2003	282	111
2004	264	105
2005	250	98

Source:
Food Standards Agency—December 2005

The number of slaughterhouses in England has reduced since 1997, reflecting a longer-term trend for consolidation. For example in 1987 there were 790. The Government recognise the importance of an adequate network of slaughterhouses to ensure that all sustainable production needs can continue to be met. I also refer my hon. Friend to the answer given by my predecessor as Under-Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, my hon. Friend the Member for South Dorset (Jim Knight), on 9 November 2005, Official Report, column 476W.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many abattoirs there are in Yeovil constituency; and how many there were in 1997. [82181]

Barry Gardiner: The Department does not keep data on the number of abattoirs by constituency but it is understood that, of the 12 abattoirs in the County of Somerset, one lies within the Yeovil constituency. We have no corresponding data for 1997.

Agency Staff

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what average hourly rate was paid by his Department to each employment agency for staff employed through agencies in 2005-06. [81497]

Barry Gardiner: Information is not held centrally on the average hourly rate paid by the Department to each employment agency for personnel engaged through agencies in 2005-06. The information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Air Conditioning/Heating

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent estimate he has made of the carbon emissions resulting from (a) the generation of heating for buildings and (b) the powering of air conditioning in buildings per head of population (i) in total and (ii) broken down by region. [84071]

Ian Pearson: The information requested is set out in the following tables:

Estimated annual carbon emissions from the space heating of domestic and non-domestic buildings per capita

	Kilograms
Great Britain	503
England	497
Scotland	526
Wales	577

Estimated annual carbon emissions from the air conditioning of domestic and non-domestic buildings per capita

	Kilograms
Great Britain	23
England	23
Scotland	20
Wales	19

For Northern Ireland, the annual carbon emissions from the space heating of non-domestic buildings are estimated at 142 kg per capita, and for air-conditioning it is 20 kg. We do not currently have figures for the carbon emissions of homes in Northern Ireland.

Air Quality

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress has been made towards meeting the Government's Air Quality Strategy targets for (a) carbon monoxide, (b) lead, (c) nitrogen dioxide, (d) particles, (e) sulphur dioxide, (f) benzene and (g) 1,3 butadiene. [85459]

Mr. Bradshaw: Provisional results for 2005, issued at the beginning of this year, show that the UK maintained and met the Air Quality Strategy's targets for carbon monoxide, benzene and 1,3-butadiene and lead. We missed objectives for nitrogen dioxide (2005) and ozone (2005) and very marginally missed those for particulates (2004) in some parts of the UK. However, we are meeting our current objectives for all air pollutants in most parts of the country—up to 99.5 per cent. in some cases—and only a limited number of hot spot areas remain.

However, based on present measures, more work will be needed to meet the targets for particles and nitrogen dioxide in some parts of our towns and cities. We are currently working with other Departments to review the Air Quality Strategy and explore what additional policy measures could help move us closer to meeting air quality targets. A public consultation on the review of the Air Quality Strategy was launched in April this year and is available from the following address:
http://www.defra.gov.uk/corporate/consult/airqualstrat-review/index.htm

Angling

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much angling contributes to the Exchequer; and how much is paid out to assist with angling-related activity. [84676]

Mr. Bradshaw: There are no exact figures on how much angling contributes to the Exchequer, but estimates suggest that the annual economic activity associated with angling is up to £2.75 billion, directly employing around 20,000 people, either full or part-time.

The Department provides Grant in Aid of £5.8 million to maintain, improve and develop freshwater fisheries in England, part of which is paid out to assist with angling-related activities.

I understand that Sport England provide £185,000 in funding to Angling Governing Bodies.

Beaches

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which (a) bathing and (b) non-bathing beaches are (i) measured and (ii) not measured for (A) beach and (B) water quality standards; whether each beach which is measured met each standard at its last inspection; and what plans there are to strengthen the (1) monitoring and (2) standards. [84096]

Ian Pearson: Bathing waters are identified according to the criteria set by the 1976 EC Bathing Water Directive (1976/160/EEC). There are 405 identified coastal bathing waters in England, which are monitored in accordance with the Directive during the bathing season, which runs from mid-May to the end of September. In 2005, 98.8 per cent. of these met the mandatory standards of the Bathing Water Directive, with only five waters failing to meet the minimum requirements. There are also nine identified inland bathing waters in England, all of which met the mandatory standards. A list of these sites is presented in Bathing Water Directive (76/160/EEC) Detailed Summary of 2005 Survey Results United Kingdom, which has been placed in the Library of the House. It is also available at: http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/water/quality/bathing/pdf/report05.pdf

The monitoring of water quality and the meeting of water quality standards is not required at sites which do not meet the directive's criteria for a bathing water.

With regard to the strengthening of monitoring and other standards, a revised Bathing Water Directive was recently adopted by the EU and entered into force in March 2006. This revised version will bring a closer focus on the protection of public health and tighter water quality standards to identified bathing waters by 2015.

The duty to clear litter and refuse under section 89 of the Environmental Protection Act 1990, only applies to 'relevant land' above the high water mark. However, beach quality standards are an important element of the international Blue Flag Award administered in the UK by ENCAMS (Environmental Campaigns), and of the UK-wide ENCAMS Seaside Award scheme recognising clean, safe and well-managed beaches.

Each year local authorities can apply for a Blue Flag or Seaside Award, or both, for any of their beaches. Each application, which is assessed by an independent panel of judges, must satisfy rigorous criteria which covers a broad range of factors pertaining to the management of the beach. The applications for 2006 are as follows:

	Number
Number of blue flag applications in England	79
Number of successful blue flag applications in England	[1]77
Number of seaside award applications in England	[2]229
Number of successful seaside award applications in England	229

[1] Two failures due to water quality testing technicalities.
[2] 150 seaside award only applications plus 79 joint blue flag/seaside award applications.

A full list of Blue Flag Award beaches (including marinas) can be found at http://www.seasideawards.org.uk/bf_list.asp. For seaside awards, the link is http://www.seasideawards.org.uk/list.asp Southwold Pier gained a Blue Flag England and Boulevard Beach, Blackpool gained a Seaside Award England. They are not showing on the website due to ongoing building work which has over-run its schedule.

Monitoring and standards for beaches will be strengthened in a new Quality Coast award scheme, developed by ENCAMS and supported by Defra, that will replace the seaside awards for applications from the end of this year. This scheme will provide a broader framework for beach operators to assist in managing the needs of different users and the beach environment. Local environmental quality standards will be a key component of the award, and will be monitored using survey methodology based on the Local Environmental Quality Survey of England which also forms the basis for street cleansing best value performance indicators BV199A-D.

Biofuel Crops

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs why energy aid top-up grants for biofuel crops are not available to crops grown on set aside land. [85311]

Barry Gardiner: The €45 per hectare Energy Aid payment was introduced by the European Commission in 2004 as part of the Common Agricultural Policy reform, to encourage the production of biofuels. At the time, certain energy crops grown on set-aside land were eligible for the set-aside payment.

The Commission has given a commitment in its Biomass Action Plan to review the implementation of the payment by the end of this year.

Bovine Tuberculosis

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many problem herds were involved in his Department's pilot study of the gamma interferon bovine tuberculosis test; and how many cattle (a) there were in each herd, (b) tested positive to the standard intradermal skin test, (c) tested positive to the standard intradermal skin test and showed visible lesions or were bacteriologically positive, (d) were inconclusive to the standard intradermal skin test, (e) were inconclusive to the standard intradermal skin test and subsequently slaughtered, (f) were inconclusive to the standard intradermal skin test, were subsequently slaughtered and showed visible lesions or were bacteriologically positive, (g) tested negative to the standard intradermal skin test but positive to the gamma interferon tuberculosis test and (h) tested negative to the standard intradermal skin test but positive to the gamma interferon tuberculosis test and, on slaughter, showed visible lesions or were bacteriologically positive. [70954]

Mr. Bradshaw: An initial report providing an analysis of the data from the field study should be published shortly, once it is finalised.

In line with standard practice, the report will be freely available, but I have asked my officials to ensure my hon. Friend receives a copy as soon as it is ready.

British Sugar Factory, York

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what representations he has received on the impending closure of the British Sugar factory in York in 2007; [84304]

(2) what discussions he has had with British Sugar on the implications for farmers in North Yorkshire of the closure of the sugar factory in York; [84305]

(3) what assessment he has made of the implications for local farmers of the closure of the British Sugar factory, with particular reference to the cost of transporting sugar beet to factories. [84306]

Barry Gardiner: In addition to a meeting which my noble Friend, Lord Rooker, the Minister for Sustainable Farming and Food had with the National Farmers' Union on 12 July, we are receiving a number of correspondence cases about the implications for growers in the area concerned.

British Sugar has written to us explaining the background to its decision and informing us that it is currently in discussion with the National Farmers' Union on these issues and with its own staff about the employment consequences at the factory itself. We have asked to be kept informed about progress.

Coastal Defences

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how the funds earmarked for sea coastal defences in (a) Clacton-on-Sea and (b) Holland-on-Sea have been allocated; and what assessment he has made of the balance of priorities between river and sea flood defences in Essex. [84301]

Ian Pearson: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the reply given on 10 July 2006, Official Report, column 1402W.

From April 2006, all local authority flood and coastal erosion capital improvement projects are funded by direct grant aid from Defra. Defra funding is allocated to individual capital improvement projects across the country through a priority scoring system, which looks at the benefits of potential projects compared with the costs. River and sea defences are treated equally within this process.

Environment Agency budgets for coastal and fluvial funding are drawn up in September, for spending in the following financial year. These figures are based upon asset and watercourse inspections and historical levels of expenditure. There may, in some years, be raised levels of expenditure depending on situations such as storm damage, high rainfall events and varying levels of weed growth in watercourses. Where repairs to damage sustained are above the budgeted level, these works are funded from within the overall area maintenance budget by reprioritising programmed works.

Common Agricultural Policy

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the total amount paid under the Common Agricultural Policy to (a) limited companies and (b) individuals was in the most recent year for which figures are available. [82794]

Barry Gardiner: Details relating to payments made to both limited companies and individuals can be found on the following website: www.rpa.gov.uk/about.rpa/CAP payments for EAGGF 2003-04

Data relating to the EAGGF 2004-05 are being prepared and will be available on the RPA website in the near future.

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farmers in the UK received Common Agricultural Policy subsidies of (a) 0 to 5,000, (b) 5,000 to 50,000 and (c) more than 50,000 euros in (i) 2003-04, (ii) 2004-05 and (iii) 2005-06. [82795]

Barry Gardiner: The number of farmers in England can be found on the following website for the EAGGF year 2003-04: www.rpa.gov.uk/about.rpa/CAP payments for EAGGF 2003-04

Data relating to the EAGGF year 2004-05 are being prepared and will be available on the RPA website in the near future.

Analysis for the EAGGF year 2005-06 will not be available until after the year closes in October 2006.

Please note that all the above data are prepared in sterling as this is the required reporting currency to the EC.

Comprehensive Spending Review

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with (a) the Treasury and (b) the Cabinet Office regarding the pre-comprehensive spending review report; and if he will make a statement. [82845]

Barry Gardiner: The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, has had and will continue to have wide ranging and regular discussions with the Chief Secretary about preparations for the 2007 comprehensive spending review, as a matter of key importance to Defra's medium and long-term planning.

Credit Unions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if his Department will provide information and membership forms for credit unions to its employees. [79940]

Ian Pearson: The Government welcome the contribution made by the various savings institutions in providing for greater choice and diversity in the financial services sector.

The Government's guiding principles are to ensure impartiality and to help create a level playing field for all providers of financial services in order that their specific attributes can be properly harnessed.

It would therefore be inconsistent for a Government Department to favour credit unions above other financial institutions.

Employees are of course free to join in credit unions if they meet their relevant membership criteria and Departments may provide appropriate levels of support if employees wish to set up a credit union.

Departmental and Agency Staff

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many staff employed by (a) his Department, (b) the Rural Payments Agency, (c) the Countryside Agency, (d) the Environment Agency and (e) English Nature have been previously employed in (i) agriculture and (ii) a related industry. [85136]

Barry Gardiner: Records of the previous employment of members of staff are not held electronically and therefore if the information requested was available, it could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Publications

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what draft Bills have been produced by his Department since October 2005; how many were (a) examined and (b) are planned to be examined by (i) a Departmental Select Committee and (ii) a Joint Committee; which draft Bills are still to be produced by his Department; when each is expected to be published; how many clauses each has; and if he will make a statement. [81296]

Barry Gardiner: No draft Bills have been published since October 2005.

Announcements on future legislation and future draft legislation which will be subject to pre-legislative scrutiny will be indicated in the Queen's Speech.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his practice is regarding meeting, discussing and taking into account the views and opinions of (a) private individuals and (b) representatives of organisations when drawing up and framing legislation to be introduced by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [81297]

Barry Gardiner: Defra is committed to strengthening its stakeholder engagement and developing a relationship of trust and confidence with customers, partners and other stakeholders. The Department always seeks a full range of views when drawing up and framing legislation. Consultation is a key part of the policy-making process, both informal and formal. The Department holds regular meetings with representatives of the principal stakeholder groups for our policy areas, actively seeking the involvement of minority groups, and with relevant experts. Organisations and individuals can also contribute to the Department's formal consultations which abide by the Code of Conduct on Consultation. Known stakeholders are alerted to the fact that a formal consultation is taking place, with key stakeholders contributing to the content of the consultation document. All contributors should receive an acknowledgement from the Department, and may be invited to further discuss their comments. As required by the Code, the Department then gives feedback on the responses received and on how the consultation process influenced the policy decision.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will list the Deposited Papers placed in the Library by his Department since 2000; and when each was published. [81299]

Barry Gardiner: This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Select Committee Recommendations

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what actions have been taken by his Department to implement Environment, Food and Rural Affairs Select Committee recommendations since the 2001-02 session; and if he will make a statement. [78839]

Barry Gardiner: This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, the Government do make clear in its response to Select Committee Reports whether or not the Committee's recommendations are accepted.

Departmental Staff

Roger Berry: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many disabled staff in his Department received support through the Access to Work scheme (a) in each of the last five years and (b) in 2006-07. [82226]

Barry Gardiner: Defra does not hold information centrally on the use of the Access to Work scheme. Managers access the scheme directly and liaise with their local service provider.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 5 June 2006, Official Report, column 152W, on departmental staff, how many members of staff in his Department had two or more periods of sick leave of less than five days in 2003 and 2004. [84030]

Barry Gardiner: Information on sickness absence in DEFRA in 2003 and 2004 at the level of detail requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Electrical Appliances (Stand-by Mode)

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his most recent estimate is of the annual level of UK carbon emissions resulting from electrical appliances being left in stand-by mode. [84073]

Ian Pearson: The most recent analysis of the energy consumption of equipment in households and commercial properties was undertaken by DEFRA's Market Transformation Programme (MTP) last year. This estimated that the level of carbon emissions resulting from electrical appliances left in stand-by mode was just over one million tonnes of carbon per annum.

The report, "Estimated UK standby Electricity Consumption in 2004 (BNXS36)" can be found at: http://www.mtprog.com/ApprovedBriefingNotes/BriefingNoteTemplate.aspx?intBriefingNoteID=393

MTP is currently in the process of updating this information.

FIFA World Cup

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which matches (a) he and (b) other Ministers in his Department attended at the FIFA World Cup 2006 in Germany in their Ministerial capacity; at what cost to public funds; and with what contributions from third party organisations. [83625]

Barry Gardiner: Neither the Secretary of State nor any Minister in Defra attended any matches at the FIFA World Cup 2006.

Fly-tipping

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the estimates for fly-tipping incidents recorded by Flycapture were for 2005-06. [85709]

Mr. Bradshaw: Results from Flycapture, the national fly-tipping database, for the first year showed that an average of over 88,500 fly-tipping incidents per month were reported in the period April 2004 to March 2005.

Data for 2005-06 are currently being analysed and will be published shortly. No estimates are available.

Genetically Modified Organisms

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs under what circumstances the biotechnology company, organisation or person holding a consent to market a genetically modified organism (GMO) would be considered an "operator" under the terms of the Environmental Liability Directive; and whether the marketing consent holder would be liable for environmental harm arising from the use of a licensed GMO by doctors, veterinarians or farmers. [84479]

Ian Pearson: The definition of an 'operator' in the Environmental Liability Directive means that a biotechnology company and an organisation marketing a genetically modified organism (GMO) would be regarded as an operator for the purposes of the Directive.

Under the Directive, operators are, in principle, liable for environmental harm caused by their own actions. However, the way that this liability will apply in practice will be dependent in part on decisions following the outcome of the consultation on transposition of the Directive, which the government will be conducting later this year.

Whether any individual marketing consent holder would be liable for environmental harm arising from the use of a licensed GMO would be dependent on the individual circumstances of the case, in particular the nature of the relationship between the consent holder and the user, and how the environmental damage occurred.

Ivory

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his policy is on the (a) control of ivory stock piles and (b) reopening of the trade in ivory. [81928]

Barry Gardiner: The UK has been closely involved in the debate surrounding proposals for one-off sales of stockpiled ivory, through our involvement in the convention on international trade in endangered species (CITES).

(a) CITES has placed a number of strict preconditions that have to be met before one-off sales of ivory stock can take place. In addition the proceeds have to be used exclusively for elephant and community conservation projects within, or near, the areas where the elephants reside. The UK will not support the proposed one-off sales if we are not entirely satisfied that the strict conditions have been met.

(b) The international ban on trade in ivory remains firmly in place and is fully supported by the UK Government. We remain clearly of the view that the illegal and unsustainable trade in ivory should not be permitted. We will not support any resumption in the commercial trade in ivory until we are satisfied that this will not result in an increase in the illegal killing of elephants, or undermine the conservation of elephant populations elsewhere in the world.

To assist any considerations I have asked the International Fund for Animal Welfare to prepare estimates of the cost of improving conservation measures to combat elephant poaching commensurate with ensuring that any stimulus that such one-off sales of stockpiled ivory might give to the black market trade would be more than offset by the improved conservation.

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the plans under the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species for a one-time sale of ivory stocks. [82158]

Barry Gardiner: The UK continues to be closely involved in the debate surrounding calls for one-off sales of stockpiled ivory, through our involvement in the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species (CITES). The convention has set a number of strict pre-conditions that have to be met before one-off sales of ivory could take place. In addition, parties to CITES have stated that the proceeds would have to be used exclusively for elephant and community conservation projects within, or near, the areas where the elephants reside.

The UK will continue to work with EU member states and CITES parties so that no decision to allow the proposed one-off sales can take place unless the strict conditions I have referred to have been met.

To assist any considerations I have asked the International Fund for Animal Welfare to prepare estimates of the cost of improving conservation measures to combat elephant poaching commensurate with ensuring that any stimulus that such one-off sales of stockpiled ivory might give to the black market trade would be more than offset by the improved conservation.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will oppose proposals for sales from the ivory stockpile at the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species Standing Committee meeting on 2-9 October 2006; and if he will make a statement. [84285]

Barry Gardiner: The one-off sales were agreed in principle back in 2002 at the 12th CITES Conference of Parties but the Parties set a number of strict pre-conditions that have to be met before one-off sales of ivory can go ahead.

This will be discussed at the next CITES Standing Committee in October and the UK will continue to work with EU member states and CITES parties so that no decision to allow the proposed one-off sales can take place unless the strict conditions I have referred to have been met.

To assist any considerations I have asked the International Fund for Animal Welfare to prepare estimates of the cost of improving conservation measures to combat elephant poaching commensurate with ensuring that any stimulus that such one-off sales of stockpiled ivory might give to the black market trade would be more than offset by the improved conservation.

Levy Boards

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he will make a formal announcement on the reconstitution of the UK levy boards. [84098]

Ian Pearson: I refer my hon. Friend to the written ministerial statement made by my noble Friend, Lord Rooker, the Minister for Sustainable Farming and Food on the levy boards on 28 June 2006, Official Report, column 61WS.

Morecambe Sea Defences

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much has been allocated to Morecambe Sea Defence Scheme for the latest phase of work. [85035]

Ian Pearson: The final two phases of the Morecambe Sea Defence Scheme were approved in October 2005. The approved grant eligible cost is £13.8 million.

North Sea (Carbon Sequestration)

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the potential for carbon sequestration within abandoned North Sea fields; and if he will make a statement. [84275]

Ian Pearson: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the reply given on 4 July 2005, Official Report, column 50W.

Nuclear Waste

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the effect of the burial of nuclear waste on the environment around the site of burial. [84235]

Ian Pearson: The independent Committee on Radioactive Waste Management (CoRWM), which was appointed by the Government in November 2003, has considered existing research into the environmental effects of the disposal of nuclear waste. The options CoRWM is considering include the geological disposal of radioactive wastes. It will publish its report at the end of July.

Palm Oil

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will carry out a study into the feasibility of producing an emblem to show which foods are not being produced using palm oil. [83093]

Barry Gardiner: Defra actively encourages manufacturers and retailers to improve the use of claims and labels to cover the environmental impact of their products.

However, as palm oil is used in a very wide range of goods, from food to personal care products, and each of these products falls under a different and complex piece of labelling law, it is currently not practical to demand individual products to be labelled. Instead we are focusing on the level of wholesale suppliers and supporting initiatives such as the Round Table on Sustainable Palm Oil (RSPO) which has developed criteria to assess sustainable palm oil production.

For information on the RSPO go to: http://sustainable-palmoil.org/

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many parliamentary questions tabled to his Department were awaiting a reply on 10 July 2006; which of those had been waiting longer than (a) two and (b) three weeks for a reply; and what the reason for the delay was in each case. [85204]

Ian Pearson: At 10 July Defra had received 5,031 parliamentary questions:

4,035 were ordinary written;

747 were named day; and

249 were Commons orals.

We had 141 questions awaiting reply, of which 126 had been waiting longer than two weeks and 15 were waiting longer than three weeks.

We aim to give Members a substantive response to any named day question on the named day and to answer ordinary written questions within a working week of them being tabled. This is not always possible, but Ministers are keen to hold the Department to these levels of performance in general.

Patio Heaters

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will estimate the (a) carbon dioxide and (b) greenhouse gas emissions created by outdoor patio heaters in (i) the most recent year for which information is available and (ii) each of the next five years. [84065]

Ian Pearson: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 6 June 2006, Official Report, column 500W to the hon. Member for Ribble Valley (Mr. Evans).

Pet Fairs

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to change the regulations relating to the sale of pets at pet fairs and other informal markets. [84415]

Mr. Bradshaw: Our proposal to license pet fairs is detailed in the Regulatory Impact Assessment which was published alongside the Animal Welfare Bill. The Bill is currently being considered by Parliament.

The Department will consider any implications that the findings of the recent Judicial Review may have on our proposals to regulate pet fairs. We also intend to undertake a full public consultation before any regulations in this area are made.

Poultry Farmers

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of (a) market conditions for the poultry industry in the UK and (b) the level of consumer confidence in poultry. [82713]

Barry Gardiner: Sales of poultry remain high in this country and the market is recovering generally across the EU. The Government and particularly their relevant agencies, continue to reassure the consumers of the food safety aspects of poultry products. Consumers have been rational in terms of consumption of poultry and eggs, helped by clear advice from the Food Standards Agency.

Regulatory Simplification

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what regulatory simplification proposals his Department has received since the start of the initiative; which stakeholders have been consulted on each proposal; and if he will make a statement. [81032]

Ian Pearson: Since the launch of the Government's regulatory simplification initiative on 15 September 2005, the Department has received 44 proposals from 21 organisations including the National Farmers Union, Construction Products Association and GlaxoSmithKline. Of these, 28 relate to or have implications for environmental regulations. Where appropriate, the Department has carried out further consultation with stakeholders on these proposals.

The Government are engaging with stakeholders from private, public, and voluntary sectors as part of a radical programme of reform to reduce unnecessary and burdensome regulation. The Government welcome suggestions from stakeholders for regulatory simplification.

Single Payments Scheme

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farmers are still to receive payment advice from the Rural Payments Agency. [83720]

Barry Gardiner: The Rural Payments Agency provides payment advice at the point it is ready to make payment to claimants. All claimants to the 2005 Single Payment Scheme (SPS) have received notification of their entitlement position. In the majority of cases these entitlement statements are supported by a fully validated claim. As of 4 July 2006, approximately 8,500 claimants to the 2005 SPS had yet to receive any payment or payment notification, over 8,000 of which are each due to receive less than €1,000.

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farmers have not yet had single farm payment scheme application forms dispatched to them. [76179]

Mr. Bradshaw: Single Payment Scheme (SPS) application forms were dispatched to all known customers by 25 April 2006. A small number of new customers or existing customers requesting an additional copy of their form occurred after this date, all of which have been dispatched.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the error rate for single farm payment forms was for 2006; and if he will make a statement. [77815]

Barry Gardiner: By 15 June, the Rural Payments Agency (RPA) had received approximately 110,000 claim forms to the 2006 Single Payment Scheme. To assist customers and reduce processing time, RPA has been undertaking manual checks to ensure that claims contain sufficient information to process. Around 11 per cent. of the claims received did not contain the requisite information, and the claimants have been contacted by RPA. With the exception of unsigned claims, which had to be returned to the customer, claimants were asked to provide the missing information to facilitate processing of their claim.

The remaining claims will be paid as soon as legally possible following the positive action set out in my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State's oral statement on 22 June 2006, Official Report, column 1478.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the largest single farmer subsidy, including EU subsidy, paid in Yeovil constituency was in (a) 2004 and (b) 2005. [82183]

Barry Gardiner: The largest subsidy payment made in the Yeovil constituency for the periods is given in the table:

2003-04	190,195.36
2004-05	200,308.43

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of farmers are still to receive their single farm payments. [83718]

Ian Pearson: I refer the hon. Member to the Secretary of State's written statement on 5 July 2006, Official Report, column 43WS.

Sugar Beet

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking to increase bioethanol production at sugar beet factories. [84124]

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the potential for developing sugar beet as a source of biomass and biofuels. [84307]

Ian Pearson: The Government support the use of bio-energy as part of the strategy for improving sustainability and reducing the impact of climate change. We recognise that the production of biofuels offers farmers an alternative market for sugar beet and are keen to develop this. British Sugar are building a biofuel processing plant in Norfolk that will use sugar beet as one of the feedstocks.

The Government are promoting the production of bioethanol through a 20 pence per litre duty rate cut. To further develop the supply of biofuels, a Renewable Transport Fuels Obligation will be introduced to require 5 per cent. of fuel sold in the UK to come from a renewable source by 2010. An enhanced capital allowance scheme is also being considered for the cleanest biofuels processing plants. This would allow the cost of capital assets to be written-off against taxable profits. Following the reform of the sugar regime, farmers can claim the EU's €45 per hectare Energy Aid payment for sugar beet grown on non set-aside land.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the viability of sugar beet as a rotation crop. [84308]

Barry Gardiner: The implications for UK growers of the reform of the EU sugar regime were included in the final Regulatory Impact Assessment which my Department submitted to Parliament following formal adoption of the agreement earlier this year.

Sustainable Competition

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions his Department has had with the Department of Trade and Industry on the inclusion of the promotion of sustainable development within the remit of the Competition Commission; and if he will make a statement. [84638]

Ian Pearson: The Department has had no such discussions.

Tallow

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make a statement on the categorisation of tallow as a waste product as defined by the Animal By-products regulations and the Waste Framework Directive. [83343]

Ian Pearson: Whether or not a substance is "waste" within the meaning of Article 1 (a) of the Waste Framework Directive (WFD) (75/442/EEC as amended) is a matter that must be determined on the facts of the case and the interpretation of the law is a matter for the Courts. It is not a function of the Government to classify or declassify any particular substance as waste or non-waste.

The EU Animal By-Products Regulation lays down rules governing the use and disposal of tallow, as well as other processed animal by-products, and requires that where tallow is subject to incineration or co-incineration (for example, used as a fuel), it must be disposed of as waste in accordance with the Waste Incineration Directive.

On 21 December 2005, the European Commission published its Thematic Strategy on the prevention and recycling of waste together with a proposed revision of the WFD. The draft revised WFD contains a proposal which would enable the Commission to adopt environmental and quality criteria for specified waste streams. Where these criteria are met, the effect would be to deem that the recovery of the specified waste had been completed and that it had ceased to be waste. The Commission's Thematic Strategy proposes that, subject to the outcome of an environmental study which the Commission is currently undertaking, the waste streams addressed by this system should include the use of tallow as a fuel.

Televisions

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the likely effect of predicted future sales of high end television sales, including plasma screens, on carbon dioxide emissions from their use comparative to existing television use. [84072]

Ian Pearson: The Government's Market Transformation Programme (MTP) estimates that in 2005 the 63 million television sets in use in the UK consumed around 9.6 Terra Watt Hours (TWh) of electricity—equivalent to 1 million tonnes of carbon. By 2010, MTP estimates that the number of television sets will increase to around 67 million, consuming around 15.7 TWh of electricity—equivalent to 1.7 million tonnes of carbon.

MTP analysis indicates that, at present, new "traditional" cathode ray tube (CRT) televisions (larger than 24 inches) consume around 250 KWh per annum whereas "newer" flat screen plasma and LCD TVs (larger than 24 inches) consume an average of around 900 KWh per annum.

In 2005, MTP estimates that 56 million (88 per cent.) televisions were CRT sets and 6 million (10 per cent.) were plasma or LCD screens. In 2010, MTP expects that 51 per cent. of televisions will be CRT, 28 per cent. LCD, 10 per cent. plasma, and 11 per cent. other technologies.

Beyond 2010, newly emerging television technologies such as Organic Light Emitting Diode (OLED) screens, will offer potential energy savings in both manufacture and use, compared to existing LED technology. The MTP indicates that commercial OLED televisions will be available by 2010.

The issue of increasing emissions from new generation television sets and the potential impact of emerging technologies was assessed in a report published for Defra in June 2005, entitled "An Assessment of Emerging Innovative Energy Efficient Technologies as part of the Energy Efficiency Innovation Review". This report is available on the MTP web site at: www.mtprog.com

Timber (Papua New Guinea)

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to tackle illegal logging in Papua New Guinea; and if he will make a statement. [78898]

Barry Gardiner: Trade in illegal timber is unacceptable.

As the world's fourth biggest net wood product importer, the UK recognises that it can play an important role in influencing timber markets. The Government are committed to tackling illegal logging and its associated trade.

At the international level, the UK engages in a number of bilateral and multi-lateral fora. In particular we are working with other major G8 timber consuming countries to follow up commitments made to tackle illegal logging at the G8 Environment and Development Ministerial in March 2005.

Trees

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of trees in each country (a) had full crowns, (b) had slight defoliation, (c) had moderate defoliation, (d) had severe defoliation and (e) were dead in the most recent survey of tree health in Europe under the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe Convention on Long Range Transboundary Air Pollution. [84061]

Barry Gardiner: Surveys on defoliation are undertaken by the International Co-operative Programme on Assessment and Monitoring of Air Pollution Effects on Forests—a body operating under the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe Convention on Long Range Transboundary Air Pollution.

The most recent published results are those for the survey undertaken in 2004. I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my predecessor as Under-Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, my hon. Friend the Member for South Dorset (Jim Knight), on 15 June 2005, Official Report, column 432W. The results of the survey undertaken in 2005 are not expected to be published until September 2006.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent steps (a) have been taken and (b) are planned to improve tree health. [84062]

Barry Gardiner: The need to maintain, and improve where necessary, the health and vitality of trees is integral to the Government's approach to sustainable forest management. We have set this out in the UK Forestry Standard and its supporting literature, which contain many specific measures for protecting woodland and improving tree health. All woodland management by the Forestry Commission is consistent with this standard and we expect private woodland owners that receive grant aid from the Forestry Commission to also meet the standard. The Government have encouraged the development of the voluntary UK Woodland Assurance Standard that provides an independent verification of compliance with good practice and measures to ensure the continuing good health of woodland. We shall continue to ensure compliance with the UK Forest Standard in those woods managed by the Forestry Commission and encourage it in the private sector.

We will also continue to improve, through research, our knowledge of factors affecting tree health and we shall maintain a vigilant guard against the establishment of non-native pests and diseases.

The prospect of changing climate is a threat to the continuing good health of long-lived organisms like trees. We have a number of long-standing research programmes the results of which are being fed into adaptation policies for woodland. plans are well advanced for instituting more such research. Mindful of the changing potential risks from non-native pests, we have taken the steps necessary to make the UK a 'protected zone' within Europe for a number of pests and diseases, most recently for a fungal blight of sweet chestnut. We are planning to implement measures, in accordance with an EU Commission decision which will apply throughout the community, against an insect pest of the same species, the oriental chestnut gall wasp.

In improving tree health, we are conscious that the use of chemicals against pests and noxious weeds may itself be a less than perfect solution. Therefore in 2004 we published guidance on reducing pesticide use in forestry and support moves to find other means of control. Examples are the recent deployment of a predatory beetle to control outbreaks of the great spruce bark beetle and continuing development of "integrated pest management" techniques against one of our most serious forest pests, the Hylobius weevil.

Warm Front

Roger Berry: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will revise the Warm Front eligibility criteria to make low-income householders caring for a severely disabled adult eligible for assistance with heating and insulation improvements. [83896]

Ian Pearson: The Warm Front Scheme is designed to provide support to those households which are most at risk of fuel poverty. The eligibility criteria for the scheme are designed to identify those households through receipt of specified income or disability related benefits.

We regularly review the scope and delivery of the scheme and will consider this request as part of that process.

Waste

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many tonnes of (a) aluminium, (b) wood, (c) paper, (d) green waste, (e) glass, (f) steel and (g) textiles there were in the municipal waste stream in each year since 2004-05; and how much of each he estimates was (i) recycled, (ii) landfilled and (iii) sent to energy from waste facilities (A) in total and (B) broken down by local authority area. [84066]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information on tonnages of specific materials in the municipal waste stream is not available, other than when separately collected for recycling. However, composition analysis of household waste carried out for the Prime Minister's Strategy Unit report "Waste not, want not", published in November 2002, provided proportions of individual materials in the waste stream. These proportions have been applied to the 2004-05 WasteDataFlow results to produce estimated totals for England which are shown as follows. A breakdown of results for each local authority is not available.

2004-05

	Tonnes (thousand)
All cans	667
Scrap metal and white goods	1,157
Paper and card	4,746
Green waste (compost)	5,255
Glass	1,757
Wood	1,067
Textiles	750

Data on the tonnages of different materials from household sources collected for recycling in England since 2003-04 are not available.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the total volume of (a) domestic, (b) commercial and (c) other waste was in each region in each year since 2002-03; what this represents per head of population; and what proportion was (i) sent to landfill, (ii) incinerated and (iii) disposed of by other means in each case. [84248]

Mr. Bradshaw: The estimates (data) for municipal waste (of which approximately 90 per cent. is domestic waste) arisings and management shown in the following tables are taken from the annual DEFRA Municipal Waste Management Survey for 2002-03 and 2003-04. Provisional municipal waste estimates for 2004-05 are from WasteDataFlow.

The figures for both commercial waste and industrial waste are taken from the Environment Agency's Commercial and Industrial Waste Survey and are available for 2002-03 only. Results for other types of waste are not available broken down at regional level. 'Other' includes waste recycled and/or composted. Totals may not add up due to rounding.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has for a variable charge for household waste; and what recent discussions he has had with the Local Government Association on this issue. [85096]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given on 3 July 2006, Official Report, column 749W.

The Secretary of State invited the Local Government Association (LGA) and local authorities to share their views on household waste charging when he addressed the LGA conference earlier this month. Neither I nor the Secretary of State have had further discussions on the issue with the LGA.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the amount of residue from (a) anti-depressant and (b) other drugs in waste water which has passed through sewage treatment plants. [84053]

Ian Pearson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 7 June 2004, Official Report, column 234W.

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what powers Ofwat has to take action against overcharging of water customers; and what steps he plans to take in this area. [84684]

Ian Pearson: Ofwat reviews and sets overall price limits, which balance the need for individual water and sewerage companies to carry out their functions with customer interests. In December 2004, Ofwat set price limits for each company for the period 2005-10.

Companies are responsible for deciding individual charging schemes, but these must be approved by Ofwat every year. Detailed information on this is published in the "Water and sewerage charges report": http://www.ofwat.gov.uk/aptrix/ofwat/publish.nsf/AttachmentsByTitle/tariff_report06.pdf/$FILE/tariff report06.pdf.

The established principle is that charges should broadly reflect the cost of the service provided. If necessary, Ofwat can take regulatory action to ensure that customers do not pay for services that have not been delivered.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will amend the building regulations to take account of the lower water infrastructure connection charges for new properties meeting high water efficiency standards; and if he will make a statement. [83932]

Ian Pearson: This summer, the Government will consult on proposals to revise regulations to secure improved water efficiency in new housing, following the Sustainable Buildings Task Group recommendations.

Within the Water Saving Group, Ofwat is looking at developing incentives to improve the promotion of water efficiency by water companies. Specifically, Ofwat is investigating infrastructure charges and the possibility of water companies offering housing developers incentives, in terms of reduced infrastructure charges, to install water efficient devices in new buildings. Ofwat is in the process of convening a small group of water companies and housing developers to discuss and assess the issues surrounding such incentives and the possible use of differential infrastructure charges.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what (a) percentage and (b) volume of clean water was lost through leaks in public pipes in Guildford in each of the last five years; what cost was incurred due to the loss of water; and if he will make a statement. [84091]

Ian Pearson: Thames Water provides the water supply for the majority of consumers in Guildford, with some consumers being supplied by Three Valleys Water. Ofwat collects information on leakage on the basis of company supply area only. Specific figures relating to percentage, volume and cost of leakage in Guildford are not available. Water company leakage performance is published annually by Ofwat in the "Security of supply, leakage and the efficient use of water reports".

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the average monthly cost to consumers was of (a) water services and (b) sewerage services in each water supply area in 2005-06; and what the average monthly cost was to (i) metered and (ii) unmetered customers. [84055]

Ian Pearson: Ofwat is the economic regulator for the water and sewerage industry in England and Wales. In December 2004 it set price limits for the period 2005-10.

The following table sets out the average monthly cost of water and sewerage services in 2005-06, for metered and unmetered customers. Each figure is based on the annual average bill for the particular service. Individual bills can be more or less than the average. More information can be found in Ofwat's "Water and sewerage charges 2006-07 report", available on their website at:
